Army Struggles Through Burning, Flooded Flanders as Allies Fight to Hold Last Port; Big French Force Is Surrounded, Nazis Say

President to Ask More 'Blitz' Arms; U. S. Pilots to Fly Ships to Canada

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt will ask Congress within a few days for an additional $600,000,000 to $800,000,000 for more blitzkrieg weapons for the Army—large numbers of warplanes, tanks and new-type antitank guns.

This was disclosed yesterday after ranking Army officers were unexpectedly summoned to the White House for a conference on defense needs. The Belgian army's capitulation was said to have moved the President to request now, instead of next year, a further expansion of the Army.

Neutrality Rules Relaxed

Meanwhile, the following other developments highlighted the intensive national defense preparations:

To aid warplane deliveries to the Allies, Secretary Hull amended neutrality regulations to permit American pilots to fly planes across Canada to take-off points in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

President Roosevelt asked Congress for $1,000,000 to finance the new advisory commission for national defense, and named another prominent business executive, Donald M. Nelson, of the Sears-Roebuck Co., to a key post in the defense program. He will become Treasury procurement director and coordinate foreign and domestic plane and munitions purchases.

New Explosive Discovered

House experts whipped into shape a 10 per cent defense tax bill, expected to produce $656,000,000 a year, and promised speed in pushing it through. In the Senate, however, there was growing sentiment for a delay until September to permit basic tax changes to be drafted.

Attorney General Jackson asked Congress to pass legislation requiring the registration of all privately owned firearms in the United States to prevent the "possible accumulation" of weapons by subversive groups.

The Army called on more than 2,000 Air Reserve officers to volunteer for active duty posts, while the Navy urged enlisted reservists to apply for active service.

The Senate Naval Affairs Committee in a formal report said an unnamed "reputable scientist" had revealed the discovery of an explosive 100 times more powerful than nitroglycerine, and urged the Army and Navy to give careful consideration to all new inventions.

Exact Amount Undecided

The War Department was disclosed to be ready to place an "educational" order with a commercial firm, looking to the production of 10,000 gas masks, especially adapted for civilian use. They would cost about $2 each in quantity production and with other such orders would enable the Nation to turn out 1,000,000 masks a month in an emergency.

Approval was given by the House Banking Committee to

Memorial Day

Guns Roar Throughout World As America Honors War Dead

(Story and Program of Memorial Day Events, Page 4.)

By Edward T. Folliard

Yes, nameless Yank, it is true. That far-away thunder is war—war on the same old battlefield, but an even more hideous thing than the one you knew.

It is a thing they call "total war." Its victims are the very young and the very old, as well as the fully-accoutred soldier.

How different the prospect, how glowing the future, that November day in 1921 when they buried you, an unidentified immortal, on your slope in Arlington. President Harding bespoke what was in all minds: "There must be, there shall be, the commanding voice of a conscious civilization against armed warfare."

Harding, who had walked behind your caisson along with others among the Nation's great, conferred upon you the Congressional Medal of Honor. Other famed leaders of the Allies gave you their most sacred tokens, but Lieut. Gen. Baron Jacque, the Belgian representative, was not content to take a shiny medal out of the velvet-lined box. From his own breast he snatched a "Croix de Guerre" and placed it on your flag-draped casket.

Only two of the European countries whose medals you hold, remain out of the war, and one of these, Italy, is threatening to go in.

In France today, no memorial services are being held in the American cemeteries where lay your fallen comrades of the A. E. F. Bombs and shells are falling on them, too.

Al Williams Urges Separate U. S. Airforce

Accuses Roosevelt Of Creating Panic To Put Nation in War

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Standing beside Postmaster General Farley, Maj. Al Williams, former naval flier, last night pleaded for a separate air force and accused President Roosevelt of creating panic to thrust this Nation into war.

Williams' talk, before the banquet of the National Aviation Forum at the Willard Hotel, was broadcast over a national network and by short wave to South America. He was followed by Farley, who remarked, "we are fortunate that we live in a democracy, where every person has the right to express himself on any subject."

Earlier in the day, at final sessions of the forum at the Commerce Department Auditorium, Mayor La-

House Group Reverses, Votes For Hatch Bill

Judiciary Committee Reports Measure Favorably, 16 to 8

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

The Hatch bill forbidding political activity to State employes paid with Federal funds was reported favorably yesterday after 10 weeks' consideration in the House Judiciary Committee.

Representative Dempsey (Democrat), of New Mexico, chief House sponsor of the measure, said he expected the bill would be speeded to the floor at a meeting of the Rules Committee tomorrow or early next week.

Reversing its action of a month ago in voting to kill the bill, the Judiciary Committee yesterday gave thumping approval of the measure by a vote of 16 to 8. "That's the same ratio by which

America Prepares

U. S. to Train Million Youths For Jobs in Defense Program

At least a million young people who are now in need or are receiving Government aid will be given work opportunities in connection with the defense program under the direction of Sidney Hillman, new defense coordinator of labor problems, it was learned yesterday.

The vast youth job and training program, now taking shape in conferences among officials concerned with the youth problem, is designed to supply defense industries with more skilled and semiskilled labor and at the same time reduce the group of 4,000,000 people between the ages of 16 and 24 who are out of work and out of school.

The young men and women will be given Government-paid training in mechancial trades, cooking, use of tools, repairing of machinery, radio, and other occupations, that can fit into the speedily expanding defense drive, it was learned. Many will be trained for air corps ground crews.

Cooperating in the undertaking are the Civilian Conservation Corps, the National Youth Administration, the Works Progress Administration, the Office of Education and the American Youth Commission. These groups are expected to provide most of the students for the training courses.

A meeting of key leaders from these bodies was held Sunday, it was learned, and another, to perfect the plan, was held yesterday.

Funds for the unprecedented program are expected to come from the supplemental defense appropriation, which President Roosevelt was understood to be preparing yesterday. The youth employment and training program would use more than $100,000,000 of this new money, according to the present plan.

The minimum number of one million youths—the eventual total may be far higher—would come from British Fliers Strive to Keep Remaining Exit Open to B. E. F.

By Drew Middleton
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, May 29.—Britain hurled her air force into mass battle tonight with waves of German fighters and bombers over the French channel port of Dunkerque—last door to safety for the Allies' battalions in the Flanders death trap.

The fight for air mastery raged on into the twilight of an anxious day for England.

In the Flanders "die-or-surrender" triangle, 500,000 Allied veterans under Lord Gort, commander-in-chief of the B. E. F., fought off repeated German thrusts with "stiff rear guard action" as they pushed doggedly down a narrowing corridor toward the coast.

Relief Force Ready

Out of the 1,500,000 men now actually under arms in Britain, 500,000, especially equipped for modern mechanized warfare, are ready for action in France. They can join the French in any gouge into German defenses to ease the pressure on their comrades in Flanders.

On the home front, Britain extended wartime restrictions to Americans and other neutrals, brought its home defense forces up to 1,500,000 armed men, and heard the grim prophecy that mass invasion might be imminent.

An air ministry communique described the fight over Dunkerque as the latest of a recent wave of air attacks designed to ease the German pressure on the Flanders pocket and to shatter communications and bases behind the lines.

Twenty-two of the "large number" of German planes over Dunkerque were reported shot down. One British bomber failed to return.

Exact location of the Allied troops in Flanders was not disclosed, but a military spokesman said they had pushed "some miles toward the coast."

Their morale was described as "unshaken" and their units compact

Americans Put Under Alien Rules Within England

London, May 29 (AP).—Americans were placed under alien restrictions in England today for the first time since the outbreak of war.

They were included, with all other neutrals as well as nationals of countries allied with Britain, under a curfew and activity limitation to become effective Monday.

The order provides that unless aliens have police permits, they must stay at home from midnight to 6 a. m. in London and from 10:30 p. m. to 6 a. m. elsewhere in the United Kingdom.

They are forbidden to own or "control" a bicycle, motor vehicle, seagoing craft or aircraft.

Those without settled residences must report to police on the day the order becomes effective. If an alien spends a night in a private home, the householder is required to notify police.

Roosevelt Kills Bill to Prohibit Deportation of 2

President Roosevelt yesterday vetoed a bill to cancel deportation against a titled German and his wife, who had convinced the Labor Department they were political refugees and would face "grave danger" of death and imprisonment, if sent back to Germany.

The two are Baron Karl Freiherr von Mauchenheim and his wife, who entered this country in 1936 and now live in Detroit.

President Roosevelt said in his veto message that a State Department investigation showed the pair "made false statements" regarding their activities in Germany before leaving there in 1935, and that they had been defendants in Germany in actions against them for fraud and civil claims.

Ostend and Lille Captured, Berlin Says; Paris Set As Next Goal

By Ralph W. Barnes
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Berlin, May 29.—Adolf Hitler and his generals continued tonight to prepare "the next blow" in the great offensive to crush the military power of Britain and France and change the face of Europe, as the official Nazi bulletins claimed sweeping new advances in Belgian and French Flanders which have reduced "enemy territory" in this sector to two small "pockets."

Ostend, Bruges, Lille, Ypres, Armentieres and other cities and towns in the areas have fallen almost "over night," it was stated, and the "lost army" of the Anglo-French Allies, encircled in the great battle of envelopment, has been split wide open to form the two pockets into which the Germans are pushing.

The supreme command reported the split was made by two German armies which broke through from the east and west and joined forces near Lille, south of the Franco-Belgian border.

Most of Coast Held

As the Belgians, concentrated largely in the north of Flanders, laid down their arms, the Germans in that sector pushed swiftly westward through Bruges and on to Ostend, and tonight the Nazis claimed strategic control of all but a small section of the Belgian coastline, northeast of Dunkerque.

Dunkerque, only French claimed port which still holds out, is now threatened by German detachments pushing along the coast from both sides and was reported today by the supreme command to be "under the fire of our heavy artillery."

Thus, except for a strip of 27 miles on either side of Dunkerque, Germany occupied tonight the continental coast facing Britain from far in the north in Norway to the Somme Valley, in France.

"Resistance Broken"

The split in the Allied forces has served, the bulletin asserted, to thrust the main body of the French in one pocket and the main body of the British in the other.

Their "resistance broken" after "intensive fighting," the bulk of the French troops involved are penned, it was claimed, in an oval area south of Lille, about 20 miles long, and 12 to 15 miles wide.

According to the official bulletin, the bulk of the trapped British troops with some French detachments are huddled in the second "pocket" which is in the form of an irregular triangle, with two of the angles on the coast on either side of Dunkerque and the third at some point north of Lille.

Coming up from the south, German forces attacked from the rear the French frontier fortifications east of Cassel, it was claimed, and breaking through, swept on east-

'It Was Just Hell'

Tommies Land In Britain 'Like Men Asleep'

By Wallace Carroll,
United Press Staff Writer

London (Thursday), May 30.—Shattered remnants of the British Expeditionary Force—blood-stained, muddy, and walking like men asleep—began arriving in British ports early today.

Most of the first arrivals were wounded. They described a constant German bombing and strafing bombardment of the French ports from which Viscount Gort is attempting to save his trapped divisions.

B. E. F. casualties arriving today said the shattered British forces were "sliding off a stretch of coast 30 miles long." They revealed some of the men had to walk into the water to reach shallow draft ships.

Others left the beaches in rowboats and small fishing craft, and were picked up at sea by Allied ships.

Bombs Rain Down

German bombs rained down continually, even on hospital ships, they said. Quays and harbor works of the French ports were under terrific German air attacks which went on all through last night.

Hair-raising stories of the ferocity of the German mechanized attack were told by B. E. F. survivors. One British private said:

"I have never imagined anything like it, even in my worst nightmares. It was just Hell. I was near the German lines at the beginning of their big push. Throughout the fighting I saw very few German infantrymen—only tanks, bombs, flame-throwers and planes.

God Only Knows

"One night I was sleeping on duckboards only a few kilometers from the German lines. As dawn came their planes came over and rained down shrieking explosives for two hours. Then came their tanks.

"How I got back, God only knows."

Another British soldier said the Germans advanced in wave after

Today and Tomorrow

For the Immediate Defense Of American Interests

By Walter Lippmann

THE NATION must not be misled into thinking that its task is to prepare itself to defend its vital interests at some unknown time in the future when we have managed to organize the capacity to produce four thousand planes a month. Time is not our ally. We lost that ally of ours, namely the time which democracies need in order to muddle through, when we refused to lift a finger to prevent the war and when later we allowed ourselves to be bound hand and foot in a stiff and stupid neutrality. Whether all the people of the United States have as yet realized it or not, America has already suffered a tremendous defeat. It is a defeat which can be redressed. But it can be redressed only by enormous courage, unflinching sacrifice, and the utmost lucidity and wisdom in our leaders.

The vital interests of America have to be defended now—in the next days and weeks—and by the means now at our disposal. Let no one throw up his hands. They can be defended. But first of all the air must be cleared of the panic which has paralyzed us for two years—a panic born of ignorance of the strategic position in the world, and then assiduously nurtured by native demagogues and foreign agents. I mean the panic about sending our boys to Europe. This panic is now and always has been absolutely groundless because, every other consideration apart, it has always been impossible in this war for us to raise, train, and equip a great army and convoy it to Europe. But the unreal fear that

Canals Opened to Guard Dunkerque; Some Belgians Still in Battle; Retreat Is Harried by Terrific Fire

The War Today

THE FRENCH PORT OF DUNKERQUE, hammered by German bombs and shells, is the key point in the closing phase of the Battle of Flanders, which the Allies now admit has been won by the Germans.

THE MILLION ALLIED TROOPS caught ten days ago in a German "pocket" in northern France and western Belgium had dwindled to less than 500,000, desperately fighting to escape through Dunkerque.

AN UNKNOWN NUMBER of French and British troops were cut off from the main body, in a "second pocket" south of Lille, when Germans slashed through from north and south to take that important industrial city, and with it Armentieres, the home of "Mademoiselle."

FRENCH NAVAL GUNS, British planes, and the flood-waters of the Yser River and the Dunkerque Canal were called upon to help hold the port from Nazis driving from north and south along the coast.

ALONG THE LAND SIDES of the Triangular battle, British divisions were fighting again at Ypres and other points to protect their retreating comrades. French troops at Nieuport, and around Lille, and a few loyal Belgians, protected other sectors.

GERMANY SHIFTED TO FRANCE her propaganda guns with dark hints of an impending drive on Paris across the 200-mile Somme-Aisne line, where the French report minor gains, but Britain continued her home defense preparations—military and psychological.

Bitter Battle Reaches Its Climax

By Henry C. Cassidy
Associated Press Staff Writer

Paris, May 29.—The Allies tonight gave up as lost the Battle of Flanders and, in a great retreat, opened the flood sluices around Dunkerque to guard their last port of escape on the sea.

The bloody conflict in the north was all but over, with the Germans, in control of France's northern industrial region and her northwest coast, across from England.

At least, however, the battle had given the Allies time to build a strong southern front along the Somme and Aisne Rivers, for 200 miles across France.

The virtual collapse of the Allied cause in Flanders, after the Belgian army's surrender ordered by King Leopold, left their flanks laid open—came amid scenes of fire and flood.

While the waters rose steadily in the vast system of streams around Dunkerque, French divisions fought across the tortured landscape to hold the rear while British troops defended the main points of passage for the main forces seeking the coastline.

The Allies brought on the inundation by opening the locks southwest and northeast of Dunkerque, on the great canal that flows by the city and follows the coast for many miles.

In Dunkerque, the last Allied resistance was rallied under Vice Admiral Jean Marie Abrial, 61-year-old commander of the port. The Allied armies, navies and air forces fought together in an effort to save as much as possible from the wreckage of Flanders.

Sailors and Fliers Struggle to Keep Exit Open

The retreat was harassed by heavy German fire. Some Belgian units, refusing to lay down their arms despite their King's order to capitulate, were reported still fighting beside the British and French.

A single French division which had been stationed with the Belgians as the backbone of their front tried to hold back the Nazi rush at the Yser River, in the Nieuport-Dixmude sector, a World War battlefield on the coast northeast of Dunkerque.

Copying the successful Belgian strategy of 1914, which stopped the Germans on this same line, the Allies opened the Yser locks at Nieuport, seeking to flood the Yser Valley to help protect the northern flank of the retreating troops.

Suicide squads also held out on the eastern and southern sides of the Allied path to the sea. Some Allied units had to fight through German columns.

Dunkerque, manned by French sailors, was the last island of solid Allied positions.

The rest of the battlefield was a maelstrom of free-for-all fighting, lighted up by blazing fires.

Airplanes tangled in the heavy clouds hanging over the battle area. Allied navy dive-bombers, using the low-flying tactics they employ against submarines and warships, plunged on German tanks.

American-made bombers, newly arrived, operated effectively, but too late to turn the tide.

Sharpshooters Hold Germans in Streets of Lille

The Germans made Lille, the industrial center of northern France, and Calais, on the Channel straits of Dover, particular battlegrounds. But their advance was slowed by Allied sharpshooters waging guerrilla warfare in the fields and fighting in the streets of the cities.

And tonight, toward the vital city of Dunkerque, the bulk of an entrapped army of half a million was backing.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

MORE QUIRKS IN THE ARMY

Young Senator Lodge has been out at the sham battles on the Sabine River, having a look at just about all the Army we could put into the field thoroughly equipped, 70,000 men.

A few of these eleventh hour criticisms are his; some of them are from other Senators and from other Army officials.

* * * *

Harlan Miller

As a captain in the First Mechanized Cavalry, Senator Lodge puts on his uniform for a fortnight or longer every year, sleeps in pup tents, slogs across the countryside through the mud, sometimes goes without meals for 24 hours, gets a good look at the Army's kinks from the soldier's view.

* * * *

Also, as a Senator, and as a member of the Senate's subcommittee on military appropriations, he gets the brass hats' slant.

He hears all the brags and all the grief, all the cries for more money and all the alibis, sees the shifting inside off-the-record picture of military innovations and new perils across the seas.

* * * *

Lodge is a good soldier, too, the older officers say.

He is such a good soldier that he went to the maneuvers, because he thought it his duty, when the impending arrival of a third little Lodge made him want to stay home.

More Senators and more sons of the patrician families might follow his example.

"—Fifth Column: an army problem?"

One of the smaller things (to begin with the little troubles) that is bothering men like Senator Lodge is the menace of the Fifth Column, that new-fangled weapon as old as treachery.

They feel that the Fifth Column is partly, if not largely, a military force, already at war against us, whose invasion of America began before this war began.

* * * *

If so, they feel the Army should be empowered to cope with it, as it would cope with a less menacin force of invading soldiers in rowboats off Atlantic City . . .

So they are asking for a special military intelligence force of 40 commissioned officers and 200 enlisted men, and the legal authority to reinforce the F. B. I. and the Department of Justice in pursuing saboteurs, spies and agitators who impede the Nation's defense.

* * * *

Another innovation they want is the establishment of "shadow plants"—munitions factories with no peacetime production, but ready to go into action in an emergency. Costly, but vital.

They point out that we are short of ordinary gunpowder, have no place to make it, and that Atlas, Hercules and Dupont would need 1½ years even to begin to meet requirements.

* * * *

They assert, also, that if we must guard two oceans with one Navy and one Canal, the Army must be increased promptly from 450,000 initial effectives to at least 700,000. And they want a separate set of Panama Canal locks at the earliest moment, reserved exclusively for Navy use, safe from sabotage.

* * * *

These men are trying to awake the country to the criminal folly of frittering away our Army and its appropriations on dozens of small meaningless "forts" which have no excuse for existence.

They want the Army concentrated in five or six great military centers, one in each of the four quarters of the country, and perhaps one or two in the central valley.

"—the general: need practice"

Partly they want our troops concentrated this way for strategic reasons, but much more they want this so our rusty generals can get some practice.

Our doughboys, even our militia, get a chance to shoot a gun occasionally. But our corps and full-size Army commanders never get a chance to play with a corps or an Army, and that they regard a profound danger.

* * * *

Some of our officials are alarmed, because some of the Army generals are so smug, unimaginative, stodgy and incredulous that war's strategy changes.

Many officers still vow after one beer that there's nothing like the good old cavalry . . .

I'd bet $1 I can find a general within a mile of the War College who is still skeptical of the efficacy of airplanes.

* * * *

A few killjoys in Washington think that instead of sitting around on their fannies marveling in a daze at the innovations of the present war, some of the Army's best minds should be devising new tactics and new equipment for the next one that would defeat blitzkrieg warfare.

* * * *

Finally, Senator Lodge and some of his friends devoutly pray that instead of four committees on Capitol Hill to mire the defense program, one joint committee will take the lead out of its pants—no matter who gets the credit for streamlining—Lodge or some good Democrat.

$656,000,000 'Add 10%' Defense Tax Bill To Be Introduced in House Today

'No Politics' Pledged; Economy on Other Spending Urged

By Robert C. Albright

Post Staff Writer

House tax draftsmen yesterday whipped swiftly into bill form a $656,000,000 "add 10 per cent" National defense tax measure and appealed for nonpartisan action to supply needed revenue quickly.

"No politics" pledges were heard in both Senate and House and leaders predicted unprecedented speed. But in the Senate Finance committee a coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats urged basic tax law revision and nondefense spending cuts.

A Republican proposal for Congressional recess until September to afford time for fundamental tax law revisions was heard in the Senate.

Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means committee announced detailed provisions of the Administration bill to be offered today, raising the national debt limit $3,000,000,000, directing issuance of the same amount of securities, and providing taxes to mature them in five years.

Morgenthau to Testify

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau will appear before the House committee tomorrow to testify on the following specific tax features:

Supertax of 10 per cent on individual and corporate income taxes for 1940 to yield an estimated $226,000,000 annually.

Supertax of 10 per cent on Federal excise levies, effective July 1, to provide another $76,000,000 annually.

An increase in the Federal tax on gasoline (collectible at the source), from 1 to 1½ cents a gallon, to produce $112,000,000.

A raise in the Federal tax on beer from $5 to $6 a barrel, to supply $46,000,000.

A step-up in the tax on liquor from $2.25 to $3 a gallon, to raise $91,000,000.

A cigarette tax increase from $3 to $3.50 per thousand, to bring $77,000,000.

Reduction from 40 to 30 cents in tax exemption on theater admissions and other amusements, to raise $25,000,000.

A 20 per cent increase in the transfer tax on stocks and bonds, to yield $3,000,000.

Yield Expanded.

The bill will take substantially the form discussed at Tuesday's Treasury conferences, except that estimates were revised overnight and changes were ordered in detail.

Under the hastily prepared measure, no fundamental changes would be made in the basic tax structure, but the yield from the existing law would be expanded. Thus an individual now paying a $50 Federal income tax would simply have 10 per cent added and pay instead—$55.

The 10 per cent excise tax step up would increase levies in the so-called "nuisance" class, such as on automobiles, tires and inner tubes, toilet articles and radios. So-called "regulatory" excises, such as that on oleomargarine, would not be changed.

The 20 per cent transfer tax on securities moves up the bond transfer levy, now 4 cents per $100 of face value, and the stock transfer tax, now 4 cents per $100 if transferred at a price below $20 and 5 cents if transferred at a higher price.

House leaders are anxious to dispense with further hearings after Morgenthau testifies tomorrow, but will put the question to a committee vote. One spokesman said the Administration is anxious to win the same bipartisan unanimity of action obtained on defense legislation.

Treadway Backs Byrd's Idea

Doughton said he would not invite anyone else to appear tomorrow, "but the door will be open."

House Republicans speedily pledged nonpartisan "cooperation," but said this did not mean acceptance of the specific schedules proposed.

Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, ranking Republican, said "the bill could be a lot worse, but I think it can be improved."

Treadway indorsed the combination tax-economy approach recommended by Senator Byrd (Democrat), Virginia. Treadway said no House minority decisions will be reached until after Morgenthau testifies, but said, "I think we should find means of reducing nondefense spending at one end if we raise taxes at the other."

While House Ways and Means Committee members heard the tax plan in a meeting described by Doughton as "harmonious," the Senate Finance Committee heard counter-proposals to cut spending, remake the whole tax structure, and lop Congressional salaries if need be avoid an increase in the debt limit.

Sentiment for Overhauling

Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts; Senator Connally, of Texas, and Senator King, of Utah, said there was a strong expression of committee sentiment for overhauling the entire tax structure. They agreed with Administration spokesmen that scant time remains to complete such a task, but favored interim studies looking to broader tax action next session.

Coalition support also was voiced in committee for the Byrd plan to couple any emergency tax action with retroactive appropriation cuts, with the dual action being taken in the same bill. Reported sympathetic to such a move, in addition to minority members, were such Finance Committee Democrats as Bailey, of North Carolina; George, of Georgia; Gerry, of Rhode Island; Clark, of Missouri, and Radcliffe, of Maryland.

Associated with the movement to overhaul the tax structure is the wide Senate sentiment for lowering income tax exemptions on both married and single persons, formerly proposed by Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, and once espoused by the President. Complaint was voiced that the proposed tax bill hits only those persons now paying taxes.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, not a member of the committee, declared for the economy axe to sounder finances. Wheeler ...ORIA, ILL. ...10 per cent Federal salary ... "everybody from the head ... the Government down, including members of Congress" and elimination of unnecessary Federal bureaus. Byrd previously had declared for a 10 per cent Congressional salary slash.

legislation broadening the authority of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to enable it to finance industrial expansion for national defense. Loans under the measure could be made for expanding plants, buying equipment and laying in reserves of strategic war materials.

President Roosevelt asked Congress for an additional $1,200,000 to expand facilities at the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics Research Station at Langley Field and $76,750 for acquiring land adjoining the Choctawhatchee National Forest, Fla., so the area might be transferred to the Army as an aircraft bombing range.

The new Army program, over and above the $1,182,00,000 emergency defense fund put before Congress two weeks ago, would swell the total preparedness bill for the fiscal year beginning July 1 to above $4,000,000,000.

The exact amount of the supplemental appropriations to be asked and everything to be included is not yet definitely decided, officials said. About half of the total, however, is expected to go for immediate orders for 3,000 fighting planes.

The remainder would purchase several thousand tanks, scout cars and other mechanized equipment, as well as additional anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns. Other millions would be used to provide additional facilities for producing munitions, to speed up completion of the program already projected.

President John L. Lewis of the C. I. O. charged in a letter to Chairman Walsh of the Senate Naval Committee that two sections of the Vinson shipbuilding bill which passed the House Tuesday violated President Roosevelt's pledge that labor standards would not be relaxed in the preparedness program. He urged amendments to assure the Walsh-Healy and wage-hour acts would apply to all naval contracts.

Essentials of the new Army program were agreed upon at a White House conference yesterday attended by Secretary Woodring, Secretary Morgenthau, Assistant War Secretary Louis Johnson and Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff.

Lessons were learned from recent German victories in the Low Countries. One authoritative source declared the American Army's new 37-mm. antitank gun would have to be replaced by heavier weapons, citing reports the Allies have had to use their 75-mm. field artillery to stop German tanks.

A new light machine gun and anti-aircraft batteries specially designed to meet dive bombers are other weapons believed necessary in the light of the new battle technique developed by Germans, it was said.

Under the program already presented the Army would be equipped with about 1,150 modern tanks, divided into one mechanized division and three regiments supporting infantry divisions. Two or three additional mechanized divisions are contemplated, Congressional sources reported.

The Army now has on hand or order 5,500 planes of all types, with some 2,500 others which would be bought with emergency funds already asked of Congress. Nearly half of these, however, are training craft or miscellaneous types not classed as fighting ships.

Guardia of New York also had urged a separate air force, but declared it a matter too late now even to discuss. He called on the United States to forget personalities and grant the President authority to declare a "production emergency."

Says Politics Retards Air Defense

Williams, noted speed flier, who resigned a commission in the Navy in 1930 when he was ordered to sea duty as a deck officer, said last night that air defense development has been retarded by politics and bureaucracy.

"Our politicians," he said, "are following the death march of the British admirals in preventing the full development of real American airpower by opposing the creation of a unified, separate air force." He echoed the much criticized recent declaration of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh that the United States is not in danger of invasion.

The schedule by which invading planes might fly from Greenland to the United States, as outlined by Mr. Roosevelt in his defense speech to Congress, Williams labeled "panicky, ridiculous, worthy of Hollywood, and certainly not of the White House."

"Four hours from Greenland to Newfoundland," he said, "five hours to Nova Scotia and then six hours to New England! As an airline schedule those figures might be sustained, but given to us as the flight schedule of an air invasion of America, they are deceiving and panic-creating for ordinary people who the President knows are not able to interpret them.

Figures Create Terror, He Says

"Such figures, creating panic and terror, are expected to induce peace-loving Americans to plunge into this conflict now, in the belief that they would be forestalling some future disaster."

Planes and time, not money, build airpower, Williams declared, and said "all the $18,000,000,000 of gold in Kentucky cannot produce one expert airman or one additional plane for America tomorrow morning. The United States can build airpower, he said, "only by entrusting its development to specialists, and freeing those specialists from service and party politics."

But, he warned, in developing "real American airpower, for which airplanes are the last things to be provided," it must be remembered that "a national air defense policy must come first to lay down the principles of our needs, which in every event, must encompass a separate and unified air force."

"Of what avail," he asked, "are logic and reason? The Allies don't want our Army or our Navy. They want our airplanes to make good their neglect to see the light we are trying to make Mr. Roosevelt see now . . . And Mr. Roosevelt wants to give them airplanes right now—without first providing an American air force organization for the permanent air defense of America.

Inarticulate Too Long

"We have been inarticulate too long; it is time for the real blood of America to take stock of these men who are running our Government and to demand that they free themselves from bureaucratic prejudices and taboos and heed the lessons of dominant air power which are being so cruelly taught in Europe today.

"Not one penny for any such system as recommended by the President for buying airplanes—since this system is typical of the years eaten by the locusts! And not one penny until we are sure that with a three-department national defense—Army, Navy and Air—the return of the locusts will be prevented. Real American airpower is possible only under such a system, and it is the only means by which our so-called 'mystic security' can be converted into the actual security we deserve for the safety of America—and for peace, instead of panic, in the minds of Americans."

Farley Touches on Free Speech

Farley departed from his prepared address to remind the audience of the institution of free speech in a democracy and declared himself "not competent to discuss intelligently the arguments offered by Mr. Williams as to the desirability of an independent air force. I am satisfied that if we will all keep our feet on the ground and not get too excited and not be disturbed by a wave of hysteria, all will be right in America."

The Nation's thoughts now, he continued from his prepared address "are compelled to turn to plans for preparing ourselves against whatever danger the future may hold. We know, if we are capable of understanding, that no nation is safe unless able to defend itself. We know, as the President has so graphically pointed out, that even our interior cities are within flying distance of possible airplane bases that could be used by an aggressive invader."

But, he said, "we intend to keep the United States safe and we do not propose to let any warlike power obtain a new base on American territory that might be used in the future to endanger the peace or safety of the people of this Nation."

LaGuarida, at the afternoon session of the forum, urged that automobile factories be put to building aircraft engines instead of new model automobiles. Patents, he declared, should be seized by the Government if necessary.

He was heard by an audience considerably smaller than the number of those who had intended being there. Bustling into the Commerce Department Auditorium an hour before his scheduled appearance, LaGuardia insisted on speaking then and there. He spoke.

The only way to achieve prompt and sufficient aircraft production, LaGuardia said, is to "stop thinking about the party or the personality or the geographical location of the individual. That has nothing to do with it. We have plenty of talent in this country.

"Congress simply provides authority to the President at any time that he feels conditions warrant it to declare a production emergency. Now, mark you, I am not asking for a general emergency of war powers, but simply to define a production emergency as being a situation where certain weapons of war or equipment for the Army and Navy are required in a short time of delivery."

At Bolling Field, crowds poured to the Air Show in such overwhelming numbers that officials of the National Aeronautics Association, after a hasty conference with field authorities, announced the show would be held over through today. Estimates were that more than 100,000 persons have poured through the bottleneck of Nichols avenue in Anacostia to visit the show since it opened Sunday.

U. S. Must Aid Allies at Once, Conant Says

Military Situation Threatens Our Way Of Life, He Declares

By the Associated Press

Boston, May 29.—President James B. Conant, of Harvard, declaring that "the changed military situation in Europe actually threatens our way of life," called tonight for immediate aid to the Allies by this country in the form of arms and supplies.

He declared a total victory for German arms was now "well within the range of possibility."

"To my mind a complete Nazi victory over France and England is by necessity but a prelude to Hitler's attempt to dominate the world," said the educator in a prepared Nation-wide radio address, adding:

"At this moment, the entry of the United States into the war certainly does not seem necessary or wise. For the present we are not prepared to render more aid as an active belligerent than we can render as a non-belligerent."

. . . "The actions we propose might eventuate in war," he said, "but fear of war is no basis for a national policy. In a free state public opinion must guide the government. And a wise public opinion on matters of foreign policy can result only if there is a continuous, clear-headed, realistic discussion of all eventualities, including war . . .

"If our actions short of war are immediate and effective, they may suffice. If, on the other hand, we continue to be confused in our thinking and dilatory in our actions, our aid may come too late." . . .

Speaking under the auspices of the committee to defend America by aiding the Allies, Conant urged that citizens petition Congress to stay in session to consider emergency legislation for Allied aid and to speed the process of our own rearmament.

Indorses U. S. Participation

Copyright by New York Times

New York, May 29.—Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan, retired commander of the Twenty-seventh Division in the World War, recommended the shipment of 1,000 fighting planes to the Allies today in an indorsement of active American participation in the European war.

"I believe that 1,000 fighting aircraft and bombers, sent to the Allies, will have greater value to our American interests in a defensive way than would the sending of three times that number six months from now," he said.

N.A.M. Pledges To Accelerate U. S. Defenses

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 29.—The National Association of Manufacturers today pledged the "experience and utmost energy" of its 7,000 members to the task of building the Nation's defenses.

Directors of the organization, embracing approximately 40,000 industrial plants, promised to cooperate wholeheartedly with the Army, Navy and the National Defense Commission named by President Roosevelt and expressed opposition to profiteering.

They urged that the key job of procuring military equipment be placed in the hands of "practical, experienced civilians," suggested that ample private capital could be used for factory expansion and new machinery if tax laws and regulations were modified, advocated removal of "legislative and Administrative restrictions on industrial production," and declared that provisions must be made for "capacity operation, day and night."

Must Define Defense Area

The industrialists issued a statement stressing these points:

"Congress must define the area which the United States is to defend. Military experts must determine the measures for defense. But private production must provide a major part of the arms and equipment required by our forces on land and sea and in the air."

"The bottleneck of supply is procurement—specifications, purchase inspection and delivery. For successful results, procurement must be put in the hands of practical, experienced civilians" to preclude "long delays and very high costs."

A shortage of skilled labor exists, but, "given the necessary procurement orders promptly, industry can train all the skilled labor required adequately and quickly."

"Production for national defense requires the expansion of plants and equipment, which, in the light of World War experiences, will be virtually valueless when the emergency is past. Ample private capital is available to finance the necessary expansion of plant and equipment. Its use must be encouraged, because it will, to this extent, prevent increase in the national debt. But it is clear that tax laws and regulations must be modified to permit wiping out the investment during the useful life of the facilities."

Railroads Ready, Says Pelley

J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, told the organization's directors yesday that the railroads were adequately equipped to meet any demands that might be made upon them as a result of the national defense program.

Matthew S. Sloan, president of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad, was elected a director of the association yesterday to succeed J. M. Kurn, trustee of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway, resigned.

Donald Nelson Is Drafted For Defense

DONALD NELSON

Sears, Roebuck Aide Becomes Director Of Procurement

The Administration drafted another business leader to facilitate the defense program yesterday, appointing Donald M. Nelson, of Chicago, as procurement director of the Treasury.

Supplementing appointment by the President Tuesday of a defense commission to coordinate the armament program, Nelson was placed in the key position of the Government's purchasing agent.

The appointment also carried with it the chairmanship of the President's committee to coordinate foreign and domestic airplane and other military purchases.

Nelson succeeds Capt. Harry E. Collins, who resigned to become manager of the export department of Bell Aircraft Corporation, Buffalo, N. Y. He is already here although technically the appointment becomes effective Saturday.

Nelson is executive vice president of Sears-Roebuck & Co.

Hoover Attacks Program

By the Associated Press

New York, May 29.—Herbert Hoover said "we need action now and not advisory reports for the files," in commenting today on appointment of an advisory defense commission by President Roosevelt.

The former President's statement also took Assistant Secretary of War Johnson to task for a radio speech last night, in which Johnson criticized Hoover's suggestion that a one-man defense administrator be appointed.

Mr. Hoover's statement:

"In view of the crisis we face and all the exposures of the past month, the country will be disappointed that President Roosevelt has chosen to set up another advisory committee instead of reorganizing the War and Navy Departments and appointing somebody from industry for the production of munitions.

"There are three or four good men on this committee, and the country will gain confidence in it if it boldly insists that these things be done at once.

"Certainly Assistant Secretary of War Johnson last night demonstrated that his capacities at political smearing exceed the capacities he has shown in past years in production of airplanes and guns.

"We need action now, and not advisory reports for the files."

Hull Relaxes Rules to Speed Planes to Allies

U. S. Fliers May Now Cross Line, Pilot Craft To Canadian Ports

Secretary of State Hull yesterday issued a regulation to speed the delivery of American-made planes to the Allies.

The regulation, which modifies earlier regulations based on the Neutrality Act, permits American pilots to fly new warplanes over the Canadian provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

Heretofore this territory has been proscribed to American nationals flying belligerent planes, and the result has been a delay in getting the planes to such important ports as Halifax, Nova Scotia.

The practice has been for an American pilot to fly a plane to the Canadian border. There a transfer of title would take place and the plane would be pushed across the border, after which the pilot would resume his journey.

However, the American could not go beyond the western borders of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Another pilot—Canadian, British, or French—would take over at this point and continue to Halifax or St. Johns.

Under the regulation promulgated yesterday by Secretary Hull, the American national will be able to make the entire journey, although it still will be necessary for him to halt at the international line and have the plane pushed across after transfer of title.

Hatch Bill Is Reported

it's going to pass the House," Dempsey joyfully commented last night.

Six Democrats on the committee were joined by the entire minority of 10 Republicans in indorsing the bill, while Chairman Sumners of the committee and seven other Democrats voted in the negative.

The bill approved yesterday is Senator Hatch's redraft of the measure that passed the Senate March 18, plus several far-reaching amendments tacked on by the House Judiciary Committee.

One of these restricts to $3,000,000 the amount which any political party can receive or spend during a calendar year. In the 1936 campaign, the Republicans spent over $8,000,000, and the Democrats more than $5,000,000. The Senate bill already contained a limitation of $5,000 on individual campaign contributions.

As if to balance these provisions—which were generally regarded as more harmful to the Republicans than the Democrats—the committee added an amendment aimed directly at the sale of campaign books such as aided the Democrats during the last Presidential election.

This amendment forbids any person or association to buy goods or advertising "where the proceeds of such a purchase . . . shall directly or indirectly inure to the benefit" of candidates for Federal office or of political organizations.

In still another important amendment to the Hatch bill, the Judiciary Committee proposed that persons found by the Civil Service Commission to have violated the law should be granted trial by jury on their appeal to the courts.

Observing that this provision might tend to clog enforcement of the law, Dempsey commented that "the Civil Service Commission has had the right for 50 years to fire employes without a jury trial; yet it is now proposed to give to the 'patronage boys' a privilege that employes of the classified civil service do not have."

Red Cross War Relief Fund Drive Gains As Miss Boardman Appeals to All to Help

D. C. Quota Increased To $300,000, With Only $54,757 Pledged

The drive for war relief funds by the District Red Cross began to gain momentum yesterday, but the campaign's contribution total of $54,757.03, including receipts to 6 p. m., was far short of the new quota of $300,000.

Drive leaders emphasized, however, that the campaign was "just getting started," and expressed full confidence the goal would be attained, despite an order from National headquarters doubling the original $150,000 quota.

Last night Miss Mabel T. Boardman spurred 1,000 volunteer campaign workers with a personal appeal for fulfillment of "the first and greatest of all Red Cross obligations."

Miss Boardman's Appeal

In a letter to Gen. F. R. Keefer, chairman of the District chapter, Miss Boardman declared:

"I appeal to the men of America to remember those other men who, facing danger and death themselves, must undergo the mental anguish of fear for their bewildered, suffering mothers, wives and children.

"I appeal to the mothers of America, whose children sleep in the safety of their homes, who walk under peaceful skies, for help for those other mothers without their men, fleeing from their ruined homes, babies in their arms, frightened children clinging to their skirts, while bombing planes rain destruction from their skies.

"I appeal to the happy childhood of America for their aid to lessen the sufferings and miseries of their fellow-children overseas."

Baird Pledges Support

Bruce Baird, campaign chairman, replied that "Washington can be counted upon to do all that is possible to raise the necessary money."

Yesterday's collections totaled $8,350.95. The booth in the Carlton Hotel reported an anonymous lump sum gift of $500. Mrs. Howard Vickery, member of the Gray Lady Unit of Naval Hospital, reported from a booth in a downtown store receipt of a $100 bill from Mrs. George A. Carney, 2158 Thirtieth street northeast.

Treasury Sends $1,309

Leading contributor among Government organizations was the Treasury Department with $1,309.50, of which $1,117.80 came from employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Mrs. Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian Minister, presented a $100 check on behalf of the Norwegian surgical dressing unit of the chapter. Other larger contributions came from the United States Supreme Court, $597.35; Department of Agriculture, $168, and Smithsonian Institution, $77.85. Holton-Arms School contributed $50 to the National Children's Fund, and B'nai B'rith, $78.41 to the Polish Red Cross.

National headquarters announced it hopes to get emergency supplies aboard the S. S. Washington, sailing today, while larger consignments will be loaded aboard the "mercy ship," the 6,198-ton freighter McKeesport, which will leave New York early in June.

Nazi Methods Charged in R. I. Investigation

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

Counsel for the Senate committees on wire tapping charged yesterday that a private detective agency employed by Gov. William H. Vanderbilt used "Gestapo methods" in its investigations in Rhode Island.

The assertion by William P. Maloney came after Attorney General Louis V. Jackvony, of Rhode Island, read recommendations from the Frank Bielaski Agency's confidential report to Vanderbilt. Bielaski agents tapped Jackvony's phone wire in the course of their investigation last year.

Bielaski, another witness before the committee, had refused to place his copy of the report in the record, contending that publicity would impede the work of the Rhode Island grand jury investigating alleged election frauds and municipal corruption. Jackvony agreed that publication of the investigator's findings would be harmful, but read selected "general recommendations" from his copy of the Bielaski report.

Coercion Suggested

"The report shows that Bielaski and his group don't care whether or not blackmail is used in their investigations," the Attorney General said.

Bielaski recommended that prospective witnesses be threatened with exposure of their private life if they were reluctant to furnish information sought, by the investigators Jackvony said. He said one passage in the report recommended that "a dictograph record can be used as a club over the head of young so-and-so."

Jackvony said he refused to use such tactics, adding that "the threatening of witnesses is un-American, and I think there are certain American fundamentals we had better stand by."

The report consisted chiefly of evidence already known to him and "a few pieces of unsupported hearsay," Jackvony testified. Gov. Vanderbilt paid $15,500 of his own funds for the Bielaski investigation.

Withdraws Kickback Charge

Bielaski yesterday withdrew from the record his assertion last week that a "10 per cent club based on kickbacks from contractors" existed in Indiana.

He admitted he was "in error" about the "10 per cent figure" but insisted that "some kickbacks" were made.

Senator Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, who had demanded that Bielaski produce evidence to support his original charges before the committee, told the investigator:

"The report shows that Bielaski and his group don't care whether or not blackmail is used in their investigations," the Attorney General said.

New Deal Fails To Merit Trust, Taft Charges

Ohio Senator Cites 'Complete Incapacity' Of the Administration

Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, declared last night the American people cannot trust the Roosevelt Administration to carry through an effective program of national defense.

In a radio speech on national defense the Ohio Senator, candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, charged the New Deal with failures that leave "no possible argument for the present Administration."

"It has failed to develop an army and navy with essential modern weapons," he said.

"It has shown its complete incapacity in the field of finance.

"Hostile to Industry"

"It has shown its unwillingness to abate by one jot its hostility to industry, or its adherence to all the bureaucratic activities of the New Deal.

"It is proposing to destroy any possible unity in the United States by insisting on a third term, in violation of all the traditions and principles of the American Republic."

Taft said it was impossible for this country to have "everything in the world at one time."

"We can't have battleships, and still go on adding dams and parks and postoffices," he declared discussing President Roosevelt's radio statement last Monday night that we need make no change in our life or our economy or our Government policy.

"We can continue to strive against unequal distribution of opportunity, but we can't have all the frills that have looked so tempting during the past five years."

Coordination Held Lacking

He added that "New Deal spending has been the first love of the Administration," and that "billions have been spent for purposes having a much closer relation to domestic politics than has national defense." The Senator charged "an obvious lack of coordination between the different departments of the Government."

"Secretary Swanson was ill for many months. Secretary Edison was not appointed for a long time after he (Swanson) died, and now is running for Governor of New Jersey.

"The Secretary of War and the Assistant Secretary of War are not on speaking terms. Aggressive secretaries would have secured better consideration for the defense programs.

Comments on Debts

"Construction work in the Navy apparently has been very slow, much slower for instance than the Japanese work on their new battleships. It has been partly due to unnecessary New Deal restrictions, so numerous and hampering that many business men will not take a Government contract except as a matter of duty."

Taft said the people "ought to accept" the proposed new defense taxes, "but they ought also to realize that the real cause of additional taxes is the tremendous deficit for ordinary peacetime expenditures plus the colossal size of the existing debt."

Soldier-Artist Recalls Horror Of War in Poem for Holiday

'Memories Come Back So Strongly' for A. E. F. Veteran J. C. Cowell

Because "the memories come back so strongly" and because, for the first time since he "came back," he won't be with his wife and daughter on Decoration Day, Joseph Goss Cowell, painter, and former A. E. F. sergeant, last night sent home this message:

"Veterans parading—children dropping flowers,
Young men dropping bombs—flowers of horror;
Hate on the march—no room for love
That waits for death and other memorial days.
"But earth ignores our frenzy,
Seasons continue their march,
New leaves have forgotten the winter,
And children laugh while they scatter flowers."

In 1918, Cowell, of 1299 Massachusetts avenue northwest, then a rising artist of 33, laid down his brush to join the United States Army Tank Corps in France.

There he rose to the rank of sergeant, and saw service he is loathe to discuss even now. But while he moved with the Yankee troops sent over in the name of an ideal, he painted doughboys in mud-caked uniforms, and the ruins of Rheims.

Each year since he has marched with American Legion's George W. MacInnis Post, No. 225, of Wrentham, Mass., his former home, and with him marched his daughter Jean, now 25.

Decoration Day, 1940, brings war again into the mind of the painter, and it will not be a day which he can commemorate as of old with his family.

JOSEPH GOSS COWELL

"I'm alone here . . . those things come back strongly now," said the artist who came here to carry on an art therapy program in a local hospital, and who next year will head a new fine arts section at National Art School here.

Since he was alone, and wanted to express the battle horrors he had known and their significance for him today, he sat down and wrote his poem. Last night he mailed it to Wrentham.

Central Area Youth Council May Launch Girls' Club

Members of the Central Area Youth Council, representing seven midcity Protestant churches, may soon launch a girls' club project, The Post learned yesterday.

The youths, who have attracted citywide praise for a war on rats, have named a committee to study plans for the project, according to the Rev. Edwin Tuller, assistant pastor of Calvary Baptist Church and temporary council head.

The committee, of which Miss Jamea Miller, National City Christian Church, is chairman, and Miss Mary Kjalgaard, New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, is secretary, is scheduled to meet Monday at 8 p. m. at the Washington Federation of Churches' Building, 1749-51 N street northwest.

Plans will be made also for a joint Daily Vacation Bible School, to be conducted in cooperation with the Temple Center, Tenth and N streets northwest.

The girls' club project, need for which was brought to the Council's attention by young people of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, may be centered in the National City Church social hall, Vermont avenue near Logan Circle. Other cooperating congregations of the council are Luther Place Memorial and First Congregational churches and Metropolitan (colored) Baptist Church.

Meanwhile, continuing its campaign against rats, the council will meet Saturday at 9 a. m. at Mount Vernon Church to mix exterminating material. The council has decided upon a combination of oatmeal, hamburger or salmon, red squill and water pressed in pellets to poison rats.

At 1 p. m. the youths will begin distributing five pellets to each home in the neighborhoods not reached in previous campaigns. The material costs the council four cents per house.

Hillman's Defense Job Rouses Woll

New York, May 29 (AP).—Matthew Woll, vice president of the A. F. L., today assailed President Roosevelt's appointment of Sidney Hillman, C. I. O. vice president, to the Advisory Commission on National Defense and demanded that the A. F. L. be represented.

"What the President has done is to put the entire vast problem of employment under the defense program in the hands of a representative of a minority faction, riddled with Communists, and engaged in making war upon more than 4,000,000 members of the American Federation of Labor," Woll said.

Bill to Deport Bridges Gets Right-of-Way

Early House Passage Seen; Civil Service Bars Subversives

Action to tighten restrictions against employment of Communists and Nazis by the Government was taken yesterday, while a proposal for deportation of Harry Bridges, maritime labor leader, made progress in Congress.

Steps aimed at allegedly subversive groups included these:

Attorney General Jackson suggested legislation to require registration of all firearms in the United States, thereby hampering possible accumulation of firearms on the part of subversive groups."

The Civil Service Commission announced it would refuse to certify for work in any Federal agency any person found to belong to the Communist Party, the German Bund, or any other Communist or Nazi organization.

Legislative right of way was voted by the House Rules Committee for the bill directing the Secretary of Labor to deport Bridges, and members predicted its early passage.

Attorney General Jackson sent to Speaker Bankhead a bill calling for registration of firearms, recording of firearm transfers and a nominal tax on each transfer.

As drawn, the law would apply to firearms already owned by individuals as well as to all future purchases. Firearms would be registered with the nearest Internal Revenue office.

Rules committee action on legislation for the summary deportation of Bridges, West Coast C. I. O. leader, to Australia, was unanimous, but Majority Leader Rayburn (Democrat), of Texas, said no plans had been made yet to bring the measure up for debate. No such action has ever before been taken by Congress against an individual.

The Rules Committee approved the legislation in less than five minutes. It had heard earlier from Representative Allen (Democrat), of Louisiana, author of the bill, that the House Immigration Committee was convinced that Bridges was an "undesirable" alien.

"Bridges is regarded by the framers of this bill as a menace to the interests of this country," the committee reported. "His close association with known Communists was brought out and admitted by him in the Government's warrant hearing in his deportation case during the summer of 1939.

"It is felt that in these days when National interests are in jeopardy and our Nation may at any time become involved in war, it is not a time to equivocate, but it is the primary duty of Congress to act promptly in the interests of the people of these United States, disregarding the personal desires or interests of one who, it must be admitted, has been a disturbing element in our midst, and whose loyalty and attachment to the Constitution is open to serious question."

Secretary of Labor Perkins dismissed deportation proceedings against Bridges after Dean James M. Landis, of the Harvard Law School, conducted an exhaustive hearing and reported that there had been no showing that Bridges advocated violent overthrow of the Government.

existing Government agencies as follows:

NYA, 315,000; CCC, 285,000; WPA, 400,000.

The belief yesterday was that part of the 40 hours that CCC enrollees devote to conservation work for the Government each week would be diverted to defense work.

The office of education, under John W. Studebaker, would provide the job-training part of the program. The office, a subdivision of the Federal Security Agency, now does vocational training work for NYA.

Basis for the program, it was disclosed, were the three reports on the youth problem published last year by the American Youth Commission, of which Owen D. Young, industrialist, is chairman.

Other members, besides Young, of the Youth Commission, are Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway, who was appointed Tuesday by President Roosevelt to handle transportation; Henry I. Harriman, a member of the Business Advisory Council of the Department of Commerce and former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Robert E. Wood, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co. The firm's executive vice president, Donald M. Nelson, yesterday was named acting director of procurement in the Treasury Department.

At the same time, labor leaders in both the C. I. O. and A. F. L. said yesterday they would not be surprised if Hillman, as part of his work on the defense board, would launch a move to end the rift between the rival labor organizations when the C. I. O. national executive board meets here Monday.

Secret Marriage Didn't Last

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Actress Priscilla Lane and Film Director Orin W. Haglund were married at Yuma, Ariz., January 23, 1939, and divorced May 3 of this year, the actress' mother revealed yesterday. The mother, Mrs. Cora B. Mullican, said Priscilla left Haglund the day after their wedding. She divorced him on grounds of nonsupport. "They're young and made a mistake," Mrs. Mullican said.

Process for Fast Extraction Of Giant Power Element Bared

Swedish Scientist Develops Way to Get Substance 11,000 Times Speedier Than Known Previously, Opening Field of Commercial Use

Copyright by New York Times

A process that speeds up by 11,000 times the extraction of U-235, the element that yields atomic energy 5,000,000 times greater than that of coal, making it possible to utilize atomic energy as a new source of enormous power for all purposes, is announced in the forthcoming issue of Nature, leading British scientific publication, advanced proofs of which have reached the New York Times.

The new process, which promises to revolutionize methods of production and to usher in a new civilization based on the utilization of atomic power, was developed by Prof. Wilhelm Krasny-Ergen, of the Wenner-Grens Institute at Stockholm, Sweden, one of the leading Swedish scientific research institutions.

A 5-pound piece of U-235, placed in water, is enough to drive ocean liners and submarines around the world for months, it was found only this month at Columbia University.

The only difficulty that stood in the way was the slow method of extracting tthe newly discovered elmeent from the uranium ore in which it is found abundantly in various parts of the world. By methods available until now it would have taken several hundred years to extract one pound.

By the new method just announced it becomes possible to extract a pound in as little as four days, or even less, depending merely on the amount of capital invested in the extraction plant.

The discovery may have a highly important bearing on the outcome of the war, as it is known that the German government has ordered several hundred of its leading scientists to concentrate on the problem of its extraction.

Scientists in the United States have been working feverishly in a dramatic race to be first with a practical separation method, which they hoped to reveal only to the United States Government.

WipingOut of Poles Charged to Nazis

New York, May 29 (AP).—A Polish "Black Book" issued today charged that the Nazi government was attempting to "exterminate the whole Polish race . . . to create for Germany an open living space."

The book, edited by T. Francis Bennett and Count Anthony Tarnowski, of the Polish Information Center, attached to the Polish Consulate, estimated that 1,100,000 civilian adults, 200,000 children and 320,000 officers and soldiers had been killed in the German campaign and occupation of Poland.

Further, the book claimed, 4,000,000 civilians had been deported from their Polish corridor homes to the socalled government general, and 7,000,000 now were suffering from famine. Since the war, the book continued, 26,000 civilians had been executed.

Congress Gets Women's Work Law Revision

Measure Provides 60-Day Jail Term For Violations

A drastic revision of the District's eight-hour law for women including a 60-day jail term for employer violations was sent to Congress yesterday by the commissioners.

Approved by the Federal Budget Bureau, the new measure includes every female worker in the District except those employed in agricultural field occupations, and as domestics, graduate nurses, resident managers in apartment houses and those earning $35 a week or more.

Features of the bill are:

Any woman not exempt may not work more than 48 hours a week nor more than eight hours in any one day. The 8-hour limitation does not apply to women working in law offices or in banks, trust companies and building and loan associations on certain days, including Government paydays.

Employer Must Keep Schedule

Prohibtion of employment of women for more than six hours without at least a 45-minute meal period.

Posting of the law by the employer.

Posting by employer of a schedule of hours of employment giving the number of hours of each female employe for each day of the week, time she is required to begin and stop work, and the time of meal periods.

Prohibition of the employment of any female outside the stated hours or any change in schedule without approval by the District Minimum Wage Board.

It will be prima facie evidence of a violation of the act when any employe is employed on the premises outside of hours stated in the schedule.

Employers must keep records for at least three years of names, addresses, occupations, salaries and hours worked by each female employe.

Board Can Issue Subpenas

The bill gives the wage board power to administer oaths, take depositions of witnesses, issue subpenas, compel the attendance of witnesses and production of documents, and provides for contempt proceedings upon the failure of any person to comply with such orders.

In letters to both Chairman King, of the Senate District Commitee, and Speaker William R. Bankhead, the Commissioners said the present law is limited to women in manufacturing, mercantile, laundry, hotel, restaurant, telegraph or telephone establishments, and is inadequate.

Scalise Indicted For Embezzling Funds of Union

New York, May 29 (AP).—George Scalise, until a month ago president of the A. F. L.'s Building Service Employes International Union and its 70,000 laborers, today was indicted for larceny, forgery and embezzlement involving $60,087.27 in union funds.

The district attorney office said the sum involved actually was closer to $200,000 and Murray I. Gurfein, assistant district attorney, declared that at least $100,000 of that amount had been taken from the union's headquarters in Chicago.

Scalise, who a month ago was indicted for conspiracy and extortion of $97,150 from employers and members of his own union, was accused in the new indictment of obtaining money from the union by fraud.

The indictment carried 60 counts—35 charges of grand larceny, 6 of common-law larceny, 8 of embezzlement and 11 of forgery.

Leopold's Whereabouts Unknown to Allies as Belgians Prepare For Vote in Parliament on Sovereign's Power Over His Nation

Nazis Say Ruler In Safekeeping to Avoid Allied Bombs

Copyright by New York Times

Paris, May 29.—King Leopold of the Belgians, according to all accounts which have reached here from Belgian and other sources, has returned to his palace near Brussels which his mother, Queen Elizabeth, refused to leave even when Brussels was occupied by the German troops.

Former Premier Paul van Zeeland arrived in Paris today from the United States and had an immediate interview with Belgian Premier Pierlot at the Belgian Embassy. Gen. Henri Denis, minister of war, has already taken in hand the recruiting and organization of a new Belgian army from refugees and the elements of the Belgian army already in France.

Spaak Denies King Power

In an interview this morning, Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak reiterated what the premier said yesterday, that any act of government attempted by the King will be accounted null and that the only government which has the right to speak and act in the name of Belgium is that established in Paris.

"Our disagreement with the King," Spaak said, "was not on the issue of capitulation because before we left he told us nothing of his intention to capitulate. But we left him with the impression that everything was finished between us. There was between him and us complete disagreement on everything."

Parliament to Rule

Paris, May 29 (AP).—The legal fate of Leopold III as King of the Belgians will be decided Friday by the Belgian Parliament.

The refugee parliament, in emergency session in a Paris dance hall, already has approved the action of Leopold's cabinet yesterday in "disowning" him as sovereign because of his surrender to Germany.

For the Friday session the parliament will move to the Paris town hall. There, besides taking up formal action on the King, new statutes for the government of the fugitive peoples of invaded Belgium will be mapped.

The military correspondent of Reuters (British News Agency), wrote today that the Belgian army, originally 800,000 strong, had only 300,000 effectives when its surrendered—evidence of its stubborn fight against German assaults.

Undisclosed Pressure Hinted

Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger Keyes, who as a special British liaison officer was with King Leopold until late Monday night, issued a statement in London today hinting that there were certain important facts not yet generally known attending the Belgian monarch's sudden capitulation to the Germans.

While the majority of the British press was bitterly denouncing Leopold, Sir Roger issued a statement requesting that judgment be "suspended on a very gallant soldier until all the facts are known."

Nazis Hide Leopold

Berlin, May 29 (AP).—The whereabouts of King Leopold of the Belgians is kept a secret, authorized German sources said today, since in view of bitter attacks on him by Allied leaders it was declared conceivable the Allies might try to bomb his castle if it were known where he is staying.

The choice of replying to his critics lies with King Leopold himself, but authorized German sources here commented:

"He'll probably decide that the people throughout the world appreciate his viewpoint, and he can therefore ignore the carping critics who snipe at him from safe places like London and Paris while he and 500,000 Belgian soldiers stood bravely in the thick of battle."

Lisbon, Portugal, May 29 (AP).—The Belgian Legation tonight denied French reports that the children of King Leopold were here or were coming to Portugal.

The legation also issued a statement describing the King as "a German prisoner." It asailed French Premier Reynaud for "insulting" the sovereign in his cautic speech early Tuesday.

Surrender is no dishonor when all the means to carry on the fight are exhausted," the statement said. "We appreciate the fair and gentlemanly statement (to the House of Commons) by British Prime Minister Churchill. We are absolutely sure that another big Belgian army will be formed to cooperate with the Allies until final victory."

wave without regard for their dead.

"They just piled up the bodies of their dead and used them as barricades against our fire," he said.

Allied warships and the Royal Air Corps worked and fought like beavers to aid the rescue of the battered armies of Flanders, whose fate teetered on the Channel's brink. Under a screen of intense curtain fire from long range guns the B. E. F. was backing out through the Dunkerque area, pressed by a reckless German onslaught necessitating fierce rear guard fighting.

Wounded were being evacuated first, where possible.

British naval engineers maintained quayside and harbor works as best they could under terrific enemy air attack.

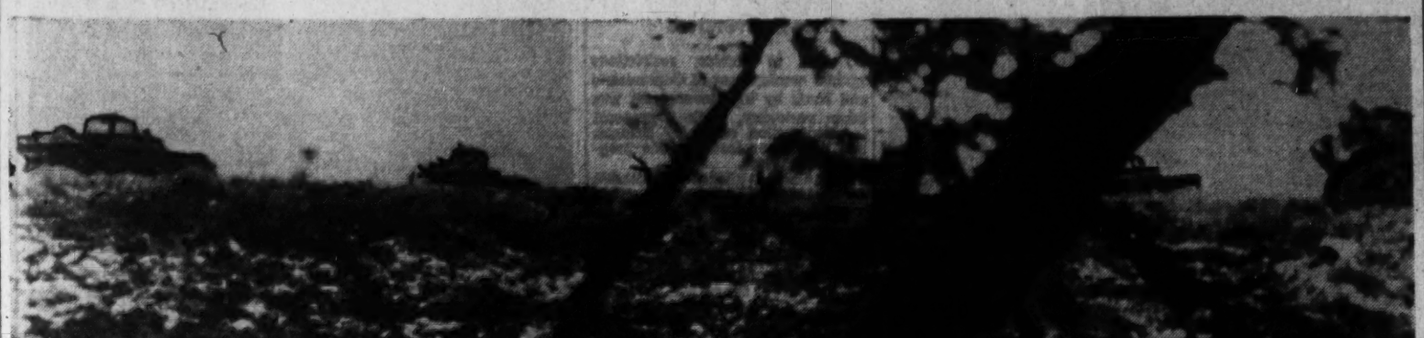

Members of the returning vanguard were pitiful sights. None had shaved for many days and their beards were caked with mud and blood. Uniforms were tattered and grimy. Many boots were soleless. Some men had one shoe. Those able to walk staggered as if they were in a coma—evidence of the nightmare of fighting and marching and fighting again without sleep or respite for days on end.

The British wounded described the Germans' reckless expenditure of manpower, hurling and sacrificing thousands in mass attacks.

"They came on like automatons moving to certain death," a British soldier said. "They would be mowed down in hundreds and wiped out without gaining anything. Then we would counterattack.

"Piles of German dead blocked the bridges. We had to use them as sandbags behind which we established machine guns."

U. S. as Haven for War Refugees Being Discussed, Hull Discloses

Secretary Explains No Decision Yet Reached Over Problem as Australia Offers to Take British Children Away From Bomb Perils

Secretary Hull said yesterday active consideration was being given to the possibility of receiving Belgian refugees in the United States.

The State Department chief said conversations had been held with representatives of the British and other governments about many phases of the refugee problem as well as with private individuals and groups.

Hull said also there had been no developments concerning diplomatic relations with the Belgium government now in refuge in Paris. This statement was taken to indicate continuance of United States recognition of the present Belgium government.

On the question of refugees, Hull said the matter of whether it would be feasible to receive war refugees here had been discussed, but thus far there had been no developments.

Conversations Continue

He said conversations were continuing on this point as well as on other phases of the refuge problem, and added that this Government was naturally interested because it was a problem of very far reaching importance.

Hull's statement was prompted by a declaration to the House of Commons yesterday by R. A. Butler, British Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, that an appeal to the United States to take as many war refugees as possible was under consideration.

Australia Offers Haven

Canberra, Australia, May 29 (AP). The government sent Britain an offer today to take British children into Australia "to save them from the horrors of war."

New Zealand Has Space

Auckland, New Zealand, May 29 (AP).—A suggestion that New Zealand offer permanent homes to 25,000 English children to remove them from the war zone, in recognition of the aid which England extended to victims of the disastrous Napier earthquake in 1931, was made today by Mayor T. W. Hercock, at Napier.

Allies Open Flood Gates in Retreat

Georges Maurice Blanchard and Viscount Gort, was still in danger of being cut off from Dunkerque by an attempted German drive from Ypres to Cassell. Gen. Rene Prioux, 61-year-old cavalry veteran, was said to be leading an armored column undeavoring to protect the Lille-Dunkerque highway, main line of retreat.]

The French reported during the morning that the Germans were blazing away with heavy guns at Dunkerque. The night communique said with little amplification that the French navy was giving the defenders "powerful support" in defense of forts and communications lines.

Great losses in men for the Germans in that area were claimed.

The French admiral in command there reported that he was "satisfied with the supply situation," and at the same time ships were bringing in more and more food and munitions.

The French port of Calais was reported partly occupied by the Germans, but the French spokesman said some French troops still were holding out there.

And on the great, 200-mile-long front along the Somme and Aisne Rivers, he said, the "quite heavy" offensive actions begun yesterday had resulted this afternoon in wiping out the last German-held bridgeheads on the south side of the Somme, with many Nazis taken prisoner.

Tonight's French communique, gloomy in tone and saying the Allies were fighting with a "heroism worthy of their traditions," offered "fierce attacks" made successfully by the French on the Somme front as one of the few bright spots of the position.

The bloody action at Lille was simply a last-ditch fight, serving to help the bulk of Allied forces to reach the coast.

Today the Germans claimed the capture of Lille, an important fortified industrial city, and to have cut off in a subsidiary pocket to the south French troops previously isolated, in the large triangle held by the Germans, from their British comrades-in-arms.

Thus, these twice-isolated Frenchmen apparently had no specific objective toward which to fall back.

The main German attack was reported directed toward Cassel, northwest of Lille and about midway between that city and the English Channel. Cassel lies 30 miles southeast of Calais.

In the vital job of keeping communications open at Dunkerque, the Allied base, the French and British air forces cooperated.

And, despite their grave peril—greatly increased by the defection of the Belgians—the Allies declared they still maintained a sea line of communications.

In the English Channel and the North Sea, however, German torpedo speedboats went out to challenge British seapower, while German planes attacked from the sky.

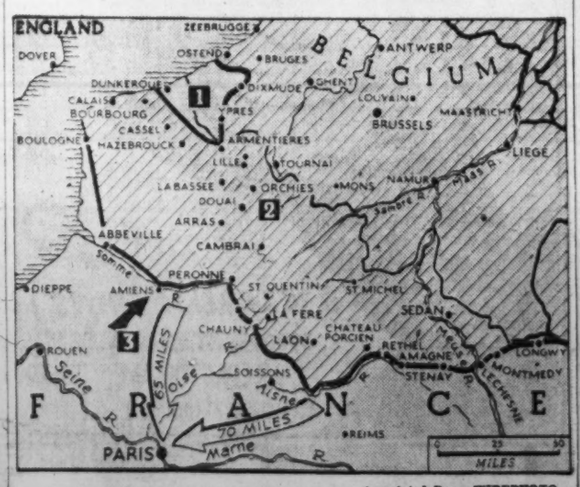

Meanwhile, the Allied artillery commanding the long German corridor to the sea was reported pounding destructively at Nazi armored columns.

Nazis and Allies Dispute Air Losses

Paris, May 29 (AP).—French military experts said today Germany has lost at least 2,000 planes, or nearly half the first-line aviation believed held by the Nazis at the outbreak of the war.

Berlin, May 29 (AP).—DNB, the German official news agency, said today Allied airplane losses since May 10 totaled 2,638, against Germany's 373.

ward across the Belgian frontier. It was added that close by the heights of Kemmel were stormed and taken.

The official bulletin claimed resistance of the French forces in the area south of Lille has already collopsed and that their capitulation is a question of hours.

Apparently isolated detachments of Allied troops are still left "to be cleaned up" in the Lille area, outside the two pockets mentioned.

There is no means of determining from here, to what degree, if any, the British are succeeding in evacuating their forces by sea. Repeatedly the Nazi supreme command has reported German bombing operations against Dunkenque—and otheh posts until recently in Allied hands—with the object of frustrating such attempts.

Moreover, there are daily official reports of the destruction of naval units and transports off these ports by air or naval units. Thus, today the bulletin asserted that three Allied destroyers, two transports and one freighter had been severely damaged by aerial bombs.

Throughout the earlier stages of the encirclement German official quarters asserted that the Belgo-Franco-British armies trapped numbered more than "1,000,000 men," a figure which was thought by several observers to be exaggerated. German military spokesmen said that of this total, 200,000 might be British and 500,000 French.

If the Anglo-French forces approached this figure at the outset, it is obviously greatly reduced today. Reports are current here even that some units succeeded in breaking through the German lines to the southward. In any case, a conservative estimate would place the number in the two pockets at well under 300,000 men.

By the Associated Press

Berlin, May 29.—It was predicted freely in Berlin today that the trapped British and French would be either wiped out or put behind German barbed wire within two days.

Then, if wide speculation is borne out, there will be a tremendous push on Paris—not England.

Germany's press has been taking such a bitter turn toward France in recent days, especially as regards the alleged "torture" of German prisoners, that it is guessed widely that the end of fighting on the northern front will be followed by a giant drive on Paris.

This would take the place of the long-expected assault on the British Isles, for the time being.

To push on Paris, the Germans must break the new French line on the Somme and Aisne rivers, less than 100 miles north of the capital.

The rough triangle of the north in which the British are massed is described here as extending southeastward from the coast south of Ostend approximately to Roubaix and Lille, then back west and northwest through Hazewrouck to a point on the coast between Gravelines and Dunkerque.

The surrounded area south of Lille, or the broken-off tip of the triangle, runs east from Lille to the Belgian border, then southward east of Orchies, then westward north of Douai and north along the Amiens-Lille Railroad, back to Lille.

Peace Cross To Be Scene Of Rites Today

The Memorial Day services of Snyder-Farmer American Legion Post, of Hyattsville, will take place at the Peace Cross in Bladensburg today at 9:30 a. m.

Services will consist of the nonsectarian memorial services from both the American Legion and Forty and Eight rituals conducted by the senior officers of the organizations. In this ritual the roll call of Prince Georges veterans who died in the World War and since will be read. A firing squad will fire a volley and taps will conclude the ceremonies.

The Peace Cross grounds have been made to resemble an American cemetery in France with wooden crosses and poppies. The crosses are unmarked and persons may choose one upon which to place decorations.

The Capital of a Nation preoccupied with building machines for war honors today the dead of past wars.

At 11:30 this morning Maj. Horace B. Smith, White House military aide who fought in France in the first World War, will lay a Memorial Day wreath in Arlington Cemetery for President Roosevelt at the base of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

At the White House a few minutes later, Mr. Roosevelt will sit down to a conference of his new defense commission, a step in the direction of raising United States war strength to its greatest heights.

As a prelude to the ceremonies in Arlington, regular Army, Navy and Marine Corps units and members of veterans societies will parade down Constitution avenue from Ninth to Eighteenth streets, starting at 9:45 a. m.

The significance of the day was caught in a message yesterday from French Premier Paul Reynaud to Secretary of War Woodring. "The entire French army," Reynaud cabled, "united on this solemn Memorial Day by sentiments of unalterable brotherhood formed by common sacrifices on the field of battle, piously joins in homage to the valiant American soldiers who fell on the soil of France and salutes their heroism with emotion."

Secretary Woodring, in reply, gave assurance of "my hope that our common dead may not have been sacrificed in vain."

Addressing pre-Memorial Day exercises of the Department of Agriculture Post of the American Legion, Secretary Wallace at noon yesterday warned that European aggressors "undoubtedly have designs on the Americas."

Wallace made an appeal for an "ample internal defense." "Our first line—and certainly our last line—is a strong and workable democracy," he declared.

District Boy Scouts have been given orders to meet at the zero milestone on the Ellipse at 8:45 a. m. and to precede to Arlington Cemetery to decorate graves of more than 60,000 dead with flowers. The flowers, donated by citizens, were hauled to the cemetery yesterday in National Guard and Washington Gas Light Co. trucks.

Maj. Smith will be followed to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier by wreath bearers of the G. A. R. Memorial Day Corporation, James G. Yaden; United Spanish War Veterans, Thomas F. Donovan; Veterans of Foreign Wars, George G. McLeish; American Legion, William T. Slattery; Disabled American Veterans, Dr. W. C. Hess; Ladies of the G. A. R., Mrs. K. P. Presbyterians Condemn Helping Aggressors

Rochester, N. Y., May 29 (AP).—The 152nd Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. condemned today the supplying of war material to aggressor nations, and voted a $125,000 "war emergency need" fund for missionary travel and shipments, Presbyterian hospitals in war zones and the war-stricken evangelical churches in Europe.

as they fell back behind "stiff rear guard action."

Fighting was unceasing on their rear and flanks as overwhelming German forces thrust hard to cut off retreat and slice them into scattered commands, easy to overcome.

King Cheers Men On

From their King came the word of encouragement echoed by the entire nation.

"The hearts of every one of us at home are with you and your magnificent troops in this hour of peril," King George VI said in a message to the commander-in-chief of Britain's expeditionary force.

"All your countrymen have been following with pride and admiration the courageous resistance of the British expeditionary force during the continuous days of fighting of the last fortnight.

"Placed by circumstances outside their control in a position of extreme difficulty, they are displaying a gallantry that has never been surpassed in the annals of the British army."

Lord Gort's decision to gather his troops in the shadow of disaster and hurl them back to the Channel lent hope to Britons that some of their oldest and finest regiments would be saved from annihilation.

Troops Hold Together

No British source would estimate the extent of the loss in men and materials if the move failed. It was conceded that large amounts of war supplies would have to be abandoned. These would be destroyed to keep them from German hands.

Military circles declared, however, that the British army, despite a day's bombing, strafing and shelling, had not lost its cohesion.

The British army's attitude, these circles said, is one of "furious rage against the Germans, caused not by the pounding they have received but by the incredibly revolting scenes in which the German air force and tanks deliberately slaughtered helpless refugee women and children to spread panic among the civilian population."

"These are things," they continued, "the army can never forget, and they will insure the Germans the warmest welcome they have ever received anywhere if they invade this country."

The News Chronicle's military correspondent said:

"Within the steel ring of the Reichswehr are as many men as we lost in the battle of the Somme and as much war material as we abandoned to the Germans in March, 1918."

(In the first battle of the Somme, in the summer of 1916, the British lost 500,000 officers and men. In the second, in the spring of 1918, they lost 200,000.)

Neutral sources said the Allies face one of the greatest military disasters in history.

500,000 Volunteers Ready

It was learned that of 1,500,000 men under arms in England, a half million are ready for action in France. Besides these there are nearly 500,000 volunteers in defense forces against parachuters—if they come.

Besides these, veterans from the constabulary and police pension groups have been called back to their beats.

The steady swelling of the Home Defense Force came as Harold Nicholson, Parliamentary secretary of the Ministry of Information, said in a radio broadcast that Germany "may be able to land in Great Britain some thousands of their troops" by methods "which did not exist in previous wars." He added:

"But do not imagine that a virile and unbending race of 45,000,000 people will for long allow some thousands of enemy troops to remain upon our shores."

Allies Take Narvik, Norse Iron Gateway

First Important Victory in North Scored Over Nazis

By Otto D. Tolischus

Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, May 29.—According to official reports from both London and Berlin, the Allies scored their first substantial victory in Norway when they captured Narvik last night and occupied the head of the Narvik Peninsula lying between Rombaks and Boisfjords from Forsneset in the north to Fagerness in south.

Therewith this strategically and economically important iron ore port, the struggle for which was largely responsible for plunging Norway into the war, is at last in Allied hands after a bitter struggle lasting 50 days.

According to available reports here Narvik fell when Norwegian, British, French and Polish troops supported by Allied warships launched a double offensive against the town from north and south.

Norwegian troops supported by British and especially by French Alpine chasseurs crossed the Rombaks Fjord from the north under protection of Allied warships and got a foothold on the iron ore railway at Forsneset on the southern bank of the fjord despite a heavy German air bombardment.

Simultaneously it appears that Allied and principally Polish troops stationed at Ankenes crossed Beisfjord and took Fagerness. Therewith the German position in Narvik became hopeless and the town had to be evacuated.

In point of fact the bulk of the German force in northern Norway, estimated at between 5,000 and 7,000, had left Narvik some time ago and had concentrated for their last stand between Hundalen at the eastern end of Rombaks Fjord and Bjoernfjell on the Swedish frontier.

Narvik itself had been held by only about 250 Germans who had been under constant fire from north, west and south, but who nevertheless had been able to beat off Allied attempts to make a surprise landing in Narvik itself several weeks ago.

Boettiger's Arm Broken on Yacht

Seattle, May 29 (AP).—John Boettiger, publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, suffered a fracture of his left arm yesterday while on a yacht trip with Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission.

The fracture occurred as Boettiger tried to keep a skiff from damaging the yacht as it was being launched.

Russia Bluntly Rejects British Trade Mission of Cripps And Declares Any Special Envoy Is Unacceptable

Lithuania Warned To Stop Alleged Soldier Kidnaping

Moscow, May 29.—The Soviet government today curtly turned down as "not acceptable" the mission of Sir Stafford Cripps, en route to Moscow as a special British trade envoy.

In a stinging rebuff to the British, the Kremlin informed London it could not accept Sir Stafford, a left wing Laborite member of the British Parliament, or any other "special envoy" on such a mission.

Furthermore, it informed Britain that if she really desired to conduct trade negotiations she should do so through Sir William Seeds, the British Ambassador to Moscow, or anyone who might be appointed in his place.

(Winston Churchill, Britain's new prime minister, was reported tonight to be seeking to "appease" Soviet Russia by naming Sir Stafford as ambassador to Moscow, according to informed quarters.

(He would replace Sir William Seeds, who departed Moscow "on leave" several months ago. R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, said today that Cripps was going as a special envoy.

(The British press is displaying considerable interest in the question whether German advances in the west might not cause Russia to grow cold toward her new-found friend Adolf Hitler, whose interest in eastern Europe, rivaling Russia's, is well known.)

(Britain's relations with Russia were cooled considerably because of Russia's undeclared war against Finland, but London observers have reported an improvement since then).

Sir Stafford, whose Socialist views were believed in London to weigh in favor of further improving relations of the two powers and ultimately to pave the way for a trade agreement, was already en route to Moscow.

Britain has sought to limit Russian trade with Germany in seeking a trade agreement with Moscow, but was rebuffed on this score May 21 when Premier-Foreign Commissar Molotoff told her:

"Russia can not subordinate the trade policy of the U. S. S. R. to the war aims of any foreign state. Being a sovereign state, the Soviet Union will carry on its foreign trade both with belligerents and neutrals on the basis of complete equality of parties and reciprocity of obligations."

Russia gave assurances then, however, that proposed imports from Britain were intended for its own requirements and not for reexport, presumably to Germany.

In another phase of Russian international relations, Molotoff was reported today to have warned Lithuania that Moscow would take action unless the alleged kidnaping of Soviet soldiers stationed on Lithuanian soil is stopped.

This announcement made over the government radio indicated Lithuanian authorities themselves were suspected of attempting to protect the accused abductors.

Russia gained the right to establish several garrisons in Lithuania and in return ceded Vilna (Wilno) and a surrounding area to the Kaunas regime last October 10, through a Soviet-Lithuanian mutual assistance pact.

Uruguayans Plan Larger Defense Force

5th Column Fears Grow; Navy, Army To Be Strengthened

By John W. White

Copyright by New York Times

Montevideo, May 29.—The Uruguayan government is frankly alarmed over Nazi fifth-column activities.

After several cabinet meetings at which the problem was closely studied, President Baldomir has sent to Congress with a request for urgent action two bills, one of which provides for general rearmament and the other for modification of Article 38 of the constitution, which guarantees the right of assembly.

It had been rumored in well-informed diplomatic circles in more than one South American capital yesterday and today that Uruguay fears an invasion by Nazi fifth columnists from Southern Brazil. Official circles tonight emphatically denied any such fear and also denied that Uruguay has requested the assistance of any other government.

The president's office earlier in the day, however, published details of plans for rearmament and modifying constitutional guarantees.

The rearmament bill provides for the purchase of two 1,500-ton destroyers, new airplanes for both the army and navy and complete new equipment for the army and navy, including heavy-caliber coast defense artillery.

The country's only cruiser, the Uruguay, which is German-built and obsolete, is to be converted into a training ship to prepare conscripts for service in the new navy as soon as it is acquired.

The bill also provides for universal military conscription similar to other South American republics, in place of the present volunteer army. Meanwhile a congressional committee is proceeding rapidly with a nationwide investigation of Nazi fifth-column activities, especially in the provinces close to the Brazilian frontier.

'Berserk' World Offers Great Opportunity, Prof. Kane Tells 30 G. U. Graduate Nurses

Commencement exercises were held yesterday at the Georgetown University Hospital school of nursing. The Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, vice president of George Washington University, awards diploma to Mary Elizabeth Marshall. Awaiting theirs are Beulah Wilson Busey, Rosemary Assunta Gallagher, Ann Margaret Kindsfather and Nannie Frances Moore, all of Washington

Graduates of the Georgetown University School of Nursing were told yesterday afternoon at their graduation exercises that the greater opportunity of giving service unselfishly to manking awaits them in a world gone "berserk."

Praising the Sisters of Mercy and the Florence Nightingales of past wars, Prof. Al Philip Kane, of the law school, told the 30 graduates assembled in Gaston Hall:

"In time of war the ordinary citizen is proud to give loyal support to his Government. Loyalty demands of a soldier that he seek to destroy the enemy to whom as an individual he may have the kindliest feelings; but no single government and no army can lay claim to the loyalty of a nurse.

"She will not turn away from an injured man because he wears not the right uniform or speaks not the right tongue. To this handmaiden of mercy all men are brothers, and all are equally entitled to her ministrations. Others may be blinded with passion and ignorant prejudices. At such times the nurse alone seems to be able to preserve the balance of mind which mankind must have to distinguish it from the brutish beast. She brings love into the theater of hate, and vitalizes the virtue of charity for the benefit of even the greedy."

The Rev. David V. McCauley, S. J., dean of the Georgetown Medical School, presided in the absence of the Very Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., president of the university, who was ill. Earlier the annual award for efficiency was given to Miss Genevieve Gallo, of Maryland, who also delivered the class valedictory. The leadership certificate was awarded to Miss Roena Graham Helms, of Virginia.

Sister M. Mechtilde, O. S. F., director of the School of Nursing, which is affiliated with Georgetown Hospital, presented the graduates to the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of the university, who gave diplomas to the following:

Sister Mary Rose Patricia, Sister Mary Thelma Francis, Mary Anton, Joan Lee Brown, Beulah Wilson Busey, Jeon Delores Cilli, Aileen Patricia Cleary, Sara Isabel Cotter, Mary Agnes Donaldson, Elizabeth Adelaide Farrall, Rosemary Assunta Gallagher, Genevieve Natalie Gallo, Loretta Ann Gilmore, Nellie Evangeline Guy, Roena Graham Helms, Ann Margaret Kindsfather, Margaret Anna Kloetzli, Rosalie Carol Koestner, Dorothy Ann Manner, Mary Elizabeth Marshall, Nannie Frances Moore, Anne Brounley Myrick, Mary Jane Parfitt, Mary Margaret Pauli, Alice Ann Robben, Mary Elizabeth Shaw, Eleonar Junita Sterling, Mary Roberta Sullivan, Kathryn Lorena Wayland, Margaret Virginia Williamson.

Balkan Nazis Active, Says D. C. Woman

The long arm of the Nazi fifth column is stretching ever farther into the Balkans, focal point in any German expansion to the East, an American diplomat's wife, who on May 18 fled Yugoslavia with her 6-year-old son, revealed yesterday.

Mrs. Homer Byington, jr., 28, who left her husband, secretary at the United States Embassy in Belgrade, to return here after the State Department had issued warning to American nationals in Europe, said the subversive organizations in Yugoslavia are "obvious."

There recently has been a steady infiltration of Nazi agents, of whom the people and government in Belgrade are not unaware, she said in an interview at 2101 Connecticut avenue northwest.

The diplomat's wife recalled the arrest of Milan Stoyadinovitch, former Yugoslav prime minister three weeks ago, for alleged connivance with the German government as evidence of the underground activities.

Mrs. Byington declared there are many persons of German descent in Yugoslavia who retain the German language and traditions, even after centuries of life there. Their failure to be absorbed in the polyglot Serb, Croat, Slovene and Macedonian population of the small country has been owing mainly to the influence of independent German-speaking schools, she said.

Despite the critical phase of the fighting in France and Belgium, and the possibility that Premier Mussolini will soon bring Italy into the war, the greater part of the population of Yugoslavia is singularly undisturbed, Mrs. Byington said.

She suggested this was owing to the almost complete isolation of the majority of the people from world events because of the lack of the newspaper and radio facilities which have kept western European nations and the United States at a high pitch of excitement.

Police Raid Home Of Rivera, Former Friend of Trotsky

Mexico City, May 29 (AP).—A police raid on the modernistic home of Diego Rivera, celebrated Mexican mural painter, and the detention of his chauffeur created a sensation here today.

Servants said Rivera left his home last night.

Col. Leandro Sanchez Salazar, chief of the police secret service, refused to say whether there was any connection between the incident and the investigation of the recent violence at the residence of Leon Trotsky, Russian exile.

Trotsky and Rivera were close friends at one time but quarreled. For two years, Trotsky lived at Rivera's home, but moved out a year ago.

Weygand Bars Counterattack To Free Ringed Men, Briton Says

London (Thursday), May 30 (U.P.). The News Chronicle's diplomatic expert, Vernon Bartlett, wrote today that Gen. Weygand is making no effort to counterattack in an effort to rescue the surrounded Allies in Flanders because the German breakthrough and consequent wholesale discharge of French generals disorganized the army and time now is needed to rally his troops to defend the Somme.

"With each day of fighting to the north he has a better chance of consolidating it (the French army), of saving France and of winning the war," Bartlett said. "To win the war he must lose this battle.

"The risk of a huge counterattack presumably would be too great. In reckoning the risks Weygand must have remembered that he is leaving to its fate most of the British force in France and seven-eighths of the Belgian army; but also more of his own countrymen than his British Allies."

The French, he pointed out, have much less chance of escape than the British because they are farther from the sea, the only avenue of escape now open.

Those who can not reach the sea "may have to choose between annihilation or surrender," Bartlett wrote, adding that the isolated force "can scarcely hope to fight its way across the German corridor and rejoin the British and French south of the Somme because it is short of munitions and mechanized transport."

Bartlett said that "this is a British disaster of great importance. It must be faced as the great disasters in the last war were faced."

The writer suggested that the capitulation of King Leopold of Belgium may have resulted from his refusal to accede to Weygand's demand that the Belgian army withdraw with the Allies from Flanders.

"Twice last week Gen. Weygand saw him and explained that the Belgian army must withdraw in conjunction with the armies of Britain and France," Bartlett said. "He refused.

"In the last two days of fighting the Belgians are said to have lost 100,000 men.

"This fact rather than any petty jealousy regarding supreme command probably weighed with him."

Prince Wilhelm Buried in Potsdam

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, May 29.—Prince William of Prussia, 34, eldest son of the former crown prince, was buried in Potsdam this afternoon with the military honors customary for a first lieutenant who dies as the result of wounds received in battle.

This means the coffin was carried by noncommissioned officers and one company of soldiers paid their comrade final honors. It was, however, not the customary funeral service. For Potsdam was alive with crowds, many of whom journeyed from Berlin and most of whom were wearing mourning. There were, furthermore, some 200 officers of the Kaiser's army, led by 90-year-old Field Marshal August von Mackensen, all in imperial uniforms, as well as some 20 younger generals of the contemporary German army.

Italy Cuts Trade Links With World

Importation Permits Revoked as Nation Moves Toward War

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, May 29.—The ministry of foreign exchange issued an order today to all banks and industrial firms ending permits for importation and permission to acquire foreign currency in order to pay for imports. Thus Italy cuts herself off commercially from the world except in cases where she has barter agreements, and even there Italian boats coming in are not departing to get new imports.

This is the most serious indication yet given of the expectation of war, certainly as serious as the postponement of the sailing of Italian vessels announced May 24.

Trade with the United States will be the chief sufferer by the decision taken today. If Italy is going to war, the Mediterranean is going to be closed and there will be no way to send checks and drafts to the United States for collection.

No one here expects Italy to move until the battle in Flanders is over and a new phase begins with a resumption of the German drive either toward Britain or France or both. If a big French counter-offensive should change that expectation, then it seems only too probable that Italy would postpone her move.

Blow Expected Soon

By the Associated Press

Rome, May 29.—Many foreign and Italian observers tonight expected Italy to enter the war within a few days, but in the Mediterranean and southward rather than directly against France.

In the "event of an act of aggression leading to war in the Mediterranean area," according to the Allied-Turkish trenty of alliance, Turkey, guardian of the Dardanelles, is pledged to enter the war on the side of Britain and France.

The new view as to the potential theater of attack was supported by Nicola Marchitto, in the semi-monthly political review "Conquista d'Impero"—"Conquest of Empire."

Marchitto asserted Italy's "offenesive objectives" would be actions by the navy and air force in the Mediterranean and land war in Africa to conquer the British-French controlled Suez Canal and eventually in the Balkans to "protect" Italian interests.

Italian strategy is defensive, he wrote, on the frontiers of France proper and French-protected Tunisia, which fronts on Italian Libya; it has a different character, however, on the Egyptian frontiers of Italian Africa.

The writer spoke of the Greek port of Salonika, take-off point of the Allies' Balkan campaign in the World War, and Djibouti, French Somaliland, sea outlet for Italian Ethiopia, as other possible objectives.

Italy's frontiers are defended with greater troop strength than ever.

But when—and if—Italy enters the war she is expected to count more heavily for quick action on bombing planes, supported by submarines and other naval forces, than on large masses of men.

Italy's war fever rose with the surrender of Belgium's armies in the Flanders pocket. Many British residents of Italy prepared to follow their families, already moved out. Several businessmen planned to leave tonight.

Yugoslav Tension Eased

Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, May 29.—Recent tension between Italy and Yugoslavia has been slackening for the last few days. Now it is learned that troop concentrations on the common frontier are being reduced, presumably as a sign of mutual good faith. No changes are mentioned in the Albanian region.

The Yugoslav minister in Rome is said to have received assurances once more Monday from Foreign Minister Count Ciano that Italy has no designs in this part of the world.

British Bombing Civilians, Nazis Say

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, May 29.—British fliers are "planlessly" dropping bombs on the German civilian population, the official news agency declared today.

British bombers, the Germans declare, do not hit military objectives—so they are making a list of every casualty, every person wounded and every bit of damage inflicted by the enemy for repayment in kind when "the time is ripe."

French to Retaliate For Nazi Cruelties

Paris, May 29 (AP).—The ministry of information announced tonight France would retaliate for any reprisals taken by the Germans "for so-called barbarous acts."

At the same time the ministry specifically denied German reports that two German aviators had been shot after being forced down and that imprisoned German officers were not being treated according to rank.

(Yesterday Marshal Goering announced that captured French airmen henceforth would be clapped in chains immediately.)

4 U. S. Drivers Of Ambulances Taken by Nazis

Washington Man, Five Others Sail For Paris Today

New York, May 29 (AP).—The American Volunteer Ambulance Corps said today that a German radio announcement picked up in Paris reported that four American drivers and their ambulances had been captured.

Six more Americans, meanwhile, prepared to sail tomorrow on the U. S. liner Washington for Paris and front-line service as drivers with the AVAC.

They are John D. Wellborn, of Washington; James J. Gardner, of New Rochelle, N. Y., and four New York City residents—William M. Throop, Winslow Meadows, Herbert M. Whitcombe and Carl Berthold.

James Wood Johnson, president of the AVAC in New York, said there was urgent need for additional men as 37 ambulances were idling in Paris because of lack of drivers. Another group will sail June 15.

Johnson listed the captured men as Albert Raymond, Chicago; Lieut. Louis Wehrle, Berne, Ind.; Murray Shipley, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Jan Glowacki, Jersey City, N. J.

They had been listed previously as missing—killed or captured.

Johnson said Col. J. V. Sparks, head of the AVAC in Paris, cabled this message:

"German radio announced four drivers our group loaned to Miss Anne Morgan taken prisoners together with their amulances. Trying to confirm."

Johnson said the men were in a group of ten ambulance crews of the Benjamin Franklin section working in the Ardenne district.

An unofficial announcement in Berlin last night said Nazi troops had captured numerous American ambulances and equipment and were using them for their wounded.

Ireland Puts Army on War Strength Basis

Reservists, Volunteers Swell Forces Ready To Resist Invasion

By the Associated Press

Dublin, May 29.—Reservists called back to military service today placed Ireland's standing army on a war footing while political factions found a new unity and the Dail cast away party lines for the first time since the World War.

Here in Dublin there was no fuss or hysteria but volunteers—plus regulars—streamed into service.

The home of Dr. Eduard Hemple, German Minister to Ireland, was slightly damaged by fire tonight. Authorities were understood to be investigating the theory that sabotage may have been responsible.

The newspapers which, like the Dail, ordinarily are divided in opinion, unanimously agreed that while two Irishmen may fight each other they will unite against another foe.

Bullet Holes a Warning

"Eire, if invaded," said one high ranking officer in a statement that seemed to express the general view, "will fight to the last bullet, then use rifles as clubs.

"We left the bullet holes of 1922 in this O'Connell street building as a constant reminder to our people that our liberty was dearly bought. "It will be more dearly surrendered."

Officials insisted there would be no conscription.

The newly formed national defense committee will be in effect a supreme war commission. Although it will have no executive powers as such, it will have the power of recommendation and the responsibility for all major policy arising out of the country's present dangerous condition.

Volunteer for B. E. F.

London, May 29 (AP).—Clement R. Attlee, Lord Privy Seal, told Commons today 10,360 volunteers from Northern Ireland had joined British forces since the war began. No figures on southern Ireland (Eire) volunteers were available.

Capt. Losey, Nazi Victim In Norway, Is Buried

West Point, N. Y., May 29 (AP).—Funeral services for Capt. Robert M. Losey, assistant United States military attache who was killed during a German bombing raid at Dombas, Norway, April 21, were held today in the old Cadet Chapel of the United States Military Academy.

3 Ships Sunk Near Course Of U. S. Liner

U-Boats Active Again; Argentine Grain Boat Torpedoed Off Spain

By the Associated Press

Vigo, Spain, May 29.—German submarines, lurking off the Spanish coast, accounted for three ships yesterday and today, sinking the Argentine freighter Uuruguay, 3,425 tons, and a French merchantman, and setting afire a British tanker.

The sinkings took place close to the route the American liner Washington will take when she sails tomorrow for Bordeaux, France, to remove Americans from the war zone.

The Uruguay was the first ship flying the flag of an American republic to be sunk in the present war.

(Owners of the Uruguay said in Buenos Aires, the ship was being convoyed by an Allied fleet three days ago.

(The company said the freighter was stopped by a U-boat at 9 p. m. yesterday, the crew removed and then the ship torpedoed.)

A Spanish fishing boat brought to La Coruna 13 survivors of the Uruguay's crew of 28. The Uruguay left Buenos Aires April 26 en route to Antwerp with a cargo of wheat and other grains.

Today the U-boats, suddenly renewing their offensive against Allied shipping, sank the French ship Marie Jose, 5,000 tons, with a cluster of torpedoes, and shelled and fired the British tanker, Telena, 7,400 tons, with the probable loss of 25 members of their crews of 87.

The Telena's crew dumped the oil load and abandoned the burning vessel. Tonight fishermen were towing her to port. The attacks were so sudden the crew had not time to man the guns.

Fishemen brought 22 injured, 10 dead and 40 uninjured to port.

Fishermen said they thought they saw two other submarines standing off at a distance.

It was the first submarine raiding in Atlantic shipping lanes since the April 9 invasion of Denmark and Norway.

Japanese Bombs Rain on College

Chungking, May 29 (AP).—Chungking University was reported struck by more than 50 bombs today in continued Japanese air raids against the provisional capital of the Central Chinese government.

Several buildings and valuable equipment were said to have been damaged, but there were few casualties.

(A Japanese naval spokesman said at Hankow that daily air bombardments were planned against Chungking until its "spirit of resistance" was broken.)

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Sagacious Producers Look Ahead, These Days

Sherwood and Wanger Both Outguessed War; Elsie Janis Returns in Hand-Fitted Role; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

SOME OF THE PRODUCERS of our foremost stage and screen plays are gentlemen of conspicuous prescience. Robert E. Sherwood, for example, plumbed so deeply into the fundamentals of war and an innocent people involved in war that subsequent Nazi blitzkriegs in Scandinavia were unable to cause the disruption of his "There Shall Be No Night," but, on the contrary, added inestimably to its timeliness and power.

BELL

In similar manner, Walter Wanger seems to have anticipated events in the fashioning of his picturization of Vincent Sheehan's "Foreign Correspondent." Since "Foreign Correspondent" has been before the cameras for something over three months and will not be completed for another, some fear was felt by those not "in the know" that the Nazi invasion of Holland would have largely dissipated the value of the story, being directed by Alfred Hitchcock as his successor to "Rebecca."

What seems to have happened is that Mr. Wagner foresaw coming events on the other side as far back as when the original script of his picture was being prepared. Occurrences of the past three weeks in the Low Countries have given "Foreign Correspondent" historical accuracy; given the intrigues included in the plot added significance and emphasized the adventurous life and importance of American newsmen abroad.

As a further bet on his clairvoyant judgment, Mr. Wanger has just added $250,000 to the budget for "Foreign Correspondent." An additional quarter of a million on the line seems not to presage an antedated "flop."

Another picture being showered with very elegant adjectives is Republic's "Women in War," dedicated to "those wives, mothers and sweethearts the world over who have borne the horror and heartbreak of war, and whose infinite courage and steadfast devotion have been a beacon of faith and hope for both victor and vanquished." At the moment and from this distance, "Women in War" seems to be distinguished particularly by the fact that it brings Elsie Janis back to the screen. She is cast in the role of O'Neil, matron of nurses on the French front, in charge of a group that includes her own daughter (Wendy Barrie), a relationship that cannot be revealed. After her experience in the First World War, Miss Janis should know her way around in a part like this. It was well over three decades ago that Elsie Janis, as a mere youngster, was doing her impersonations at the old Lafayette Square Theater—now the Belasco—as a rival of the fully matured Albert Chevalier, doing the same thing, the same week, at Chase's, later Poli's and now completely erased from the face of the earth.

To what is generally referred to as the "present generation" of theatergoers, the sudden death of Walter Connolly probably markd only the passing of a sterling actor who came to his greatest fame on the screen. By many of the oldsters, however, Walter Connolly will be remembered as a leading member of the Sothern and Marlowe company that presented Shakespearean repertoire at the Belasco between the years 1911 and 1914; as Helen Hayes' chief support in "The Good Fairy," at the National, in 1931, and later, as costar with Ernest Truex on the same stage in an unfortunate item called "Gather Ye Rosebuds," which, instead of doing that, turned out to be a "bloomer" itself. It was not until 1932 that the mourned Mr. Connolly deserted the living theater for the celluloids. His first appearance on the stage was in 1908—hardly a sound foundation for the view that his expert histrionics were a product of the cinema.

A definite quietus is put upon the current Broadway rumor that the Playwrights' Company is about to take in a fifth dramatist, to replace the late Sidney Howard, by the flat statement of the management that there is no semblance of truth in the report. This is not to say that there is any unwillingness on the part of the present members eventually to take in a fifth playwright, but merely to report that no such action is contemplated at this time. Anyhow, who would the candidate be — said he, sticking his neck out!

Tonight is the last night of "Double or Nothing," at Loew's Capital Theater. Beginning next Monday night at 10, and continuing each Monday night thereafter at the same hour, the Capitol management and Station WOL will offer a new broadcast quiz game to be known as "Jackpot." Questions still will be asked the audience, but each one answered correctly will have a stipulated value to the contestant and a stipulated value to the jackpot. The person who misses gets nothing. But the last person to have answered correctly preceding the one who flunked pulls down the jackpot. Should no one win a jackpot on a given night, the accumulated sum will be carried over to the next week. It is estimated that this new game will enable twice as many persons to compete as did "Double or Nothing."

THE PRINCIPALS IN "LILLIAN RUSSELL"

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, May 29.

MAYOR FRANK HAGUE: Jimmy Cromwell, your candidate for the United States Senate, will make a statement this week announcing that he will not be anybody's rubber stamp. This is to offset the criticism about his being linked with you . . . Cromwell, incidentally, in pursuit of his economic studies, had an appointment to see Hitler in Berlin—but the matter was dropped when he was appointed Minister to Canada.

J. EDGAR HOOVER: An accusation will be made in Congress this week, concerning a Youth Cultural group operating in Paterson, N. J., which instills the ideals of Nazism among the members, whose ages are from 4 to 15 . . . FRANCES STUTZ: That Broadway playboy who allegedly clipped you for $10,000 will be indicted by Dewey this week.

LOIS ANDREW: Do you know that George Jessel offered his services to Canadian government? . . . TONY GALENTO: Connie Drake, fiancee of your late, beloved manager, Joe Jacobs, was rushed to the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital . . . HARRY RICHMAN: Your wife, Hazel Forbes, will join you in Chicago for seven days, and then will move to Arizona for her health . . . JOE SCHENCK: Your friend, A. C. Blumenthal, is in Mexico City now with his wife, Peggy Fears. He's negotiating via long distance, regarding some Federal tax inquiries.

HARVEY D. GIBSON: The two "shills" who heed the barker's pleas, and are the first to rush the box-office window at the Fair's Hawaiian Village, are Phil Plant and his wife, Marjorie. Plant merely owns the place . . . GEN. FRANCO: Harold Dahl, the aviator whose life you spared when his wife sent you her photo, is completing a book. He'll call it "Love and Death in a Spanish Town," which will be mistaken for Elliot Paul's "Life and Death of a Spanish Town." Dahl, incidentally, has a new creditor—Leon & Eddie . . . TONY MARTIN: When you open at the Versailles, Alice Faye, your estranged wife, will be present attired in the Lillian Russell gown she wore in her picture.

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE: Samson Raphaelson, who wrote your "Skylark," is planning the professional education of his 11-year-old son, Joel. He began to question him about his likes and dislikes, and started in an indirect way: "What's your favorite day of the week?" . . . "Wednesday," the boy replied, "because it's halfway to Sunday." "In that case," suggested Raphaelson, "why isn't Saturday your favorite day?" . . . "Because," the boy explained, "it's too close to Monday."

NOEL COWARD: The Calypso singers from the Village Vanguard, who entertained at Mrs. Suydam Cutting's party in your honor, wrote a new Calypso song for that evening, called "Noel Coward, His Lordship."

MARK HELLINGER: Those rare orchids being displayed in the florist shops here are part of the publicity campaign for your newest production, "Brother Orchid."

MARTIN T. MANTON: Albert N. Chaperau, who won executive clemency by testifying against you, is having more trouble. His wife is in Paris, and he can't get her into this country . . . JIM FARLEY: Al Smith has an offer to cover the Democratic convention for a newspaper syndicate, but refused to do it. He feels it will be Roosevelt, by acclamation . . . MAE WEST: Are you really planning a road tour with "DuBarry Was a Lady?" . . . ANNA KROSS: The Mayor is giving assurances that when your term expires this summer, he will re-appoint you as a City Magistrate.

New Musical Film on View At the Little

A fascinatingly fresh approach to music on the screen is revealed in the Little's "First Film Concert," sharing the screen with that masterpiece of human fellowship, "Grand Illusion."

Recalling somewhat those early Vitaphone shorts in which music was heard on the screen simply for its own sake, this French release is exactly what its title says, a "First Film Concert." Noted artists appear before the cameras unhampered by story details, photographed with close-ups not possible in the concert halls, or else enhanced by imaginative illustration of what the music seeks to convey.

Pianist Alfred Cortot plays Claude Debussy's "Children's Corner," while the camera discovers a child enjoying the experiences depicted in the music. This first sequence is the most charming in the film. Elisabeth Schumann sings the Schubert "Ave Maria" and Gregory Piatigorsky, the great Russian violin-cellist, brings his remarkable tone to the Weber Andante and Rondo. Alexandre Brailowsky's playing of the Chopin Valse Brillante is something any hopeful pianist should see. Serge Lifer and the corps de ballet of the Paris Opera appear at that storied theater in a finale which brings to mind the well-loved "Ballerina."

At this time, "Grand Illusion" is an even more heartbreaking experience than it was in 1938, when it was declared by the National Board of Review "The Best Film of the Year Produced in Any Country." Jean Renoir's story of the escaped French prisoner who brings happiness to a German widow is not permitted in Naziland, but with Jean Gabin, Dita Parlo, Erich von Stroheim and Pierre Fresnay in the pivotal roles, it remains one of the cinematic achievements of pre-war civilization.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

(While Louella O. Parsons is on her Honolulu vacation, this column is being written by her daughter, Harriett Parsons, producer of "Screen Snapshots.")

Hollywood, May 29 (INS).—After testing Franchot Tone, Albert Dekker, John Loder and dozens of others for the important role of Dr. Ditten in "Escape," M.-G.-M. has signed Philip Dorn, young Dutch actor, to play the medico who saves Emmy Ritter from execution in a Nazi concentration camp. Figuring Dorn will become a valuable property, Metro has purchased his contract from Universal, the studio which brought him over from Holland a year ago for the lead in "Ski Patrol." He's 6 feet 2, weighs 180 and has brown hair and blue eyes.

LOUELLA PARSONS

David Niven, who is with his regiment in England, has just written his good friend and countryman, Nigel Bruce, that he has been requested to go to France and do a propaganda picture with Leslie Howard and Danielle Darrieux. Said David, "In the light of the advice I received from my commanding officer there is no doubt I will accept." He went on to explain that his superior had advised him grimly: "Go ahead and do it—it will probably mean three more months of life for you."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: All Hollywood sad over the news of Walter Connolly's shockingly suddent death. He had been ill for a week, after a horseback ride brought on a recurrence of some earlier trouble with the veins in his legs, but not one dreamed his condition was dangerous. The film colony's deepest sympathy goes to his widow, Nedda Harrigan.

Greer Garson, with striking red hair worn shoulder length, Jeannette MacDonald and Gene Raymond, Dorothy Lamour and Wynn Rocamora, Mary Martin and Richard Halliday, Freddie Bartholomew with Aunt Cissie, in the enthusiastic audience which applauded "The Merry Widow" revival at the Philharmonic. Walter Woolf King gave a fine account of himself as Danilo, Melville Cooper and Ann Doran, of the films, scored with their comedy and

I'm betting lovely Prima Donna Jarmila Novotna gets some movie offers.

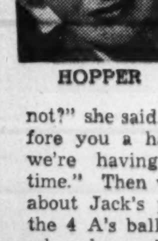

That's all today. Tomorrow's a holiday but there's no rest for the press.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, May 29.

I talked with Elaine Barrymore just after she arrived. She's a flaming redhead now, said they couldn't find enough lights to brighten her black hair on Broadway, so she lightened it herself, and it came out red. I asked her if she'd stay put as Mrs. Barrymore. "Why not?" she said. "You see before you a happy woman—we're having a wonderful time." Then went into raves about Jack's performance at the 4 A's ball in New York, when he pushed the microphone aside, said his forbears worked without one and they did pretty well, then launched into Hamlet's soliloquy, which redeemed him after all the things that happened to his play, "My Dear Children." No, neither Jack's daughter nor Ethel was at the plane to wave good-by.

HOPPER

Elaine's negotiating for a radio show. No one has asked her to play in "The Great Profile," but she'd love to. And when I asked if she'd supply fireworks this summer, she said, "Well, you'll have to have something to keep your mind off the war. I'm used to playing with fire." Well, we'll see!

With our district attorney making a definite drive on all Nazi and Communistic activities around Hollywood, you never know where they're hiding. The other day, a couple of G-men paid a visit to a major studio to nip some "fifth-columning" in the bud. On the set for "Mystery Sea Raider," a couple of German character extras were asked to strip to the waist for a scene. They did so reluctantly and revealed a couple of Nazi swastikas stamped on their underclothing.

It didn't take much investigation to bring the FBI boys over on the run, who took the gentlemen away for questioning.

Times are really getting tough in Hollywood. The executives not only are cutting small salaries, but are slicing their own. And Jack Warner declares that no small salaried person will be dismissed from his studio until it's vitally necessary.

Orson Welles' version of Shakespeare, and records which go with the booklets, are selling throughout the country to colleges and high schools. Orson makes about $1,000 a week from them. But California will have none of it, because in Orson's introduction he declares in a facetious manner that Shakespeare didn't do right by Ann Hathaway.

Frank Fay has made a nice comeback in "I Want a Divorce," and both the Powells—Dick and Joan—are swell in it. . . . Ray Milland and Mitch Leisen are both learning to fly.

Margaret Wycherly, who played the mother in "Tobacco Road" for two and a half years, has a full length part in "Victory" with Betty Field, but gets only 11 lines to speak. Says she just had to leave "Tobacco Road"—she needed a spiritual bath!

Only Two New Films Herald Month of June

'Flight Angels' and 'Earthbound' to Open; Other Amusement Bills

"FLIGHT ANGELS." With its theme on the careers of airline hostesses, this new Warner Brothers film will open tomorrow morning at the Earle Theater. Virginia Bruce, Dennis Morgan, Wayne Morris, Jane Wyman, Ralph Bellamy, John Litel and Dorothea Kent have the leads in the story which further concerns the invention of a stratosphere plane and a man-chase by a blonde. On the stage, "Hip-Hip-Hurray" will present Done Rice, "Fugitive from a Nut House"; Ginger Harmon, jitterbug queen; the Four Sidneys, cyclists; Jimmy and Mildred Mulcay; Karen Zoska and the Roxyettes.

Capitol

"EARTHBOUND." Warner Baxter, as a dead man who couldn't stay dead, has the starring role in this unusual exposition of the art of film magic. This ghost walks and talks, hears and sees, but can be neither heard nor seen by others. Included in the cast are Andrea Leeds, Lynn Bari, Charlie Grapewin, Henry Wilcoxen and Elizabeth Patterson. Cass Daley, that cyclonic songstress, headlines the Capitol stage revue. Carroll and Howe, comedians; St. Clair and Day, dancers, and the Juvelys, trick balancers, are other featured stage performers, with Helene Danizon, danseuse, and the Rhythm Rockets continuing. Opens tomorrow morning.

RKO-Keith's

"IRENE." Anna Naegle and Ray Milland continue for a second week in the melodious screen version of the well-loved musical-comedy. The story tells of an Irish model who becomes the toast of New York through a publicity stunt. May Robson, Roland Young, Alan Marshal, Billie Burke and Marsha Hunt head the supporting cast.

Palace

"WATERLOO BRIDGE." Vivien Leigh and Robert Taylor continue for a second week in this film adaptation of the Robert E. Sherwood play. A tragic romance of the First World War, with a present-day twist, the setting is a London of air-raids and army orders. Virginia Field, Lucile Watson, C. Aubrey Smith and Maria Ouspenskaya lead the support.

Columbia

"BUCK BENNY RIDES AGAIN." Jack Benny and his popular radio gang tell the story of an air performer who discovers that his girl adores the West and that the only way to win her is to be a second Hopalong Cassidy. Returns after a week at the Palace. Andy Devine, Rochester, Phil Harris, Dennis Day, Ellen Drew, and Virginia Dale are some of the players. Opens tomorrow morning.

Trans-Lux

"MARCH OF TIME." The latest issue of the documentary series, "The Philippines: 1898-1946," will be the featured short subject at the newsreel house for the coming week. Gene Tunney appears in the sixth "Information Please" and "Tugboat Mickey" is the Disney cartoon. Opens tomorrow morning.

Open-Air

"STAGECOACH." With Thomas Mitchell in the role which won him his Academy Award for the finest supporting work of the year, this corking melodrama, with Claire Trevor and John Wayne, opens a three-day run this evening at the drive-in auto-theater on the Richmond highway. "Crooked Circles," with ZaSu Pitts and James Gleason, is the added feature.

Glen Echo

THE CRYSTAL POOL is now open at the amusement park, boasting further modern equipment as well as the familiar sandy beach. Over fifty attractions are offered, including the Spanish Garden Ballroom, in which Paul Kain leads his orchestra for dancing every night except Sundays. Adele Van, songstress, and Bill Gibson, guitarist, are recent additions to his musicians.

Atlas

PAT ROONEY, JR., and Herman Timberg, jr., will costar on the stage of the northeast "combination" house, opening a two-day engagement Sunday afternoon. The sons of the popular variety stars will offer songs and comedy and will be supported by several other acts. "La Conga Nights" and "Sons of the Navy" form the double-feature screen bill.

Wilson Line

MARSHALL HALL opens its season today. The new streamliner, S. S. Mount Vernon, sails from its Seventh street wharf this morning at 9:30 on its first voyage to the playground. Other trips will be made at 2 and 3:30 p. m. Trips down the Potomac to Mount Vernon are offered at 9:30 a. m. and 2 p. m. Moonlight Cruises, with McWilliams' orchestra playing for dancing, sail each evening, except Mondays, at 8:30 p. m.

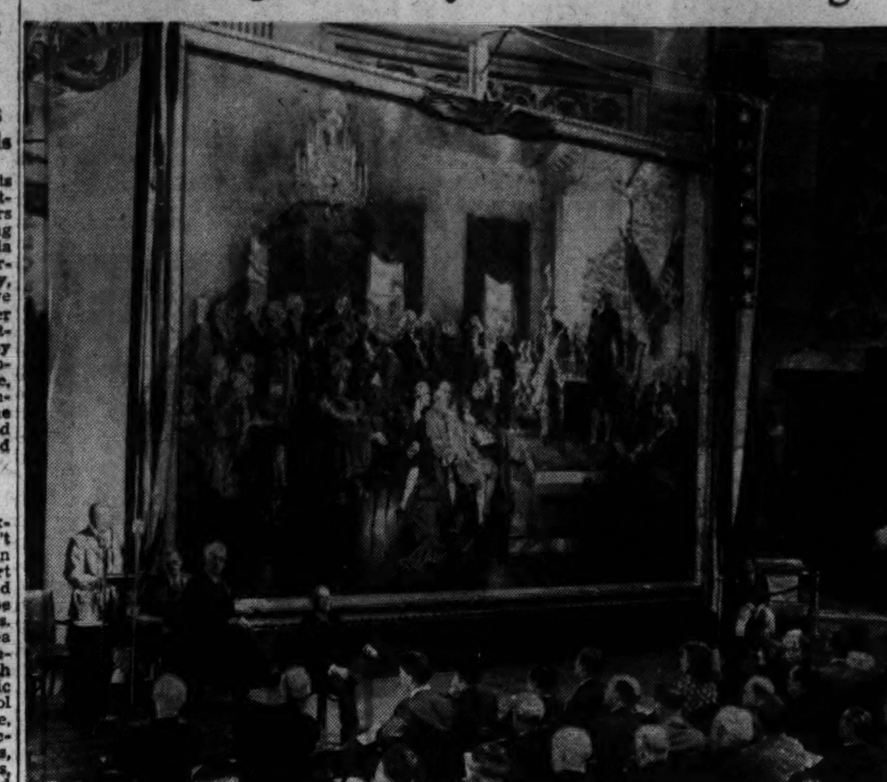

Metropolitan

With Dorothy Lamour again bundled into her far-famed sarong, "Typhoon" returns this morning to the downtown amusement area, opening at the Metropolitan after a week at the Earle. This fanciful but gently restrained epic in Technicolor, while no great shakes in cinematic art, affords one escape into the never-never land of unreality.

This particular terra infirma is a South Sea isle upon which Dorothy has been cast at the impressionable age of 11. Papa was a sea captain who drank too well and in the midst of a wild torrent packed his lass onto a raft. On the island Dorothy meets a female monkey with whom she keeps a tidy house in a tree top. Robert Preston and Lynne Overman land on the island in an involved search for black pearls. An angry native chases them o'er the bright blue sea for his stolen pearls, decides to smoke them off the island. But Mother Nature provides a conveniently damp typhoon to put out the fires.

Lynne Overman is highly amusing on occasion as the race track tout who quit the merry-go-rounds to be a pearl-fisher. Preston is properly virile as the lad who flunked out of the Navy and took to drink—and Miss Lamour. J. Carrol Naish, Chief Thunder Cloud and Frank Reicher are others in the cast.

Parley Warned Of Totalitarian Church Threat

Baptist Convention Hears of Concern To U. S. Ministry

Speaking at the First Baptist Church, Hyattsville, Md., the executive secretary of the convention stressed the importance of the approaching nationwide religious liberty parley here on June 11, when hundreds of Christian clergy and laymen, Jewish rabbis and others will discuss vital issues affecting all faiths.

The call for the religious liberty conclave, explained Dr. Weaver, stresses that "the preservation of our national civilization depends upon the spiritual unity, the lofty purpose and the heroic devotion of the American people."

Outlook Is Encouraging

An encouraging outlook for Baptist work in the District was pictured by Dr. Weaver, who pointed out that eleven churches are now either engaged in erection of new buildings or enlarging their plants. He also lauded the work of the Baptist Children's Home and the Baptist Home for the Aged, which will shortly mark their twenty-fifth and sixtieth anniversaries, respectively.

Following a fellowship supper in the parish hall, the delegates assembled in the church auditorium to hear Baptist leaders bring optimistic echoes of the recent Northern Baptist Convention to Atlantic City.

Brookmont Loan Approved

The convention later in the day approved a loan of $1,000 to the Brookmont, Md., Baptist congregation for purchase of a site on which to erect a permanent church edifice. The group now meets in the Brookmont Community House. First Baptist Church, Washington, "mother" church of the Brookmont congregation, at its meeting tonight is expected to extend a $1,000 loan.

Senator Barkley Accepts $30,000 Canvas for Capitol

President Roosevelt and Congressional leaders of both parties yesterday rededicated the Nation to defense of its liberties in a colorful ceremony in the Capitol rotunda.

Members of both houses sat below the huge dome as Speaker Bankhead read a Presidential message before the unveiling of Howard Chandler Christy's $30,000 painting of the signing of the Constitution.

Mr. Roosevelt, in his letter to Bankhead, declared that "beyond the seas, the way of life so brilliantly outlined in the document that we salute today is under attack by force of arms unprecedented in human history."

Sober Resolve Needed

"The present occasion is one far less for rejoicing," the President warned, "than for sober resolve: Resolve that neither by moral unfitness nor neglect of our physical defense shall we permit the lamp of freedom to be extinguished in this land."

The audience of 500 applauded as two American flags were drawn clear of the 20-by-30-foot oil painting, while the Navy Band, massed in the Capitol portico, played the national anthem.

Barkley Accepts Painting

The painting was formally accepted by Senate Majority Leader Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, who called on the country to defend the institutions established in the Constitution "from all corrosive influence from within and from any brutal juggernaut that may assail them from without."

Speaker Bankhead said that America is confronted today "with the menace of diabolical doctrines that threaten to destroy constitutional governments everywhere.

"No sacrifice is too great and no hardship too burdensome to preserve our precious heritage," he declared. "Even though constitutional government should succumb everywhere else, it shall be preserved inviolate in the Western Hemisphere."

Senator Austin (Republican), of Vermont, noting the "mortality of republics in the old world," said the American form of government "will endure as long as the people are worthy of it."

To Remain in Rotunda

Other speakers were Representative Keller (Democrat), of Illinois, and Guyer (Republican), of Kansas. The invocation was offered by the Rev. ZeBarney T. Phillips, Senate chaplain. The Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House, spoke the benediction.

Christy's canvas shows the 39 signers of the Constitution in Independence Hall in Philadelphia on September 17, 1787. The life-size figures of Washington, Franklin and Hamilton dominate the Georgian Hall, while Richard Dobbs Spaight, of North Carolina, signs the document.

David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, said the painting will remain in the rotunda until a permanent location is selected. The rotunda already is circled by murals.

Text of Roosevelt Letter

The text of the President's letter follows:

"We should all be immeasurably happier could this ceremony take place in another kind of world—in a tranquil world where men and nations alike were free to seek out peacefully their individual destinies.

"But, tragically, the condition of the world is vastly different. Beyond the seas, the way of life so brilliantly outlined in the document that we salute today is under attack by force of arms unprecedented in human history.

"And so I believe that I express the sentiments of every loyal and thoughtful member of this democracy when I say that the present occasion is one far less for rejoicing than for sober resolve: Resolve that neither by moral unfitness nor neglect of our physical defense shall we permit the lamp of freedom to be extinguished in this land.

"It was truly a momentous scene whose reproduction is to be unveiled in the Capitol. It marked the culmination of a prodigious, unparalleled and amazingly successful effort to express in a charter of government the eternal spirit of a just and humane society. God grant that the day is not far distant when the spirit will be free to assert itself in the councils of all mankind."

Judges Speed Criminal Cases Before Recess

3 Jurists to Preside In Effort to Clear Present Court Jam

Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat of the District Court announced yesterday that, starting Monday, three judges will preside in criminal sessions to clear up the present jam of cases before the court's summer recess.

Justice James M. Proctor will join Justices F. Dickinson Letts and James W. Morris on the criminal bench.

A third judge in criminal sessions was requested by District Attorney Edward M. Curran because 139 criminal cases were awaiting trial in the 14 trial days left before the summer recess. There were 64 defendants in jail, whose cases are due to have priority, as it is the policy of the court not to leave defendants unable to make bond in jail during the recess.

Meanwhile, civil sessions of the court reported progress in reducing the accumulation of cases which last year had the docket about two years behind its schedule. Jury cases which used to be tried about 23 months after being placed on the calendar now are reached in 15 months. Nonjury cases formerly reached 22 months, but now are disposed of in about nine months.

The court's rapid progress exhausted the calendar for the term several weeks ago and a supplement was made up. The judges now are working on a second supplement.

Contract Bridge

Slams are even more difficult than game contracts to conquer. A letter from K. G. McI., a good player, telling about a slam he missed, bears this out:

"I sat East, vulnerable: South was dealer:

North: ♠ K Q 8 7 6 3; ♡ none; ◇ A Q 10 4 2; ♣ 6 5

West: ♠ none; ♡ Q 10 6 5; ◇ 8 7 6 3; ♣ A J 8 4 2

East: ♠ A 9 5 2; ♡ A K J 9 7 3; ◇ none; ♣ Q 7 3

South: ♠ J 10 4; ♡ 8 4 2; ◇ K J 9 5; ♣ K 10 9

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Double
Pass	2 ♣	2 ◇	2 ♡
3 ◇	3 ♡	4 ◇	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	5 ◇	5 ♡
Pass	Pass	6 ◇	?

"At this stage of the bidding," writes our contributor, "I decided I had better make a forcing pass; perhaps my partner might have diamond tricks and want to double. After all, I had bid strongly up to the five level; I'd leave it up to her to double or bid six. To my surprise, she passed.

"No need to go into the play. Six diamonds went down one trick. I led the king of hearts. Six hearts is cold!"

The play probably developed like this: East led his king of hearts and declarer trumped and played the ace of diamonds, discovering the bad division. Next he led a little spade to dummy. East hopping up with the ace, and deciding to "pump" declarer rather than give his partner a ruff, continued with a heart. North trumped again and overtook the diamond queen with dummy's king to ruff the last losing heart with the trump ten.

Declarer now tried to reenter dummy through a small-spade lead, but the ten of spades was trumped by West, who, instead of laying down the ace of clubs, played her last heart. This was taken by one of South's two remaining diamonds, and the last diamond was used to extract West's trump. The spade four then provided access to declarer's hand, where there was nothing left but high spades.

Opposition Tactics Imperil Housing Bill

Chances of Revival Slim as Committee Takes It Up Today

A serious blow against chances of reviving the Administration's proposed housing bill was struck yesterday on the eve of renewed efforts to draft a compromise measure.

A Southern opponent of President Roosevelt's bill to enlarge the loan authorization of USHA circulated among his colleagues a copy of a speech of a USHA official praising the fact that white and colored residents live side by side in some 20 Federal housing projects.

Distribution of this speech, which was delivered April 28 by Robert C. Weaver, special assistant to the administrator of USHA, is calculated by opponents of USHA to alienate many Southern Congressmen who otherwise might have been friendly or lukewarm to the Federal housing program.

The House Banking and Currency Committee is scheduled to meet this morning in an effort to work out a compromise on the proposed bill. However, one unfriendly member of the committee declared that Weaver's speech "will kill the whole program."

Speech Made Here

Speaking before the Third National Negro Congress in the Labor Department Auditorium, Weaver said that "in addition to the six USHA-aided projects in which both Negro and white tenants are now living, there are 14 projects for mixed occupancy developed by the housing division of PWA. This mixed occupancy has in no instance occasioned any serious and lasting difficulties."

"What effect the Government's public housing program will have on the problem of residential segregation only time will tell," he said. "However, the program has already made an initial demonstration of two important factors involved in this problem: first, that Negro occupancy need not result in depreciation of property, that the Negro is a responsible tenant in a decent home; and, second, that the two races can live harmoniously together in the same project, that the Negro can be a good neighbor as well as a good tenant."

Bogged Down in House

The housing bill, which as it passed the Senate last year would add $800,000,000 to the loan authority of USHA, has been bogged down in the House all session because of disagreement among the Democrats.

At today's meeting of the Banking Committee, it had been hoped to iron out these difficulties with a compromise bill.

While Administration leaders realized that important changes would have to be made in the original bill, they have hoped to include in the new measure provision for President Roosevelt's recent suggestion that USHA housing might be used in small towns booming through activity of plants producing material for the national defense.

In 1921, after two years duty at the Naval Academy, he enrolled for aviation instruction at the Naval Air Station in Anacostia, then served with the air squadrons of the battle fleet for two years.

He was made head of the air department of the aircraft carrier Langley, after three years as commander of the Naval Air Station at Coco Solo in the Canal Zone. From the Langley he went to the Lexington, and in 1929 was appointed aid to the Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics.

From 1932 to 1934 he commanded the aircraft squadrons and attending craft as well as the air base at Coco Solo. New Incentive

In ordinary circumstances the opinion of the Supreme Court in the Apex Hosiery case would be a source of intense interest to many Americans. It involves an issue of far-reaching importance—the status of labor under the antitrust laws. For the time being, however, this dispute arising out of a sit-down strike tends to emphasize the contrast between the recent era of violent labor controversies and the present.

Having failed to collect damages under the antitrust laws from the union which staged a sit-down strike in its plant in 1937, the Apex company is now carrying its case to the State courts. The outcome of this new effort will not be lacking in interest. But for the immediate future at least it may be largely an academic interest. For sit-down strikes are no longer tolerated and there seems to be little possibility that any comparable means of industrial warfare will be employed in the near future.

No doubt one reason for the passing of that epidemic of violent labor disputes which afflicted the country in 1937 is the more general disposition of employers today to bargain collectively with labor. But other considerations have arisen to bar the successful use of such tactics. The Nation is now chiefly interested in strengthening its defenses and in building up its industrial capacity. In these circumstances the sit-down strike would be so grossly out of place that resort to it would jeopardize the standing of any labor organization.

Nor will the public be more tolerant of jurisdictional disputes that may interfere with the smooth development of the defense program. Confronted by this new demand for unity of action on the part of all groups, rival labor leaders have a powerful incentive to compromise their differences and work for harmony they have previously been unable to attain.

Logic And Generosity

The relationship between our defense problem and the European war situation is too clear to require emphasis. It was only when the chances of an Allied victory began rapidly to decline under the terrific pounding of Germany's mechanized divisions and superior air force that Americans became alarmed over the safety of this continent and this hemisphere.

It was only then, and not until then, that this Nation became fully awake to the grim possibility that what had happened to Denmark and Norway, to the Netherlands and Belgium, might soon happen to Great Britain and France, might some day happen to the defenseless nations on this side of the ocean.

To put it another way, our complacence regarding the state of our defenses had been based not only on the existence of the Atlantic Ocean but also on the existence of the British fleet and the French army. With the British fleet sunk or surrendered, with the French army crushed, the once impregnable ocean barrier would seem impregnable no longer.

On the other hand, should the Allies emerge from the desperate situation in which they now find themselves, the jitters that possess many Americans today would vanish like mist.

It is apparent, therefore, that we have a gigantic stake in an Allied victory. It is far more than a moral stake. It arises not merely from the circumstance that the Nazi philosophy violates basic canons of American civilization. It is to a very real extent a material stake as well. As long as the Allies hold the fort this hemisphere is wholly safe.

It would, therefore, seem to be the counsel of elementary wisdom on our part to do everything we can to help the Allies within the limitations laid down by the Neutrality Act. And there are ways to help without assuming any of the risks which others have so freely shouldered.

We can help with food, clothing and medicine for the millions of refugees now added to the burdens of France. We can help with surplus wheat and cotton. We can help by turning over many other supplies that we can easily spare.

Nor is it enough to depend merely on private benefactions. During the period from 1919 to 1924 the Government sent relief to Russia to the tune of $78,000,000. After the terrible Japanese earthquake of 1923 the United States sent large sums and large quantities of supplies for the relief of its victims. Our generosity to the victims of disaster has repeatedly been manifested in other ways. Now it is also good policy to be generous.

Sacrifice Is Necessary

Not much can be expected of the emergency tax program which Administration leaders are asking Congress to enact before it adjourns. Presumably the bill will raise existing rates without attempting a major adjustment to meet the new situation in regard to expenditures for preparedness. That task will necessarily be left to the new Congress, now scheduled to meet next January.

The current move to cover defense outlays is significant, therefore, chiefly because it indicates a willingness on the part of Congressional leaders to face up to the problem of paying for national defense. Heretofore the tendency has been to vote whatever appeared necessary to insure the national security without considering the sacrifices that such a program will necessarily entail. The present change of attitude is a net gain, regardless of what detailed changes may be effected by the tax bill.

Even the proposed increase of more than $600,000,000 in taxes will not obviate the necessity of raising the national debt limit. Emergency defense expenditures are being piled on top of a budget already swollen by outlays far in excess of anticipated revenue. Congress should have had the foresight to trim appropriations bills for ordinary governmental service. So long as spending for items not essential to the national security continues at the present rate, we cannot hope to achieve a sound fiscal policy merely by boosting tax rates to even higher levels.

The present tax program must be regarded, then, as a stop-gap. It is a token of good faith on the part of the expiring Congress. Next year the issue of setting our fiscal house in order must be met in a far more realistic manner. The public will have to be told in no uncertain terms that national strength to meet any emergency will require universal sacrifices. Exemptions from the income tax will doubtless have to be reduced and rates in the lower brackets increased.

We cannot too quickly recognize the fact that a major defense effort will bear heavily upon every citizen. Some groups will have to forego subsidies and special favors. Others will have to pay a much larger share of their income to the Treasury. Preparing the public for these sacrifices is a vital part of the hardening process which is now so obviously in order.

Good Work

Yesterday's action by the House Judiciary Committee in reporting out the Hatch bill shows an admirable appreciation of its responsibility in this period of grave uncertainties. A few weeks ago it indulged in a revolt against this effort to lift government service above corrupt politics. Now it has sent the bill to the House floor by an overwhelming vote.

Representative Sumners' committee is to be congratulated on its good judgment, even though sober second thinking was essential to bring about this happy result. The House should now quickly pass the bill so that political machines in every State and city will have ample notice that they cannot levy assessments upon employes paid in whole or in part from Federal funds.

In times like these not a single voice should be raised against a measure directed solely to the cause of cleaner and more effective government.

Experts On The Job

What part the President's Commission on National Defense will play in speeding up the rearmament program cannot now be determined. The duties of that agency are only vaguely defined. Its powers appear to be rather sharply limited. Should the United States be brought to the brink of war, a much stronger defense organization would certainly be needed.

The naming of this commission does indicate, however, that high caliber men and women in every field are ready to put their services at the disposal of the Government in time of need. Edward R. Stettinius, jr., chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, is admirably qualified to supervise the flow of raw materials into plants turning out materiel for the Army and Navy. William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors Corporation, has a special talent for speeding up the production of airplane motors, machine tools and other defense items.

Other members of the commission are equally well chosen to represent the interests of various groups affected by the defense program. President Roosevelt has brought together a body of experts who can give valuable service to the cause of converting appropriations into guns, airplanes and ships. While only Mr. Knudsen and Mr. Stettinius will give their full time to their assignments, the commission as a body should certainly be able to render expert advice on many phases of the national defense problem.

Appreciation of the need for expert service is also shown in the appointment of Donald M. Nelson, executive vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., as procurement director of the Treasury. This is the key position in the Government's purchasing service.

In theory the new commission must work through the Council of National Defense, which, as President Roosevelt reluctantly admitted is composed of Secretaries Woodring, Edison, Ickes, Wallace and Hopkins. The President told newspapermen to forget about this council within his Cabinet in announcing the new expert body. But this is no time to forget deficiencies that should be quickly overcome.

At the moment all that can be said is that the President has recognized the need for calling in experts to assist the defense program, and that men of proven leadership have responded. Effective utilization of their services in the national interest now becomes a question of proper internal organization.

Striking At Democracy

A bill by Representative Allen, of Louisiana, calls for the deportation of Harry R. Bridges, West Coast labor leader. Naturally protests have come from the defense committee formed when Bridges was facing deportation proceedings. But the larger issue raised by this proposal is whether a breach shall be made in the Constitution to strike at a leader of the C. I. O.

James M. Landis, dean of the Harvard Law School, presided for many weeks at hearings to determine whether Mr. Bridges was deportable as an enemy of the established political order. Mr. Landis concluded that the tactics followed by the C. I. O. labor leader were not revolutionary but in accord with democratic principles. The case against Mr. Bridges was accordingly dropped and there is no excuse for treating him as other than a law-abiding citizen.

The Allen bill is plainly unconstitutional and it seems entirely unlikely that it will receive serious consideration. However, it is well to call attention to the extremes to which some members of Congress are prepared to go to rid the country of aliens whom they regard as undesirable.

The framers of the Constitution were aware of the dangers of permitting the Legislature to punish individuals without benefit of trial. Hence they forbade Congress to pass bills of attainder—bills that are a "species of extrajudicial procedure, for the direct punishment of political offenders."

It does not require a knowledge of Constitutional law to realize the enormity of a proposal that would condemn a man to deportation by a mere legislative decree. Lightning thus invoked might strike anybody who happened to incur the displeasure of Congress. It would not be necessary to limit attacks to aliens whose radical views and union activities have made them objects of dislike and suspicion to influential groups.

Even Mr. Bridges' worst enemies would have cause to regret his departure if it were effected by ignoring constitutional prohibitions against the kind of legislation Representative Allen has proposed.

The Freakness

Operators of the Johns Hopkins Hospital Turtle Derby are to be commended for their efforts to keep this annual "Freakness" on the level. There is, it is true, some precedent for working turtles long hours to defeat swifter opponents. From the academic point of view, however, the injection of craft into a test of strength is deplorable.

Human and animal frailty in this respect are as deeply fundamental as the racing instinct itself. Ever since one of man's remote, single-cell predecessors learned that better food was to be had by going from place to place more rapidly than its fellows, trials of speed have been second in interest only to physical combat. The utilitarian origins of the sport have made it inevitable that certain contestants should employ private methods and that rival contestants, if beaten, should protest.

The task confronting the managers of the turtle derby, therefore, is well recognized. The record of skullduggery in such tournaments is deplorably long. Bullfrogs have been stuffed with lead pellets to render them sluggish; jumping beans have been filed thin to goad the unhappy worms inside into kicking more violently against the hot sands of the track.

It is good to know that such low practices are actively discouraged in the Johns Hopkins derby. But if, despite precautions, there are claims of fouls, the public ought not to be too critical. For what is gained by throwing mud at a turtle?

Physicians are curing almost as many diseases with sulfanilamide and its derivatives today as they used to cure with calomel.

"I have never painted my lips, smoked a cigaret, spoken a slang word, worn a bathing suit, had a date or kissed a man," declares a woman evangelist. Is she bragging or complaining?

Scientists say the world weighs 36,000,000 sextillion tons. It's rather foolish for you to try to carry it around on your shoulders.

Comparative Defense

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: President Roosevelt's fireside chat actually does not tell the people of the country what they should know. The people of the country already know that our national defense during the wartime period is greater than our national defense peacetime disarmament period ending in 1932.

What the people want to know is the comparison of our national defense in 1932 with other nations and then what the comparison is, say in 1936, compared to other nations during those years.

It will be found that in 1932 our national defense was better, and we spent more for it, than any other nation in the world, but in 1936 we spent less than two world powers and only just as much as two other world powers, considering the billions of dollars given to President Roosevelt to do with as he saw fit, moneys never given to any previous President.

A scandal still exists in our national defense that must be suffered by those responsible in the Administration during the past seven years. EVERETT H. HOLMES.

Bouquet For Mr. Dies

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It's no mean compliment to the much-abused Dies Committee that one of its most vociferous detractors, Franklin D. Roosevelt, should belatedly cite this committee on un-American activities, as worthy of appeal where information on alien activities is sought.

Even the New Deal may learn.

No Trojan Horse

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Within a month Germany has indicated to the world how completely annihilating force and espionage can be in establishing Mr. Hitler's ideas of social control. At first it was thought that this ruthless combination could work only in the smaller nations, but France has disproved that.

Now America sets itself to the task of preparing against any such disastrous eventualities. Perhaps we can proceed on the business assumption that 90 per cent of the population is honest and loyal. But how about the 10 per cent? What destructive part can this 10 per cent play in our industrial, military and naval preparations?

Oddly enough America has a minority population of 13,000,000 people, no member of which has ever proved traitorous in war or peace. When it has come to plotting against either the State or the Nation; in accepting foreign gold; revealing secrets; or blowing up plants, no black American has ever been proved guilty.

If there ever was a time when America needed the loyalty and service of this group it is now, for it is no longer a matter of North and South or black and white, but it is the future safety of every man and woman who desires to see America survive.

Correction

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In an article in The Post of May 19, entitled "Two D. C. Women Trace Ancestry Back to William the Conqueror," I, as retiring president of the National Genealogical Society, was seriously misquoted.

In the second to last paragraph it is stated that I said: "The study of geneology proves 'how silly nationalism is.'" As thus quoted it might be said that I favor the breaking down of nationalism, leaving the world international, which was not my intention.

The reporter asked me whether there was any noticeable tendency for members of our society, in tracing their ancestry to various European countries, to feel definitely partial toward those countries, as against other countries. I said that I had not noticed any such feeling, as most of the members traced to several different countries. For example, how silly it would be in my own case, since my ancestors were Swiss, Danish, French, German, English, Dutch, Welsh and Irish. So I can't help being anything but a good American. In your article, the "English" were omitted.

I do not wish this statement to stand unchallenged, as sometime later someone might quote it as a sentiment of mine, to my harm.

The Pepper Resolution

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I be allowed to applaud the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for its distinct service to the Army Air Corps and the national defense program, by knocking down by a vote of 12 to 1 the resolution of Senator Pepper, which proposed that the United States Government be empowered to sell part of our Army and Navy air force to the Allies.

America's greatest need in grave periods is wisdom from Congress, a great air force, a strong Navy, and a well-trained Army, with mobile units, antiaircraft batteries, and a capable, well-rounded counterespionage department, one that will have the intelligence to mete out justice as well as punishment where deserved.

"On 'Fifth Columns'"

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: Your editorial of today, entitled "On 'Fifth Columns'" shows that at least one great newspaper has come to realize that our present war hysteria threatens the very democracy we all want to preserve.

This is a time for calm thinking, so that there can be intelligent, common sense action. Out-Hitlering Hitlerism in this country cannot but destroy the very thing we are trying to save.

Keep up the good work!

EDGAR MARKHAM.

Washington, May 26.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I should like to congratulate you for your courageous editorial of May 25 "On 'Fifth Columns'." It is a heartening indication of the fact that the American press cannot be frightened into pursuing the course now being followed by the controlled press of Italy.

Defense Of North Dakota

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One Mr. B. C. Clarke, of Washington, has addressed to you an attack on Senator Gerald P. Nye which most definitely would be ignored except that he incorporated comments equally as vicious against the people of the Senator's State, which is also mine—and my family's since 1871.

Senator Nye has been abused by experts; he is well able to take care of himself. Mr. Clarke's letter may give encouragement to that sort of hysterical thinking which expresses itself by shrieking "Pro-German!" at everyone who isn't doing his damnedest to sacrifice American blood in another foreign war, but that is about all; it will be enjoyed immensely by those who think of other nations first and the sons of their own Nation second, but beyond that it would be just another letter, except for its references to the "Germans and Scandinavians" who settled in the "dust bowl."

Mr. Clarke's thinking is typical of that sort of Easterner (and they are pleasantly few in number) whose thinking stops at the Alleghenies.

Doubtless Mr. Clarke would cheerfully give us back to the Indians. If all Easterners were like Mr. Clarke I daresay we wouldn't mind. He speaks of "isolationists," a term, incidentally, hung on the "noninterventionists," such as Senator Nye, and not invented by them, and in the same letter evinces a provincialism almost astounding for 1940.

Those "Germans and Scandinavians" to whom Mr. Clarke so contemptuously refers were good enough to do a fair amount of service in the last war for their country.

It may interest Mr. Clarke to know that North Dakota's contribution to the total increment of armed forces in the World War was 2.12 per cent above the national average.

Sparing the feelings of some Eastern States, let me add that North Dakota registrants in the last war were 77.52 per cent physically qualified for service, in contrast to a national average of 70.41 per cent.

I might go further and add that desertions by North Dakotans were about 1 per cent, as against a national average of 4.46 per cent.

Mr. Clarke would not know, of course, the reason for the immigration of probably 98 per cent of those "Germans and Scandinavians."

He ought to know that they came here to get away from Europe and everything it contains; he ought to know that they came here for political reasons and economic reasons but also in vast numbers to escape the militaristic systems of Europe, and this was particularly true of the Germans.

When they came they didn't huddle in the Eastern cities and perpetuate alien ways and alien thinking. They legged for the prairie country, and whether Mr. Clarke believes it or not, he probably chewed up a quantity of No. 1 hard spring North Dakota wheat in his breakfast toast this morning. When they came to America they became producers, as distinguished from processors.

And having come, they have not looked back.

If Mr. Clarke would look beyond his devotion to one side in the European war he might be able to see that the obvious, natural, only possible reason for Senator Nye's introduction of his war debt stamp bill was to effect a grim reminder of the fact that we went to war in Europe once and got out of it.

GERALD W. MOVIUS,
Secretary to Senator Nye.

Substitoot!

I am that unsung sufferer of the teaching profession, the substitute.

At my coming the joyful word goes round the playground that Miss X is sick and we got a substitoot. Yippee!

The bell rings. I stand at my desk. The trampling horde comes in. Forty pairs of eyes are studying me. Oh, to look commanding! Oh, to weigh 150 pounds and wear authoritative double lenses on a black cord!

One little girl is rushing up to me: Loudly she announces, so that all may hear: "I just want to tell you that these boys and girls are somethin' awful, and they always take a disadvantage of a substitoot." You're telling me?

"Now listen, you guys," roars the class president, "just because we got a substitoot, who probably dont know how to handle us, is no reason for us to act up."

No reason at all, boys and girls. But are you reasonable beings? Weird tales told by fellow substitues stir slimily in the subconscious. One had said. "It really made me nervous when the children started jumping out of the windows. Then I thought of something. I told them that if they'd come in and sit quietly in their seats I would do a tap-dance for them. That seemed to appeal to them and they sat absolutely spellbound while I tapped until the bell rang."

Alas, I cannot tap. And what is that, brewing in the back row? Is a spitball barrage impending? Best to plunge at once into the opening exercises. We salute the flag. We sing. We take attendance. And we all laugh heartily at the substitute's rendition of names such as Kazumi or Fusako.

Someone is thirsty. "Kin I git a drink?" Many are thirsty. Some day I must write an article on the thirst of the American school child under a substitute. There is nothing like it in the universe. No traveler in the driest deserts of Arabia can know such all-consuming need for water as these children!

On with the lessons. First, we have topics on health. Gladys has raised her hand:

"I will give a few rules of health," she says confidently. First, you must take a bath every three weeks."

Hoots and jeers from the class.

"I mean every three days," she amends quickly.

"If you don't, you will have B. O.," someone contributes from the back row.

Further valuable contributions to knowledge are made. And then it is time for arithmetic. A bitter argument over who shall pass the arithmetic paper. Another bitter one over the page number in the arithmetic book. Arguments terminated abruptly by the unleashing of the spitball barrage.

Order finally is restored, but class morale is badly shaken. Heavy casualties occur among the pencil points, necessitating constant pilgrimages to the sharpener. Another tidal wave of thirst engulfs us.

But at last we settle down to the soothing routine of numbers. I am beginning to feel almost human again when the bell for recess rings.

"Form in line and pass out quietly," I say, with no attempt at humor.

Pass out quietly! Have you seen salmon leaping upstream in the spring? Have you seen the rushing cataracts of Niagara? You have seen nothing. Teachers standing in the hall are heard to remark as the human cannonballs come hurtling down the hall, "Apparently we have a substitute today."

The bell again! In pile the children. A fight begun on the playground is carried into the classroom, necessitating several after-school appointments. Everybody is thirsty again. Can the reservoirs last until 3 o'clock? I wonder.

Reading begins. The class is divided into two groups. Group 2 is the dumb group, explains Group 1, tactfully. Heavy weather after this. But finally peace descends, and all become absorbed in their books and in making surreptitious raids on the lunch boxes in their desks. A tropical aroma of warm bananas hangs over the room.

The 12 o'clock bell. Music in our ears! How could Poe have overlooked this melody in his poem?

How different the 1 o'clock bell. Positively jangling.

At 2 I am told that "we have our civic meeting and we got to hold a Court of Good Speech." A judge is appointed, two attorneys and a jury. Little Freddie is tried for the heinous offense of saying "ain't" at 8:50 p. m. on the northeast corner of the playgrounds.

The trial proceeds with great formality. Both attorneys make eloquent addresses, with an occasional "objection substained" from the worthy judge. Then the judge makes a speech, loaded with legal terminology, but cannot think how to dismiss the jury. There is an awkward pause. But the judge rallies and says firmly to his jury, "Scram, guys" A verdict of guilty is brought in.

Next a drama is announced. Its title is "Politeness." The cast is composed of one villain and four hefty heroes. The plot unfolds simply and directly when the villain snatches a book from one of the heroes. All four leap upon the villain and give him a walloping, emerging victoriously to announce that this shows a good citizen must always be polite.

The good citizens are overpowered, however, in the dash for the door as the bell for dismissal rings. Still, many pause on the threshold to hope politely that I will come tomorrow.

But tomorrow I go to another school, bringing joy to other boys and girls, hearing upon another playground the joyful cry resound, "Yippee! The substitoot." W. W.

On Free Speech

By Mark Sullivan

A Privilege Abused

I LISTENED to President Roosevelt's "fireside chat" about national defense, especially what he said about the enemy within our gates, the "Trojan horse," the "fifth column"—that such must not be allowed in America. I listened to that, and felt assured.

Then, next morning, I went through the mail on my desk. I found some announcements from the Communist Party, publicity "hand-outs." I read that the Communist Party is about to hold its national convention, this week. I quote and condense:

"The Communist Party's national convention will be held in New York City May 30 to June 2. The probable Presidential and Vice Presidential nominees, Earl Browder and James W. Ford, nationally prominent Negro leader, will deliver their acceptance speeches Sunday, June 2. The speeches will be heard over coast to coast hookups, of the Mutual Broadcasting System and National Broadcasting Company, from 1:30 to 2 p. m. Eastern Daylight Saving time. The Columbia Broadcasting System will interview Earl Browder over a national hookup from 8 to 8:15 p. m."

So—on one Sunday night, Mr. Roosevelt on the radio, saying there must be no Trojan horse in America. On the next Sunday night, the Communist Party and Mr. Browder on the radio!

THE PARTY sends out voluminous advance publicity. Obligingly, for the benefit of newspapers, the publicity handouts include advance suggestions of what the party platform will contain. Some of it is attack upon Mr. Roosevelt. Up to a year or so ago they used to praise Mr. Roosevelt. Since he showed sympathy for the Allies, and especially since he favored Finland, the Communists revile him. I quote and condense:

"The granting of war credits to Finland revealed the war course of the Administration. Repudiate the militarization and armaments program . . . The imperialist role of the Roosevelt Administration . . . The Roosevelt Administration, supported by decisive sections of monopoly capital, is endeavoring to create 'national unity' . . . which aims to tie the American people to the war chariot of the economic royalists . . ."

Most of the platform prospectus is the usual Communist thing. I quote and condense:

"The Communist Party of the United States stands stronger and more united around the banner of Marxism-Leninism . . . It is necessary to heighten the Bolshevik vigilance of the party . . . We must develop to the maximum the international working class solidarity of the American workers with the workers of the glorious land of socialism, the Soviet Union . . . The present situation demands of the Communists that they act in the way Lenin taught; in the way taught now by the great, wise leader of the working people, Stalin."

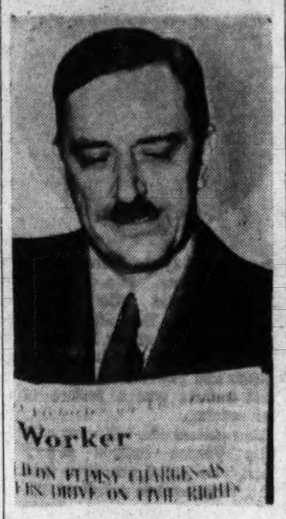

That, ladies and gentlemen is what you will hear when you turn on your radio next Sunday afternoon and evening. You can't escape it. It will be on all major chains. The broadcasts, says the Communist announcement, "were granted by the three major chains, in response to our request for free time."

THE RADIO PEOPLE say, truly, that it is not up to them to keep the Communist convention off the air. They have a policy of giving time for speeches of candidates of all political parties, major and minor. They say, accurately, that the Communists have legal standing as a political party.

But could not the radio people change their rules just a trifle? Could they not say "We will give time to all candidates for President, except such as are now under sentence to jail?" That would bar Mr. Browder. Or could they say, "We will give time to all Presidential candidates except convicted liars and perjurers?" Or the radio people could bar the whole Communist Party by making their rule read: "We will give time to all political parties except such as are affiliated with a foreign government."

But it isn't really up to the radio companies. It is up to the Government. Whether the Federal Government, or the State government of New York, or the city government, I do not know. Except that there is a responsibility on Mr. Roosevelt. He cannot afford to let America go through the experience of hearing what he said against fifth columns—and then, within a week, hearing Mr. Browder and the Communist Party on the radio.

THE RIGHT of free speech? That is for Americans and American institutions. It is not for foreign government and their agents and affiliates. From the "Constitution of the Communist Party of the United States" I quote article II: "The emblem of the party shall be the crossed hammer and sickle . . . with a circular inscription having at the top 'Communist party of the U. S. A.' And in the lower part "Affiliate to the Communist International'." And article V: "All members of the party shall pay an assessment . . . for an international solidarity fund. This money shall be used . . . exclusively to aid our brother Communist parties in other countries . . ."

EARL BROWDER
Free Radio, Too

Our obligation of free speech to Communists is a matter, not merely of our Constitution or our Bill of Rights, but of international relations, with Russia. America can properly give to the American affiliates of the Communist Party exactly that degree of free speech which Russia would give to a Russian affiliate of our Democratic or Republican Party. And all the free speech they would get in Russia would be enough to say, "God help me," as they face the firing squad.

I am not sure the Russians would permit that much. I doubt if they would permit the word "God."

Domestic Turmoil

APPARENTLY we are in for a period of suspicion and bickering, with the Communists, Nazis and Fascists insisting on their constitutional rights to pitch hay to the Trojan horse and with the New Deal casting suspicion on the dissenters and critics as opponents of a unified effort to rearm the country.

At the same time the Republicans and assorted minor groups of anti-Administration people will shrill protests against any attempt to regiment or coerce opinion and to impair freedom of speech and of the press. Rather oddly the Republicans, in a campaign year which, by all that is right and traditional, is their time to howl, will find themselves singing out of the same book with the Communists, Nazis, Fascists, anti-Semites and anti-Catholics, which last-named group has been stimulated by the conduct of Father Coughlin. All of them for various motives will demand their right to sound off.

Hitler undoubtedly gave consideration to the fact that this was to be one of those years when the Americans go nuts, like animals in the full of the moon, when he selected the time for his war on the free peoples of the earth. This is the Republicans' year to add up the mistakes and failures of the Roosevelt rule, the temperamental faults of prominent New Dealers, such as Harold Ickes and Tommy Corcoran, and the unemployment and Treasury figures and go before the country with the familiar slogan "Turn the rascals out!"

Hitler's embassy undoubtedly told him that this would be a year when the Americans would be too busy scrapping among themselves and denouncing or defending their own Government to be capable of a serious effort against an outside enemy.

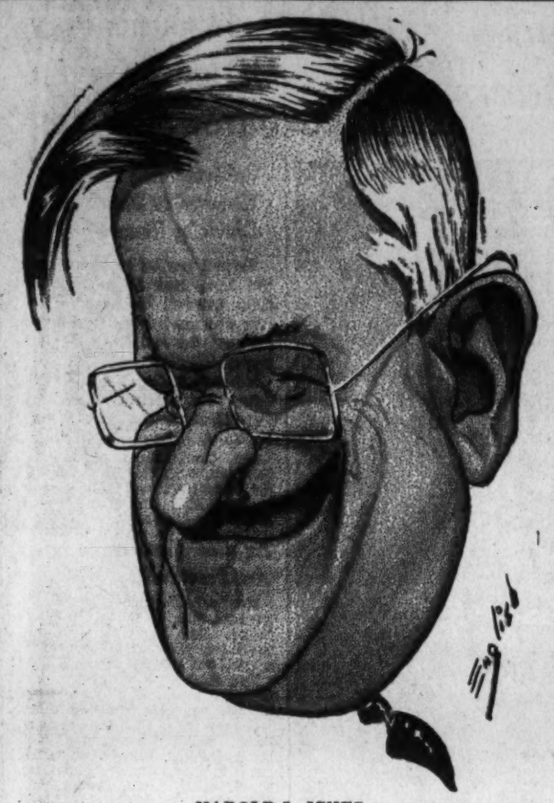

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to conduct an American Presidential campaign in a low, reasonable voice, but if the Republicans really go to town in the old-fashioned way they will be spreading disunion and undermining confidence in their Government at a critical time, and if they don't they will be wasting their money and their opportunity and defaulting their solemn duty as the other party of the American system.

It is the American way to store up the mistakes of the Administration patiently and carefully, as bricks were stored away for gang fights in the day before the Thompson gun, and to sling joyously in campaign year. It may be assumed that Mr. Dewey, for example has a file bulging with material ranging in importance from the singular and inadequately explained incident of the unperforated stamps and the unwillingness of the boss to permit public frisking of Jimmy Roosevelt's income tax, to the purge, the court-packing plan and the second Louisiana purchase. He has been storing bricks all this time with a legitimate and laudable ambition to conk the incumbent in the time-honored American way. And, according to American tradition, all the Republicans have been planning to pool their bricks and heave away on behalf of the winner at their convention.

It may be possible to cooperate with a man and fight him at the same time, but we haven't found out how in this country up to now. And the President has made no acceptable suggestion. The Republicans will cooperate with him if he will surrender, and he is willing to cooperate with them if they will, but meanwhile time's a-wastin', and meanwhile, too, the real disruptionists or disunioneers will be ranting around the land spreading hate against people with freckles or big noses and saying that what this country needs is a Hitler to put down dissension and create a strong, vital, unified U. S. A.

HOWEVER, the case is not as hopeless as it sounds. It is a new situation in the experience of a limber and resourceful people and it is my belief that without impairing the Republicans' right to fire away, public opinion and perhaps Congress and certainly some Governors here and there will bear down on political parachutes of one kind and another, beginning with the Communists, who are hated most only because Americans have had more practice hating them, but including all foreign and foreignized-American agitators. The real problem is to keep the country American, and if some technical constitutional rights of anti-Americans are bruised in the process that will be just fair wear and tear and no skin off the hide of the real Americans.

And, while Congress is in session and the mood is on, it would be well to consider a bill to outlaw the Communist Party as an agency of a foreign government and to limit the rights of aliens to the same that are allowed to Americans in their respective homelands. This wouldn't apply directly to naturalized or native members of the anti-American bund, the Sons of Italy or their offshoots, but if times became really bad public opinion would attend to them.

Westbrook Pegler classes him as one of the New Dealers whose "temperamental faults" must be added to our domestic turmoil in an election year. Pegler's column today suggests that Adolf Hitler counted on our confusion

265 More Washingtonians Who's Whoing In New Edition

Two hundred and sixty-five Washingtonians soon will be able to look themselves up for the first time in "Who's Who in America," a survey of a reviewer's copy of the 1940-41 edition of the familiar red-cloth encyclopedia of United States fame disclosed yesterday.

The volume, ready for distribution tomorrow, begins 31,752 sketches with that of a Department of Agriculture scientist, Dr. Olaf Sverre Aamodt, chief of the division of forage crops and diseases.

The Washington list of new sketches ends with Verne A. Zimmer, director of the United States Employment Service. From the double "a" of Agriculture's agronomist to the Labor Department's "z" the new arrivals include President Roosevelt's "anonymous" assistants—Lauchlin Currie and William Henry McReynolds—and Brig. Gen. Dan I. Sultan whose sketch was missing during his years as Engineer Commissioner of the District.

Post Cartoonist a Newcomer

Other new arrivals are: Emil Schram, chairman of the board of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; Vincent Burke, District postmaster; Lewis Compton, Assistant Secretary of the Navy; James Allen Councilor, director of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club; Henry E. Elderman, The Washington Post's political cartoonist; Col. Philip B. Fleming, head of the wage and hour division of the Labor Department; Arthur S. Flemming, civil service commissioner; Col. F. C. Harrington, Work Projects commissioner; Mrs. Florence S. Kerr, assistant Work Projects commissioner.

Also David Lasser, Workers' Alliance president; Kathryn Lewis, daughter of John L. Lewis, C. I. O. president, who is listed as his executive assistant in the United Mine Workers; David A. Pine, who is carried as district attorney, the post from which he was elevated to District Court judge; F. W. Reichelderfer, chief of the United States Weather Bureau; Harold D. Smith, Director of the Budget; Merle A. Tuve, Carnegie physicist, and Louise L. Wright, National League of Women Voters.

The addition of the sketch of Elliot Roosevelt, son of the President, brings to 20 the Roosevelts in "Who's Who" since the first 1899 volume. All but 3 of the 20 are related.

Refugees Adopted

The volume has adopted as famous Americans these distinguished European refugees: Eduard Benes, former president of Czecho-Slovakia, now a University of Chicago professor; Heinrich Bruening, the former German chancellor and now a Harvard lecturer; Bruno Rossi, former University of Padua (Italy) physicist, now cosmic ray researcher at the University of Chicago.

Shirley Temple remains the youngest member of "Who's Who" and Brig. Gen. William Henry Bisbee, retired, born January, 1940, the oldest.

Among conspicuous figures included for the first time are Vicki Baum, Clara Boothe, Moss Hart and William Saroyan, playwrights; Patty Berg, Alice Marble, Bernard Bierman and Elmer Layden, sports; Harold E. Stassen, Governor of Minnesota; Sholen Asch, Phyllis Bottome, Daphne du Maurier, Margaret Halsey and Lin Yutang, authors; Don Ameche, Deanna Durbin, Alice Faye, Errol Flynn, Cary Grant, Charles Laughton, Vivien Leigh, Tyrone Power, Eleanor Powell and James Stewart, movies.

Residents of nearby Maryland and Virginia, not included in the Washington list of new sketches, are Miss Carrie Sutherlin, dean, Arlington Hall, Arlington, Va.; Francis P. Miller, organization executive, and Norman M. Littell, Assistant United States Attorney General, both of Fairfax, Va; Philip H. Torrey, commandant, Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va.; Ward Shepard, Department of Agriculture forecaster, Vienna, Va.; Tobias Dantzig, author, and Samuel H. DeVault, head of the University of Maryland department of agricultural economics, both of Hyattsville, Md., and PGad Bryan Morehouse, lawyer, Silver Spring, Md.

Merit Bill Is Delayed

THE RAMSPECK BILL to bring 100,000 or more Government employes into the merit system yesterday missed Senate committee consideration because one man was missing.

Chairman Bulow (Democrat), of South Dakota, Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, and Senator White (Republican), of Maine, appeared for a morning executive session of the committee.

They were one short of a quorum, and Chairman Bulow, it was understood, decided that the quorum would be necessary for action.

It was the second unsuccessful attempt to get the committee together within a week, and, it was reported, a third and final effort will be made next week.

SENATOR BULOW is planning to schedule a meeting for some afternoon next week in the Capitol Building, and seek to bring the committee members off the Senate floor.

Pressure of defense legislation was cited as the reason members have been unable to attend the Civil Service Committee meeting. Two members, Senators Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, and George (Democrat), of Georgia, were tied up yesterday morning in a Finance Committee meeting, called to study emergency tax and debt legislation.

Two other members, Senators Downey (Democrat), of California, and Frazier (Republican), of North Dakota, were out of town.

If next week's attempt to get the executive meeting misses, it was said, the Ramspeck bill will be pigeonholed for this session.

JOBS: THE CIVIL Service Commission yesterday announced that examinations have been opened for the following:

Associate materials inspector, $3,200 a year; assistant materials inspector, $2,600 a year, in the United States Martime Commission; stationary fireman (high pressure), $1,320 a year, and stationary fireman (low pressure), $1,200 a year, in the Public Buildings Administration; chemist positions, four grades with salaries from $2,600 to $4,600 and three grades of chemical technologist jobs, from $3,200 to $4,600 a year, in the Agriculture Department.

ABOUT 600 EMPLOYES of the Farm Security Administration would go out of their jobs under the House approved relief appropriation for the agency's farm rehabilitation program, officials estimated.

The pay-roll cuts, it was said, would be made in Washington and in the field, but it has not yet been decided how the division would be made between these two groups.

The agency asked the Budget Bureau to approve a $161,000,000 fund for the rehabilitation work, same as the current year. The bureau cut the estimate to $123,000,000 and the House approved $115,000,000.

Secretary Wallace was reported yesterday to have told the Senate Appropriations Committee, that the impact of war was already hitting hardest the farmers in the lowest income group which is covered by the FSA rehabilitation program.

Wallace, it was understood, described the rehabilitation work as a first line of defense for thousands of needy farm families suffering from economic dislocations of the war.

His report to the committee said that farmers who had lost their foothold on the land were becoming hopeless, and fertile ground for social ills which disrupted Europe, and warned that unless they could be helped toward security, their "intolerable" conditions may prove a threat to democracy.

we might have to do this impossible thing has totally blinded the mass of the American people to the things that they have the greatest reason to fear. And it has inhibited them from doing the necessary and effective things to protect themselves.

There is no time left for the muddleheadedness which prevents us from seeing that American vital interests have to be defended now and with the means now at our disposal. This can be done if the back-seat drivers who have got us to the edge of the precipice will quit screaming hysterically and will behave like men.

THE MEANS at our disposal are the immense potential resources of this hemisphere. But these resources will count no more than the immense potential resources of the British and French empires, or the immense potential resources of Russia, or of China, unless we demonstrate at once that we mean to organize these resources and that we know how. No one is going to be in the slightest degree impressed by blueprints, promises and boasts, neither the Allies, who will be measuring their capacity to resist, nor the coalition of their enemies, who will be measuring their capacity to exploit totally the victory which they think is in sight. For we must understand at once that there are degrees of resistance and conquest; that the degree of resistance and conquest is a matter of the utmost consequence to America; and that the task of defending the vital interests of the American hemisphere consists in acting now to prevent a total catastrophe in Europe and Asia—while we insure ourselves as best we can against the worst that can happen.

The only decisive means of action immediately at our disposal consists of the very genuine respect which every nation has for our potential power. Nobody in Europe respects our present military power. Nobody, to be quite candid with ourselves, now respects our capacity or our will to make ourselves formidable; for universally it is believed that our public men are intellectually lazy and uninformed and on the whole not very public-spirited, and that as a people we have been softened and corrupted by sentimentality and materialism. Yet in order to defend our vital interests we need above all other things to make ourselves respected. But this cannot be done by appropriations and committees: We are dealing with governments and peoples who will not be deceived by the gestures which still deceive us. They have made all those gestures themselves, and they know, better than our people know as yet, what they are worth.

WHAT THEY WILL be watching, and the only thing which will impress them in the great showdown which is impending, is whether or not we have learned the lessons of Europe and are prepared to apply them, or whether we have to make all the mistakes all over again all by ourselves. Only we shall be deceived, and no one else, by a defense program which is still conceived and planned in accordance with the fatal errors of the Chamberlain Tories and of the British Labor Party.

What are these errors? The first is that the defense program is not based upon the principle of universal service, and it will therefore, be obstructed at every turn by private interests and by interminable negotiations designed to persuade men to do their patriotic duty. The second error is that the defense program is still being presented to the people by the politicians in both parties as a sideshow rather than as the main business of our lives, or worse still, as a kind of miraculous device for restoring normal prosperity or instituting peacetime reforms and benefits. With this misconception rampant the defense program will not get the priority it must have over all other considerations nor will it get out of us all anything like the hard work and full devotion which it requires. The third error is that the central organization for leading the nation in this undertaking is still, as Mr. Hoover demonstrated so brilliantly this week, in the primitive and amateurish stage of hydra-headed negotiating and consulting committees rather than of responsible commanders equipped with all necessary legal powers.

WE SHALL NEITHER make ourselves strong eventually, nor make ourselves respected immediately in the crisis which is at hand, unless we can pass promptly and without lost motion through this fumbling period, which has brought such tragedy to all the other democracies. The crucial question, to put it plainly, is whether—before there is irreparable disaster all about us—we can prove that we shall not make the fatal errors of the others, and that, therefore, our immense potential power must command immediate respect. This can be done only by committing ourselves to the principle of universal service, to the principle of the total dedication of our resources, and to the principle that a nation can be armed only by leadership and authority.

No doubt it will take the country and, still more, the politicians, a little time to get over the shock of the proposal and to accommodate themselves to the novelty of universal service and of total dedication. But the third error can be corrected at once. The Advisory National Defense Commission appointed by the President is on the whole excellently chosen. In the appointments which matter primarily, Messrs. Stettinius, Knudsen, Hillman, Budd and Davis will rightly have the confidence of the country and of the interests they must work with.

BUT IT IS NOT clear how far they are advisers and how far they are executives, and if they are wise, they will, I suggest, take up as their very first problem this question of how the whole program is to be administered and where authority and responsibility are to be centered. To do this they should not only read Mr Hoover's speech, which is the wisest and most useful utterance since the crisis broke, but they should invoke his help, because he understands the problem better than any member of the commission. They should invoke his help in drafting an advisory report as how to supersede the very commission of which they are members in order to establish a private Munitions Administration.

They will come to this lasting. All experience proves it. Sensible practical men they should waste no time in going through useless motions, and by taking this agency, they will demonstrate to the least knowing here and abroad that "unAmericans know what they are doing. That demonstration will be worth more than the suffering airplanes a year hence.

NOT EVEN if we adopt these measures—universal service, the dedication of our resources, and the organizing of effective authority—we shall not have done all the things possible and necessary for us to do in order to prevent the defeat from becoming a catastrophe. But we can get over the illusion that we can defend our security in the hemisphere by the rabbit's method of trying to stay very still in the hope of not being noticed, by doing what is called "not meddling"—there are substantial things we can do which will help, regardless of the outcome, immensely worth doing.

We should appropriate a very large sum of money to feed the ravaged people of western Europe, and we should suspend all legal impediments to the delivery of supplies. We should do this first of all because we owe it to go to the Day of Judgment with it on our conscience that we stood around with a surplus of food while the most highly civilized peoples in the world were allowed to perish. We should do this because their continuing resistance now is worth more to us than any arms we can make now. We should do it because we shall need friends in this world, and we shall have none, nor deserve them, if we are too cold-hearted and too timid to go on so obvious and so necessary an errand of mercy.

We should also carry out to the full the pledge given by the President in his message to Congress, not only giving the Allies first call upon anything we can produce but we should go beyond it,—by making available to the Allies any weapons we possess which are not immediately indispensable to preserve law and order within the inner zone of our strategic defenses. They have financed and built for us whatever expanded facilities we have for the production of planes and munitions. We are immeasurably in their debt for this service, and as a matter of self-respect and of national prudence we should let them have from our stocks everything that is not clearly indispensable. For they have provided us with the facilities for replacing anything that we let them have.

By doing this we shall not be one bit more "involved" than we are. For the powers that we have to deal with will, if they can, do exactly the things they wish to do whether we have or whether we have not been technically neutral. How many more technically scrupulous neutrals must be destroyed before we understand that we are living in a time when security does not depend upon the favor of others but solely and absolutely upon the power to resist aggression?

THERE ARE MANY other things that we shall need to do. But they lie in the realm of diplomacy, of a far-reaching and discerning diplomacy both in Asia and in Europe. We shall very soon be forced to undertake that diplomacy. But that diplomacy cannot be made effective until the United States of America again commands the respect of the world.

Debutante Dance Honoring Misses Meuser Attracts Throng of Capital Social Leaders

Many Out-of-Towners Also Attend Elaborate Grasslands Fete; Dinner Parties Precede Outstanding Fete Given by Mr. Campbell

By Hope Ridings Miller.

SEVERAL HUNDRED Washingtonians and many out-of-towners turned out last evening for one of the outstanding debutante fetes of the season—the dance given by Arthur Bradley Campbell, in honor of his cousins, the Misses Isabelle and Marjorie Meuser.

Grasslands, exclusive club, was the setting for the event, as well as for a large dinner beforehand. The spacious ballroom was transformed into a bower of white blossoms, attractively interspersed with greenery and softly lighted. Tables were set up on the terrace and in the garden and many guests wandered there between dances. Sidney's orchestra played during the evening, and a five-act floor show went on the boards to entertain the company at midnight.

Standing with Mr. Campbell to greet his long line of guests were the debutantes of the evening. Miss Isabelle Meuser was attired in a bouffant frock of white tulle, accented with a wide white ribbon outlining diagonal panels in the full skirt. Miss Marjorie Meuser's off-the-shoulder model was fashioned with a fitted bodice and a billowing skirt made with layer on layer of pale pink and orchid tulle.

TWO ESPECIALLY POPULAR guests were a couple of other young —usins of Mr. Campbell—Princess Francesca Rospigliosi, who appeared a yellow chiffon frock worn with a matching linen jacket; and ncess Camilla Rospigliosi, wearing white lace with a black lace ero to match a band of similar material edging the hemline.

THE WIDTH OF AN OCEAN does not lessen the solemnity of Great Britain's warning to its subjects that "careless talk costs lives and ships—the enemy has long ears."

The walls of the reception room in the British embassy's chancery here are lined with admonitions that His Majesty's diplomatic servants in this country speak softly and discreetly. Most of these warnings are in the form of clever cartoons by the noted Fougasse. Others are of the type posted in British shipyards:

"We in Scotland must be most careful not to give away anything about H. M. ships—where they are, where they've come from, when they're sailing, where they're going Many of us can't help seeing and hearing—but we can help repeating; above all we can keep our mouths shut in public places."

* * * *

TYPICAL OF THE Fougasse cartoons is a warning which says "Don't forget that the walls have ears." The artful wallpaper design conceals a thousand little Hitlers.

Another section of the reception room is given over to underlined portions of "Mein Kampf," with special emphasis laid on those portions wherein Hitler describes the scope of his intended conquests and the means he will pursue in gaining those ends. Supplementing these excerpts is the official German census map of 1910, showing the infinitesimal percentages of German-speaking peoples in those areas Hitler has taken into "protective custody."

It is into this atmosphere that persons having business with the British Empire are ushered. Here sit passport applicants, surrounded by a dozen warnings to guard their tongues.

NEWS THAT the first Red Cross "mercy ship" to sail this war will leave early next week for Europe recalls to old-timers there the difficulties in sending the first one in 1914. At that time a scant half dozen people worked at National Headquarters, and Miss Mabel Boardman organized practically single handed the sending of the ship. She persuaded the Hamburg American Line to lease her one for a dollar a year, then learned that the crew was German and hence couldn't go into the war zone. So she personally rounded up another one and got some retired Naval officers to run the liner. The whole process took Miss Boardman less than three weeks.

Army and Navy Officers Given Farewell Fetes

Sullivans and Keiths Honored at Dance Given by Haases

Several parties by members of the Army and Navy set, all of them farewell functions for officers who are leaving Washington, featured the social calendar yesterday.

Hosts at a dinner dance at the Army and Navy Country Club were Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Peter W. Haas. They entertained for Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. W. E. Sullivan, who will leav shortly for California, and Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. H. H. Keith, who've been ordered to China.

Nautical Favors Are Featured

Nautical favors—tiny ships, anchors, and so forth, in Navy colors, blue and gold—featured the dinner table. The flowers also carried out this color scheme.

The attractive hostess wore a graceful gown of white chiffon, accordion pleated from top to toe.

Guests were Comdr. and Mrs. R. L. Hicks, Comdr. and Mrs. Louis Doeller, Comdr. and Mrs. Paul F. Lee, Comdr. and Mrs. E. W. Mills, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. M. P. Kingsley, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. William von Dreele, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. M. H. Dietrick, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip N. Israel, Mrs. Katharyn Fuqua and Fred Sell.

Baylises Entertain For Departing Couple

The Country Club was the scene of another dinner last night when Col. and Mrs. James E. Baylis entertained for Capt. and Mrs. William W. Nichol of Walter Reed. They have been ordered to leave here June 15. There were 26 in the company.

Three officers who have been transferred to other posts were honor guests at an informal garden party given by Comdr. and Mrs. Morton L. Ring. Those honored were Col. and Mrs. Raymond Knapp, Comdr. and Mrs. Earl Hipp and Comdr. and Mrs. Frank Dunham.

Cincinnati Aids France

Percy Blair, curator of Anderson House, national headquarters and museum of the Society of the Cincinnati, 2118 Massachusetts avenue, sent a cable to the Duc de Broglie, president of the French Society, yesterday, in which he said that the society was making a gesture of friendship and sympathy to the French Cincinnati and to France by opening the house to the public on June 18 for the benefit of anti-aircraft defense canteens in France.

Mrs. Larz Anderson, who was made the first woman "associate" member of the Cincinnati a year ago in gratitude for her gift of Anderson House as headquarters of the Society, is American chairman of "Defense Contre Avions," an organization sanctioned by the French Government, and which has already raised funds for more than 30 canteens. But many more are needed in the grave emergency, so that all money raised from the forthcoming benefit being given under the patronage of the ambassador to France, Count Rene de Saint-Quentin, will be sent direct to France. A canteen costs $250 and is self-perpetuating.

The entire museum with its magnificent art collection will be open on the day of the reception and tea. Tickets will be placed on sale early next week at Anderson House and the Mayflower.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

Southerners Hear Pepper At Luncheon

Senator Discusses Probable Effect of War On U. S. Economy

Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, yesterday addressed the Southern Women's Council at its fortnightly luncheon meeting at the Woman's National Democratic Club, discussing "The Probable Effect of the War on Our Domestic Economy."

Painting a dark picture of the situation, Senator Pepper declared this period marked the end of an era. He urged that the United States give all possible support to the allied cause "before it is too late." Should the totalitarian system triumph, imposing its domination on a large portion of the world, our democracy would face tremendous obstacles in its international relations and efforts to reestablish international trade on a normal basis, he said.

More than 100 members and guests attended the luncheon, at which Mrs. Milo Perkins, chairman of the council, presided.

Among the guests were Mrs. Hugo Black, wife of Associate Justice Black, of the Supreme Court; Mrs. Pepper, Miss Charles O. Williams of the National Education Association; Mrs. Morris Sheppard, Mrs. James Byrnes, Mrs. Lister Hill, Mrs. D. Tucker Brown, president of the Woman's National Democratic Club; Mrs. Sam Hobbs, Mrs. John Sparkman, Mrs. Ed Gossett, Mrs. George Grant, Mrs. Albert Thomas, Mrs. Lyle Boren, Mrs. Frank Boykin and Mrs. David Terry.

P. E. O. Marks 40th Birthday

Members of the 17 District P. E. O. chapters were guests of Chapter A last evening, at a reception in celebration of its fortieth anniversary. The reception was held from 8 to 10 o'clock at the Chapter House of the D. A. R., 1732 Massachusetts avenue.

Mrs. Roy C. Potts, former president, received with Miss Clara Hiller, president; Dr. Ella R. Fales, past president of the District of Columbia Chapter, and Mrs. T. A. Hutton, first vice president of the District Chapter; also Miss Bertha Gray, Mrs. F. A. Hornaday, and Miss Fannie Holmes, charter members. Mrs. Fannie Roseman Shelton, founder of the chapter when it was organized May 29, 1900, resides in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Miss Edith Gray, another charter member, lives in Coopersville, Mich.

Following the reception, Miss Dorothy Bixby, Miss Lois Linn, and Mrs. John Fales, carrying lighted tapers, escorted the three charter members to the library, where Dr. Fales gave a resume of chapter activities since its organization. A birth cake, in the shape of a star, with 40 lighted tapers, was cut by the founders. One tall candle, in the center of the cake, symbolized the future growth of Chapter A and the District P. E. O.

Madame Chairman

READING the war news, it is hard to imagine any normal life—club activities, for instance—going on in England in the midst of its great struggle. However, last week, unless something suddenly prevented, the Walter Hines Page Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held the regular meeting in London.

Mrs. Leo Kasehagen, recently reelected regent of the Monticello Chapter of the District D. A. R., received a letter from her sister, Mrs. Frederick Carpenter Holland-Griffith, who is an active member of the Walter Hines Page Chapter, saying she expected to attend its meeting on May 23. The women in the London organization have been doing Red Cross work and aiding relief in every way possible, Mrs. Holland-Griffith wrote her sister.

Her home on her estate, Biddenham Close, near London, and but 5 miles from a large air base, is now a center for refugees and evacuees. Cottages on the grounds are being occupied by wives of officers at the front. Fruits and vegetables produced there are being used to feed the needy.

Mrs. Kasehagen has not been able to get any word from her sister for the last few days.

RECEPTION PLANNED—Monticello Chapter has issued invitations for the first reception to the new State officers of the District D. A. R. given by an individual chapter since their election. It will be at the Chapter House on Massachusetts avenue, Monday evening, from 8:30 to 10:30, with Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser, regent, and her staff as honor guests.

TO STAGE PICNIC—The Georgia Ladies Luncheon Club will sponsor an old-fashioned Georgia picnic Saturday from 4 to 8 at Palisades Park on the Cabin John carline.

Mrs. S. Gordon Green, president of the club, assisted by the other members, will be hostess. Among the guests will be Senator and Mrs. Walter F. George, Senator Richard B. Russell, Georgia, and members of the House of Representatives and their families.

Leone Barber will have charge of the games and other recreation. The program will include a talk by Robert Winslow Gordon on Georgia folk songs. Mr. Gordon, an internationally known authority on folk music, is founder of the Archives of American Folk Songs in the Library of Congress.

PICNIC BREAKFAST—June 4 has been set as the date for a picnic breakfast party, to be given under the auspices of the Northeast Suburban W. C. T. U. It will be in the garden at the home of Mrs. French Morgan, 2601 Brentwood road northeast, with Mrs. Charles Williams, assistant hostess. Breakfast will be cooked at an outdoor fireplace.

Mrs. McAllister Entertains D. A. R.

Mrs. Addams S. McAllister will be hostess to Livingston Manor Chapter of the D. A. R. at her home, 206 Raymond street, Chevy Chase, this afternoon. The annual meeting will be followed by a reception from 4 to 6 o'clock honoring Miss Margaret Elma Naylor, State corresponding secretary and past regent of the chapter.

Assisting Mrs. McAllister will be Mrs. Percy M. Bailey, Mrs. James Shera Montgomery, Mrs. Sherwood D. Shankland and Mrs. R. Marguerite Webb, as well as the program committee, of which the vice regent, Mrs. Thomas J. Gattis, is chairman.

Daughter Born To Stratfords

Mrs. and Mrs. Herbert Stratford, of Chicago, announce the birth of a daughter yesterday, their second child. The oldest is a son.

Mrs. Stratford, the former Miss Margot Wyeth, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Wyeth, of Washington.

Elaine Darlington Will Bow To Pittsburgh Society June 15

Her Mother, Mrs. Garrett, Will Give a Tea For Her; Mrs. Henry Rhea Plans Large Party for Debutante at Sewickley Next Day

In addition to a debut in Washington and on Long Island, Elaine Darlington, daughter of Mrs. George Angus Garrett, will be presented in Pittsburgh. Saturday, June 15, has been selected as the date of her party there.

Her mother, who lived in Pittsburgh before her marriage to Mr. Garrett several years ago, still maintains a home there and will open it that week-end. She will give a tea Saturday for her daughter and that evening Mr. and Mrs. George Hann will entertain at a dinner for Miss Darlington. Mrs. Henry Rhea, of Sewickley, has planned a large party for her on Sunday, June 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrett have set November 30 as the date for a dance at the Sulgrave Club in honor of the debutante. She will also bow at a dance on Long Island on June 22 when hosts will be Mrs. Garrett's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Livingston Clarkson.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrett left yesterday for a few days at the Rolling Rock Country Club, near Pittsburgh. Mrs. Garrett has been receiving a series of interesting letters from her other sister, Mrs. Allastair MacLean, who is married to a Scotsman. Lieut. Col. MacLean—incidentally, he is the youngest officer in the whole British army to have this rank—is quartermaster for the Air Defense Battalion, organization for home defense.

Mrs. MacLean, who is the fragile, pretty type, has been working like a beaver since the war started, her sister reports. She gets up at 5 o'clock in the morning to work with soldiers at the canteen for sailors and minesweeping crews, and spends the rest of her time with the Cameron Comforts Kits, an organization of which she is vice chairman. The group sends knitted garments and other clothing to soldiers.

Capt. and Mrs. MacLean were last in Washington several years ago to attend the wedding of Mr. Garrett's daughter, Margot, to Mariano Zuberbuhler of the Argentine Embassy.

Garden Party at British Embassy Week From Sunday to Help Soldiers

Those who didn't get a chance at the Royal garden party at the British Embassy last June when the King and Queen were here will have a chance to view the handsome garden a week from Sunday, from 4 until 7 in the afternoon. The gates of the embassy will be thrown wide open to the public for the benefit of Bundles for Britain, organization to send aid to Allied soldiers which recently opened a branch in Washington.

Tea, iced coffee, cakes and sandwiches, will be served under the striped marquees which are always a feature of British Embassy garden parties. The one given annually here on the occasion of the King's birthday was skipped this year because of the war.

Mrs. George Angus Garrett has consented to serve as chairman of the Washington Division of Bundles for Britain. On her committee are Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mrs. Truxtun Beale, Mrs. Frederick Brooke, Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mme. Cantacuzene, Mrs. Chauncey Depew, Mrs. James Freeman, Mrs. John Guider, Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel, Mrs. Alanson Houghton, Miss Virginia Livingston Hunt, Mrs. Hennen Jennings, Mrs. Frederick Keep, Mrs. Irwin Laughlin, Mrs. C. D. Lowe, Mrs. George Thorpe, Mrs. John Walker and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman. Mrs. I. N. Mishtowt is executive secretary.

Yang, Yin New Study At College

Chinese Myth, Basis Of Personality Work At Maryland and Columbia Universities

By Martha Ellyn

Martha Ellyn

THE CHINESE way of doing things usually is very different from ours. The seat of honor at the table is at the host's left; dinners begin with sweets and end with soup; a Chinese book begins on the last page and ends on the first; brides wear red, and white is the color for mourning; a man puts his hat on to receive guests and greets them by shaking hands with himself; in writing a signature the family name is usually put first and the given name last.

Although these Oriental ways seem in reverse to us, yet there is one phase of Chinese philosophy that has been adapted so that it has become the basis on which one educator has developed an interesting theory to present to her students.

Prof. Belle Northrop, Teacher's College, Columbia University, conceived the idea that the Oriental theory of creation might be applied to our Western world. Yang and Yin, according to the Chinese theory of creation, are the two forces that together make up everything. According to their genesis, everything at first was chaos, but from this state emerged the one half, Yang, personifying all things bright, warm, active and masculine. Yin, the opposite force, was dark, cold, still and feminine. The symbol used by the Chinese was a circle divided into two curved halves, the one being white, the other black.

Personality Analysis

Prof. Northrup has found disciples of her adaption of the Chinese philosophy in the women students at Maryland University. Miss Vienna Curtiss, professor of art there, has presented the personality analysis to them in a synoptic chart. Following is her analysis:

Yang—Characterized by strength, sophistication, poise and dignity. Girls of this type are brunettes, tall, forceful, with long straight hair, long face, brown eyes, straight mouth. The clothing worn by the Yangs is luxurious and of coarse texture, of dark shades and strong hues, and lines are angular, vertical, fringed, folded and pleated. Classed under "tempo," comes the active or dashing type of clothes with such trends as heavy fringe, tailored cuts, bright colors, diagonals, large dots, taffetas and tweeds. The quiet or dignified characteristics under "tempo" are rich fabrics, long folds, deep colors and knitted wear.

Yin — Characterized by delicacy, youthfulness, gentleness and mildness. Girls in this category are small, fragile, have blonde curly hair, round face, blue eyes and cupid bow mouth. Clothing for this classification is of fine texture, light tints, of delicate scale, and the lines are curving, horizontal, ruffled, gathered or tucked.

Are Two Types

Classed under "tempo" are two types, first the active or gay, whose clothing show some contrast, perky ruffles and bows, organdy, starched net and luster. The quiet or demure wear chiffons, knitted fabrics, gathers, and closely related hues.

Girls at Maryland University have worked out not only their clothing according to the type they represent, but have also arranged table settings carrying out the themes of Yang and Yin. For a Yang table setting, an Italian cutwork cloth is used; the flowers may be bird of paradise, dark red roses, calla lilies, chrysanthemums and peonies; silver of the heavy elaborate kind; glassware with gold bands.

For a Yin table setting, it is suggested that a Madeira cloth be used, the flowers of the more delicate varieties, such as valley lilies, delphinium, sweetheart roses, baby breath and snapdragons; silver of delicate design; crystalware very delicately etched.

If a hostess is interested in giving a Yang or Yin party, whichever type suits her personality, the food, too, could be planned with the general themes in mind.

Water-Repellent Fabrics Popular As Upholstery

Waterproof upholstery came along with the development of pyroxylin-coated fabrics which can be kept clean all season by washing the surface with a damp cloth. Also vermin-proof, these materials are practical for home owners who live in sections of the country infested by insects that attack upholstery. New gliders with painted metal frames have cushions upholstered with fabrikoid pyroxylin-coated fabric in leather-like graining, showing such color combinations as green and white, two shades of green and other combinations. Chairs come to match these gliders. Many chromium pieces are also upholstered with this fabric.

Yang the Sophisticated — Yin the Demure

Miss Eleanor Kuhn, the tall, sophisticated brunette in the black dress, is the personification of the Yang type of girl. Demure, blond, curly-haired Evelyn Bullock in her perky starched net, is symbolical of the Yin type. Both are Maryland University students. The lower left photograph shows items that may be used appropriately for a Yang table setting. The silver is Jensen's heavy "Acorn" pattern. The Syracuse china is Covalt blue with gold band, and encrusted gold-banded glasses. The Yin type of setting (right) shows Picard china, "Chintz" pattern, fragile cut crystalware and International flat silver, "Enchantress" pattern

Warning to Women

Do not presume to speak to me at this time of having "simply no summer clothes," of being "almost naked," or "ashamed to go out," and, above all, of not being able to find any "smart little cottons" anywhere!

Do not come near me with any whining complaints of having to stay in town all summer in "this heat," of not being able to go anywhere on vacation or of being "the only woman in the country who has missed the World's Fair," or of never getting to go anywhere because you have to stay home with the children.

Do not tell me aggrievedly of what you had to pay for imported gloves, or silk, or linen, or for porterhouse steak, or squab, or Italian wines, or that you simply can't get any "decent French perfumes" any more.

Do not petulantly complain in my hearing about the cold, or the heat, or the rain, or the humidity, or about your sinus, or your nerves, or your sleeplessness, or any of your petty bodily discomforts.

Do not make me listen to any of your woes about taxes—now or to come—or what a hard time you are having paying for the place, or keeping up the insurance, or sending Junior to college or Maudie to summer camp or meeting the installments on the new motor car.

Do not, please, I beg you, tell me sadly that you don't get the new rug or the refrigerator, or the radio, or the new house with two bathrooms or the new anything that your husband had promised you this spring and that all of the neighbors already have.

Do not—if you have a shred left of the grace of humor—tell me long tales about the troubles you are having with your "difficult" next door neighbor or her children or dogs, or about your petty rows with the "wrong" little clique in your club, or how someone in your office runs over you, or of any of your small disputes and misunderstandings with any human being anywhere.

Do not—please—crab in my presence about any calls for funds for war relief on the grounds that "somebody" is always after you to contribute to something, or that "charity begins at home."

Do not, I pray you, at this time, when thousands of other women, homeless and hopeless, are struggling along roads in northern France, striving to protect their children from a death rain of bombs overhead, seeing nothing ahead but privation and weary wandering—do not, I beg you, have the ill grace, the childishness, the selfish effrontery to voice aloud any of your little doll house woes, hurts, grievances or disappointments, or to express self-pity or "poor me" lamentations in any form. For if you do, in my presence, I herewith give warning that I will scream—long, loud and lustily.

Anne Lindbergh Praised for Superb Handling of Role of Hero's Wife

New York, May 29.

IT has now become an obvious fact that one of the outstanding women of the country is Anne Morrow Lindbergh, whose husband is Col. Charles Augustus of that name.

ALICE HUGHES

As these political blokes say, let's look at the record. When she married the Colonel, she was a quiet, mousy member of the brilliant Morrow family. At the trial of Hauptmann for the kidnaping and murder of her little son, she was subject to unbelievable agonies on the witness stand, and bore them like a soldier. I know, for I was in that foul little courthouse at Flemington at the time.

Later, when her stolid spouse was flying here and there, charting airlanes or just because it seems to be his only fun in life, she went where he went and did what he did, learning all the time. When he chose exile from his native land because of the pardonable interest of the press, she accompanied her nominal lord and master. She accepted life on a remote and lonely island in the English Channel while the Colonel fooled around with Dr. Carrel and his mechanical heart.

During these days, living in the shadow of her spouse, she was a quiet, dutiful wife and mother—and more. Her authorship began with the fine book, "North to the Orient." Then she followed it with the unbelievably beautiful chunk of prose entitled "Listen, the Wind." When Col. Lindbergh was coddled and chucked under the chin in Berlin, she remained extremely quiet, even when he was handed the swanky Order of the Red Eagle, which he hasn't returned to date. He also holds our own Congressional Medal of Honor, a rarer honor even than Britain's Victoria Cross, and usually awarded for incredible deeds in action. And when he makes mistakes at the mike, she's silent. A great woman.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—These British continue to slay me. I'm no Anglo-maniac, gosh knows, but they are very tough stuff, or else excellent actors. On the afternoon we learned that a few Nazi motorcyclists had taken a pleasure spin into Abbeville, a fancy cocktail party was hurled by June Hamilton Rhodes in honor of darling Jeanie Smith, who heads the woolen department at the Fair for the British. The scene was the lovely penthouse of Vincent Astor's St. Regis Hotel. Jean, dripping orchids, was all smiles and graciousness, as the bad news trickled in.

Beauty Secrets

'Permanent' Preparedness

Bleached, dyed and even untouched hair becomes a problem at permanent waving time unless the hair has been reconditioned. Through frequent waving, steam-heated buildings, poor circulation, sun and wind, the hair becomes dry and loses much of its sheen and elasticity. Elasticity is one of the most successful factors in producing a successful permanent wave. If your hair has lost this quality, it is apt to break like straw under heat or at best turn out dry and brittle.

It is advisable to start at least two weeks before the permanent for an intensive course in reconditioning. This should include daily scalp treatments with special lotions, lubricating pomades, vibratory brushing, hand massage and reconditioning oil applications, according to a well-known hair specialist here. One of seven famous sisters, all experts in the treatment of the scalp, this woman stresses brushing of the hair and less shampoos—of the soap and water variety. Between soap and water shampoos, she advocates a special cleansing liquid and careful brushing to remove the dirt and grime from the hair.

When time does not permit thorough reconditioning before getting a permanent wave, this local salon advises a new hair pack that gives lustre and softness to dried out hair. This preparation is also sold for home use.

Loss of Sleep A Futile Plan For Reducer

It Lowers Vitality Needed for Exercise And Cuts Will Power

By Ida Jean Kain

SOME NIGHT owl asks if going without sleep will help a person to lose weight—and how much sleep to go without! Maybe weight could be lost by that method, but the odds are very much against it.

When you go without sleep the natural reactions are lethargy and indifference. You do not feel like doing much of anything, except sitting around. Certainly you can't put any enthusiasm into exercise! And without exercise there is apt to be a feeling of depression due to flabbiness of the musculature. But the immediate effect of loss of sleep is on the will power, which gets so weak that you can't stay on your diet.

If you are in earnest about slimming, you will get your full quota of sleep—enough to keep feeling fit. This may be seven hours a night, or nine!

Eat to Reduce

It takes energy to reduce, and anything that builds up your energy helps you to lose faster. A great many women do not reduce because they do not take enough food to supply the energy necessary to keep on dieting. By including a normal amount of lean meat, eggs, skim milk, cheese, fruits and vegetables in your daily menus, you can actually lose weight faster.

In the daily reducing menus planned for you, the protein content forms a considerable portion of the calorie allowance. You need adequate protein daily for the repair of body tissue, and this element has the happy faculty—for the reducer—of stimulating the metabolism to a slightly higher caloric utilization.

The use of concentrated vitamins in capsule form is another dietary measure that tends to increase your feeling of well being while weight is lost. The vitamins most needed by the reducer are A and B, since fats are greatly restricted and whole grains are used in limited amounts. You can purchase these vitamin concentrates at your neighborhood drugstore. In the spring and summer you get sufficient vitamin C in fresh fruits and vegetables and vitamin D is provided in sunshine. A good reducing diet is high in protein—lean meat, eggs and milk—and therefore supplies adequate vitamin G.

Don't Drain Vitality

There are only two reasons for reducing: To improve your health and your looks. Going without sufficient sleep and following a diet that drains your vitality makes the entire program futile.

Girl Craves the Kind of Fun She Had Back Home; Is It Improper to Swim, Ride, Bicycle Alone?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I find myself missing very much the opportunities for recreation I had back home. I am employed in an office where the personnel is 100 per cent female, and all of them are either older than myself or married, with children. Tell me, please, whether it would be suitable for me to go alone to places of recreation in Washington. Such a thing would have been unheard-of back home; and, anyway, I had friends of both sexes to go about with there.

Could I, for instance, go alone to swim at one of the hotel pools here, without being marked as eccentric? Swimming is the one sport I'm good at. I am not a horsewoman or a bicyclist, but could I take up horseback riding by myself? Or take solo instruction in bicycle riding?

Also, I have always wanted to learn to dance, but father disapproved, although mother was all for it. Father prevailed. Would it be suitable for me to go alone to a local dancing school for instructions? I have asked some of my women classmates at university night classes if they would be interested in exploring such projects with me, but I have had no success in lining up definite prospects.

I "sounded out" some of them on the idea of a girl's "going it alone," and they either said that they "wouldn't dare," or "wouldn't care to do so." However, if such action is seemly, I would prefer it to sitting alone all summer in my furnished room. What do you think? UNSOPHISTICATED.

Man Friday Unnecessary In Metropolitan Society

DEAR UNSOPHISTICATED: In the course of a recent conversation, I was captivated by someone's reference to his pioneer grandmother's frequent phrase—something about "having some git-up and git." There you have a graphic, evocative definition of the quality of rugged individualistic enterprise—the quality which brings success and happiness to those who possess and exercise it.

It appears you have plenty of "git-up and git" in your system, but are a little timid about using it in this new environment. Cast out that fear and do what you want to do. In so doing, you will be showing yourself vastly more "city-broke" than those prunes-and-prisms maidens who either "wouldn't dare" or "wouldn't care" to go adventuring on their own.

One of the more advantageous and challenging aspects of metropolitan living, for the provincial newcomer, should be that freedom which is his to "find himself" in relation to the social, cultural and recreational opportunities of the larger sphere. Emancipated as he is from the environmental limitations and always slightly irrational tribal tabus of his native hamlet, he would be a fool to sit with folded hands in a furnished room (serving an out-worn god of propriety), when a "brave new world" of instructive experience can be his for the taking.

No chaperonage is necessary, save plain common sense. And neither must one have a Man or Girl Friday. Indeed, the pleasant stranger who has the poise and self-reliance to row his own canoe, socially, stands a better chance of winning acceptance by his own kind of people than if he undertakes to tow a pal along. Which reminds me of what one man told a girl of my acquaintance, to-wit: "Two women together are only half a woman, so far as winning a man's interest is concerned." This may explain why the more worldly-wise type of woman blandly avoids all "bosom" alliances with members of her own sex.

So, since you wish to learn to dance and ride bicycle and horseback, by all means sign up for solo instruction. And take it from me that girls (and quite nice girls) do go alone to the local hotel swimming pools—when they thoroughly enjoy swimming; just as they find their own way to dancing school (for class or private instruction); or to the golf course, the archery range, the skating rink or whatever center of informal, commercially-provided diversion appeals to their fancy. And there is nothing in the least improper, incongruous or "unwomanly" about it. They are simply cultivating their self-sufficing resources, in a spirit of admirable initiative and independence. M. H.

By Gerald G. Gross

Conducting coast-to-coast tryouts for his All-American Youth Orchestra has made Leopold Stokowski a philosopher and sociologist.

The maestro said so himself yesterday, sandwiching a brief press conference between auditions of 25 aspiring young musicians who would like to be aboard when the orchestra sails for South America July 22.

"Meeting so many people, finding out how many excellent self-taught musicians there are on America's farms, learning for the first time that this country has scenic beauties superior to Europe's—it has all been a revelation," said the famous conductor.

"I am amazed by the amount of musical talent I have heard these last few weeks. Not only city boys and girls who have been carefully trained, but country youngsters. Many have taught themselves to play, with the aid of the radio and records.

"Just yesterday, for example, I heard a 14-year-old Negro boy in Ohio who plays the trumpet brilliantly. In Mississippi or Alabama, I forget which, there was a white boy, 17 years old, who is positively a genius with the double bass. They have earned their places in the orchestra."

Stokowski really let those selections slip. He is not—officially—making up his mind as to the final choices until he has completed his swing around the country. New England is the last region to be covered. He'll be in Boston today.

The blue-eyed, pink complexioned maestro reserved comment on the Washington,

Raymond L. Wetzell, of Parkersburg, W. Va., blows his best

Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland and West Virginia candidates whom he heard yesterday at the Washington College of Music, 1741 K street northwest. He did volunteer, however, that the best young musicians seem to be along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and in the Midwest.

"With the preliminaries and all, more than 4,000 were auditioned in Illinois alone," he said. "The best prospects have come from that State, California, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana."

He has been impressed not only with the aspirants' musicianship but also with their physical fitness and fine character. He hopes that when the troupe is finally selected, there will be at least one representative from each of the 48 States—and the District of Columbia.

The war?

"That's no deterrent," said the maestro. "In fact, the war makes it the more imperative that we make this trip. With destruction rampant elsewhere, with things of the mind and spirit being trampled, it is up to America to preserve and extend the arts. More and more we are coming to realize that the Americas—north, south and central—are a unit. We hope our concerts will strengthen that unity."

It is planned, he said, for the forthcoming Latin American tour to be the first of an extended series of semi-annual concert swings (not swing concerts) by the All-American Youth Orchestra.

"One in the fall and one in the spring," Stokowski said. "In between, the players will disband. I shall continue to divide my time among this orchestra, the Philadelphia Orchestra and my Hollywood commitments."

Jackson Quits Lawyers Guild, Rocked by Fight

Attorney General Robert H. Jackson yesterday resigned from the National Lawyers Guild, which was formed in 1937 as a "liberal" professional group and two years later fell into dissension over alleged radical domination.

The Attorney General was a warm supporter of the legal guild when it was organized. He felt that there was a need for a liberal group of lawyers to counterbalance what many of his colleagues regarded as "reactionary trends" in the profession.

Two years ago Jackson told the guild's national convention that "a liberal bar" must guide the Nation in its search for "an economic bill of rights that will protect our people from irresponsible exercise of economic power."

But a year later, in February, 1939, a group of liberals headed by Morris Ernst and Judge Ferdinand Pecora, of New York, charged that the new guild was by no means free of radical control and Communist influence. Neither Jackson nor Merle D. Vincent, president of the local chapter of the guild, could be reached for comment yesterday.

Dean Resigns U.S. Position To Practice Law

Also leaving the department is Welly K. Hopkins, chief of the criminal division trial section, who will be assistant general counsel of the United Mine Workers.

Dean joined the department in 1934, after having been assistant dean of Duke University law school. He was one of the experts who drafted the Federal criminal laws for the Seventy-Third Congress. Later he defended the Lindbergh Kidnaping Act and the National Firearms Act before the Supreme Court, which upheld them. Dean recently took part in anti-trust law investigations involving restraints of trade in the building industry.

Hopkins, a former member of the Texas Legislature, joined the department in 1936.

Woodring Urges Permanent Arlington Cantonment

War Secretary Asks Agriculture Experimental Farm Be Moved To Provide Space for More Facilities

A plan for transferring the Arlington Experimental Farm to make way for a permanent military garrison and an adjacent park development just across the Potomac River from the Lincoln Memorial was submitted to Congress yesterday by Secretary of War Woodring.

Jointly supported by the Agriculture and the War Departments, the proposal calls for the expenditure of $37,000,000, of which $32,000,000 would be used to buy a new site and establish another experimental farm for the Agriculture Department.

"The establishment of a permanent infantry garrison in close proximity to the National Capital is recognized as an urgent necessity in the scheme of national defense," Secretary Woodring wrote.

"As an expedient, a temporary cantonment has been constructed on the site with the permission of the Department of Agriculture."

The Twelfth Infantry now has temporary barracks on the tract south of the Mount Vernon Memorial Bridge.

The farm area would be divided between the War and Interior Departments, according to the provisions of proposed legislation, with all the land west of the Rossyln connecting railroad going to the War Department and that east of the rail line to the Interior.

The Secretary of War agrees to grant a 200-feet right of way to the Interior for a roadway from the southeast corner of Arlington Cemetery to the boundary channel. The plan, which requires approval of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, includes abandonment of the present Military road on the east boundary of Arlington Cemetery.

The authorization bill carries $4,000,000 for the War Department to acquire additional land and construct whatever buildings are deemed necessary and $1,000,000 for the Interior to acquire adjacent land and transfer the propagating gardens, tourist camp, heating plant and other park facilities now located between the Washington Monument grounds, the Thomas Jefferson Memorial and the Potomac River.

Secretary Woodring recommended immediate action on the proposal and stated the War Department is "anxious to acquire the lands at the earliest practical date."

Last year, however, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace estimated it would take three years to move the Experimental Farm.

Post Carriers Leave Washington For Fun at Fair

Two hundred and fifty Washington Post delivery boys left on a special train this morning for a two-day visit to New York and the World's Fair. A telegram from Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia last night assured the carriers the "town" would be theirs.

The boys—from the District, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania—boarded a Baltimore & Ohio train here and are due to arrive in Jersey City at 11:30 a. m. There the youths will board a yacht for a cruise around the harbor, then down the East River. Later buses will take them to the World's Fair grounds where they will visit the Aviation, Railroad, Ford Motor buildings, General Motors Futurama, the Perisphere, and a good number of the 1,500 other exhibits.

An equally full program is planned for tomorrow when the carriers will inspect Radio City and the Museum of Science, to be followed by a tour of New York sights and shrines.

The holiday celebrators will be back in Washington tomorrow night at 9:45. W. J. McNeil, assistant circulation manager; Charles Avison and J. B. Savage, traveling representatives, will be in charge of the party.

Auto Club Opposes Traffic Case Judge

The Keystone Automobile Club's advisory board has voted disapproval of the Schulte bill to provide a full-time judge to try traffic cases, it was announced yesterday.

The board indorsed the compromise bill to require the recording of motor vehicle liens in the department of vehicles and traffic under supervision of the recorder of deeds.

Blind Couple With Chauffeur Fined for Begging

A blind couple and a man and woman who aided them in soliciting alms, were fined $5 each in Police Court yesterday for begging. A 13-year-old boy who accompanied them was turned over to the Juvenile Court.

All were found guilty by Judge George Neilson May 23, after testimony which charged that they came here from West Point, Ga., in a new car belonging to the group and collected $132 in less than a week.

They remained in jail until yesterday pending probation investigation of the boy, who apparently was not related to any of his companions.

Those fined were the blind couple, John B. Siggers, 24, and Mrs. Annie Siggers, 41; Lucy Johnson, 55, and Arthur Bernard, 24, paid chauffeur for the others.

D. C. Asks $475,730 In Deficiency Bill

Supplemental and deficiency appropriations for the District aggregating $475,730 were submitted to Congress yesterday by the Budget Bureau for inclusion in the final supply bill before adjournment.

Chief among the estimates were $190,000 for refunds of erroneous tax collections, $90,000 for additional local inmates at St. Elizabeths Hospital, $25,000 for the employment of special policemen during the Presidential inauguration, $15,000 for the building inspector's office, $17,000 for Casualty Hospital, and $7,700 for board and care of children.

Man Asks $450 for 'Anguish' Suffered in District Jail

William Stroy, 45-year-old colored laborer who charges he was kept in jail two days because officials would not accept his $10 fine, filed suit for $453.80 in the Municipal Court yesterday.

Attorney Frederick R. Wilson filed the complaint in which Stroy said he was fined $10 in the Police Court for drunkenness Saturday, May 18. Stroy was unable to pay and was jailed, but, he said, when his friends got the money at 2 p. m., nobody at the Police Court, the jail or the police precinct station would collect the fine.

Because he was not released until Monday, the complaint said, he missed a day's work, for which he asked his wages of $3.80. He also asked $450 for mental anguish he claimed he suffered through being unlawfully held.

Named defendants were Capt. Thomas M. Rives, superintendent of the District Jail; Ray L. Huff, superintendent of District penal institutions, and Chief Clerk Walter F. Bramhall of the Police Court.

Attorney Wilson asserted that until a few months ago fines were payable at the jail. Chief Clerk Bramhall, however, said the practice had been abandoned many years ago and that fines were payable only in the court.

D. C. Girl Gives Up $25,000 To Marry Man of Her Choice

Forfeits Bequest To Be Bride of Man Outside Her Faith

An attractive Washington girl yesterday orfeited a $25,000 inheritance in order to marry the man of her choice. The girl, Miss Virginia Cocalis, 24, of 106 Third street northeast, will become the bride of Gerge McMillan, 27, a writer connected with the Food Stamp Plan Office of the Agriculture Department, and in doing s owill sacrifice a bequest left by her father.

The $500,000 will of Soteros D. Cocalis, of Elizabeth, N. J., a movie house operator, who died last year, provided that each of his three daughters was to receive $25,000 if she married a man born in and a member of the Greek Orthodox Church. Should she marry a man outside the faith, she was to receive nothing. McMillan is Scotch-English.

The couple, however, will be married in St. Nicholas' Greek Orthodox Church, Newark, N. J., July 5, it was learned last night. The girl's mother, Mrs. Chresanthe Cocalis, yesterday at her home in Elizabeth, N. J., said the wedding had her blessing.

Miss Cocalis is a graduate of Wellesley College, and is a writer, attached to the information office of the Farm Security Administration. McMillan, formerly of Knoxville, Tenn., attended the University of Tennessee.

Capital News in Brief

False Alarm Fun—$75

One dollar for each dollar of cost—$75 in all—was the penalty imposed upon a 21-year-old colored boy in Police Court yesterday when he pleaded guilty to giving a false fire alarm.

The defendant, Wardell Carter, 21, of 415 R street northwest, was arrested Tuesday by Policeman W. J. Webb, Second Precinct, after apparatus was summoned to Fifth and P streets northwest. He was unable to ascribe a reason for the deed.

"We'll make you pay $1 for each dollar you cost the taxpayers," Judge Neilson declared, after Fire Inspector E. L. Jones testified that the cost of a fire alarm is about $75.

The ante on collateral is raised from $2 to $10.

In a letter to Presiding Judge John P. McMahon, of Police Court, the Commissioners told about the great number of complaints about the unnecessary blowing of horns.

"It will and must stop," they declared, adding under their collective breaths . . . "we hope."

Accidents Do Happen

Court to Recess

The United States Court of Appeals and the District Court will recess today for Memorial Day.

The judges in Police Court have also been put wise to the District Commissioners' new drive on all Oscar Hornpushers. The ban, which has been legal for several years, but never taken seriously by anyone, works only between 12:01 a. m. and 7 a. m. The rest of the day is all yours, Oscar.

Zoning Board Grants 3 Appeals For Construction

Separate appeals to inclose a first-story porch at 3208 Thirty-eighth street northwest; to permit remodeling of an eight-story apartment house at 1107 Sixteenth street northwest, and inclose a one-story rear porch at 1443 Locust road northwest, were approved by the board.

An appeal by the Diplomat Apartment Corporation over a dispute with the building inspector was deferred by the group. The appeal involves an eight-story apartment building now under construction at 2420 Sixteenth street northwest. Col. John W. Oehman, the building inspector, ruled the ground floor of the building is not the basement as is contended by the applicant, but really the first floor.

The appeal of Sam Lee to change a nonconforming use from a tailor shop to a hand laundry at 202 Eleventh street northeast, was turned down. Other cases were deferred.

Brass Called Before Police Health Board

Surgeons May Retire Sergeant, Noted Foe Of D. C. Racketeers

Detective Sergt. Frank O. Brass, 42, former ace investigator of the police robbery squad, has been ordered to appear before the board of police surgeons June 6, Maj. Brown revealed yesterday.

In ill health for the past few years, Brass faces retirement if the doctors decide his physical condition unfits him for further service.

With less than 15 years service, much less than the average detective sergeant, Brass has attained a reputation for his investigations of racketeers. In 1933 he rounded up a gang of bank robbers, who the year before had robbed three Washington Mechanic Savings Banks here of $15,000.

In Second Precinct

Recently, Brass has been assigned to the Second Precinct, a job he requested after he was relieved of the strenuous assignment of the robbery squad and sent to the Twelfth precinct. His superiors believed the comparative quiet of the Twelfth District would give him a chance to regain some of his lost strength. The monotony, he said, was too much and he asked for the more active assignment in the Second precinct.

Brass' record shows a long list of commendations for meritorious service, dating back to February, 1927, less than two years after his appointment to the force. He was rewarded by the King and Queen of England after their visit to this country.

Still Gets His Man

A nervous ailment in one of his legs has practically crippled the investigator for the past year, though he has continued to work. As if in rebuttal to the order calling him before the surgeons, Brass yesterday arraigned in Police Court an 18-year-old colored boy, charged with stealing a $7,000 diamond ring.

Brass arrested the youth after Mrs. Anna T. Milburn, of Seattle, Wash., reported her purse containing the ring stolen from her when she stopped for a traffic light May 19.

3 District Bills Passed by Senate; One for Airport

The Senate yesterday passed three District bills and thus cleared the calendar of all uncontroversial local bills.

One bill provides for administration of the National Airport at Gravelly Point by the Civil Aeronautics Authority, while the others set up machinery for the regulation of consumers cooperative associations and permit the Board of Education to authorize Sabbatical holidays for teachers and officers with part pay.

The airport bill clarifies the administrative control of the flying field and provides for the construction of a new link of the Mount Vernon boulevard bordering it.

Nurse Is Teacher of Health To Nation, Garfield Class Told

The Rev. Patrick J. O'Connor Urges Graduates to Bring Back 'the Spiritual Outlook' to Their Profession

The Rev. Patrick J. O'Connor, professor of sacred eloquence at Catholic University, told the graduating nurses of Garfield Hospital last night that their vision "must embrace not the single patient of yesteryear, but the health needs of a nation."

Speaking at commencement exercises on the hospital grounds, Father O'Connor urged the graduates to bring back "the spiritual outlook" to their profession, and added:

"Let not your desire for emoluments overshadow the primary purpose of your calling, namely, to serve."

The nurse of today, he said, has a new position—she is "a teacher of health to the Nation." The social problems that face her have increased, he declared, continuing:

"All about us we can see dislocation in our social structure; the symptoms are most noticeable. People need and are demanding an extension of health services of all kinds and it is to you to whom they are turning."

The invocation and benediction were pronounced by the Rev. Reno S. Harp, jr., pastor of the Trinity Episcopal Church. Diplomas were conferred by Dr. Henry C. Macatee, president of the hospital medical staffff.

The graduates were:

Nadine Elizabeth Bechtel, Helen Hurley Blalock, Mary Jane Bower, Helen Ravi Brooks, Myrtle Douglas Bunch, Helen Virginia Dailey, Lillian Eleanor Deane, Irene Catherine Dellinger, Margaret Williams Dow, Rachel Anna Driver, Virginia Gray Farnsworth, Monelle Dare Feaga, Ruth Lucille Fisher, Isabel Ann Friend, Ora Marie Gallahan, Julia Josephine Glosick, Bertha Jane Hahn, Virginia Jean Hansel, Charlotte Winifred Herridge, Eulalia May Hewitt, Lelia May Kehoe, Frankie Pauline Knight, Elva Grace Lang, Astri Erica Larssen, Kathryne Marie Laudermilk, Nancy Eleanor Lawson, Bertha French Lonas, Elizabeth Marshall, Lois Earle Martin, Elizabeth Virginia McClung, Lelia Madine Minnott, Rose Lena Mize, Evelyn Virginia Mohler, Lavinia Ida Kathryn Moler, Jean Rohrbaugh Moul, Frances McBryde Pennell, Ernestine Poag, Mary Mitchell, Powell, Katherine Virginia Reed, Sarah Kathryn Renault, Donna May Ridenour, Margaret Anne Seawell, Mabel Virginia Sherfey, Doris Matilda Shiver, Ann Michalene Tokarz, Margaret Vogler, Mildred Juanita Walden, Margaret Rae Watkins, Ruth Anne Watkins, Anna Virginia Will and Estelle Estelle Wirke.

Isabelle Messmer, Fugitive Gun Girl, Seized in Indiana

Tipton, Ind., May 29 (INS).—A small, brown-eyed young woman identified from fingerprints as Isabelle Messmer, known by authorities from the Mississippi to the East Coast as the "Elwood, Ind., two-gun girl," was captured by three police with drawn guns tonight as she emerged from a Tipton movie theater.

Isabelle Messmer is wanted in Texas where she escaped while serving a three-year sentence for the slaying of Buford Armstrong, of Oddessa, Tex. She is also wanted in New Jersey, where she escaped from the reformatory for women at Clinton, N. J., January 21, 1939, while serving a sentence for running down Detective George Eshenfelder, of Newark with her car.

Arrested in D. C.

Dillinger1worshiping Isabelle Messmer has paid frequent visits to Washington, and was first arrested here at the age of 19, seven years ago, when she arrived wearing man's clothes and carrying a gun. After a series of incidents, leading to a jail sentence here, the slight and shy-appearing blonde was seized again on a false check charge in June, 1937.

Among low bids received yesterday by the Navy Department was one for construction of a temporary office building at the Quantico (Va.) Marine Barracks, of $146,000 by the Charles H. Tompkins Co. of Washington.

Yankees Blast Home Runs to Beat Nats, 2 to 1

The Washington Post Sports

14 WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, MAY 30, 1940 X*

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

New York, May 29.—The standing of the Yankees on July 8 will determine whether revolt will break out in the American League council halls. That is the date when the club owners meet in St. Louis on the occasion of the all-star game, and General Manager Ed Barrow of the Yankees is prepared to head a rebellion.

POVICH

Irking Barrow at this time is the no-trade blockade imposed on the Yankees by that old Griffith Stadium schemer, Clark Griffith. The rule that Griffith hammered through at Cincinnati last winter has already begun to pinch the Yanks. Barrow laughed at it in December, but early this season Griffith's maneuver began to take on grim consequences for the Yanks.

The Yankee bosses didn't seriously resist the Griffith project at the time of its passage even though it was aimed exclusively at the Yanks. Under the broad heading of "Championship Teams" the Yankees were forbidden to buy or sell any American League player except by the waiver route, which meant that every other club in the league had a prior choice of available talent. The Yanks didn't care much because they had a team that was supposedly invincible, and their minor league farms were supposed to be full of talent already ripe for the majors.

But on both counts the Yankees began to discover they were mistaken. At the end of the first five weeks of play their "invincible" team was in the league [illegible] and the best minor league outfielder they could dig up in an emergency was Buster Mills, a two-time flop with the Browns and Red Sox. Avidly the Yanks looked toward established big leaguers they might have bought save for Griffith's restraining rule. Barrow then began to rebel.

"We'll have the rule repealed in July," he told New York newspapermen. "I can line-up five clubs who will vote with me and get it repealed when we meet in St. Louis. It's a fool rule that never should have been passed.

That is what Barrow said last week. This week he may not be so determined. The Yankee bosses are getting over their early-season fright. The Yankees are beginning to roll. They've won seven of their last eight games, nine of their last twelve. They are again beginning to look like an invincible team. At least, the heavy panic is over.

If the Yankee rush continues and the New York club is at or near the top and still rolling by the July league meeting, Barrow may not press his revolt. The trading deadline of June 15 will already be passed, and even a repeal of Griffith's rule would bring the Yanks no immediate aid. Barrow may reserve his efforts until the regular league meeting next winter when he will have more time to marshal all of his support among the club owners.

But if the current Yankee rush is merely transient, and the Yankee pennant is still in jeopardy come July, Barrow may be sufficiently angered to press immediately for the revision of the rule that has been plaguing him. What then? Can he get enough support among the club owners.

Barrow had stated that five clubs are with him on the proposition. It is easy to identify which three clubs he isn't counting on for support. Washington is out, of course. Pappy Griffith likes his rule and is secretly chuckling at the discomfort he has been causing his pet hate, the Yanks. Barrow can scarcely count on the Red Sox for support. Tom Yawkey and Mr. Griffith are as thick as Hitler and Goebbels, and the Red Sox owner would give Griffith his vote. So would Detroit. Walter O. Briggs, ailing and absent from his team, always votes with Griffith on league matters.

Those three votes the Nats' boss is sure of. And Barrow may be counting prematurely on any support from Cleveland. The Indians have developed an appetite for the pennant and are in a position to win it. Any little obstacle they can continue to leave in the path of the Yankees they undoubtedly will. At least the Indians will be in no great hurry to lighten the Yanks' load.

Such a lineup would split the league in a 4-4 vote, and the effect of that division would be to place President Will Harridge squarely on the spot. That's what a league president is for, to cast the deciding ballot. It's one he'd probably like to duck.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, May 29.—NOTES SO HOT:

There are now two guys looking for the thief who stole Frank Strafaci's golf clubs: Strafaci himself and Ben Hogan. Strafaci wants to cut the bloke's throat; Hogan wants to kiss him. For, y'see, Strafaci is so upset over losing his favorite canes that he won't go to the National Open, for which he qualified this week. Hogan, who failed to qualify but who became first alternate from the New York District, will slip into the tournament as a result of Strafaci's default. And will be one of the favorites, if not the favorite.

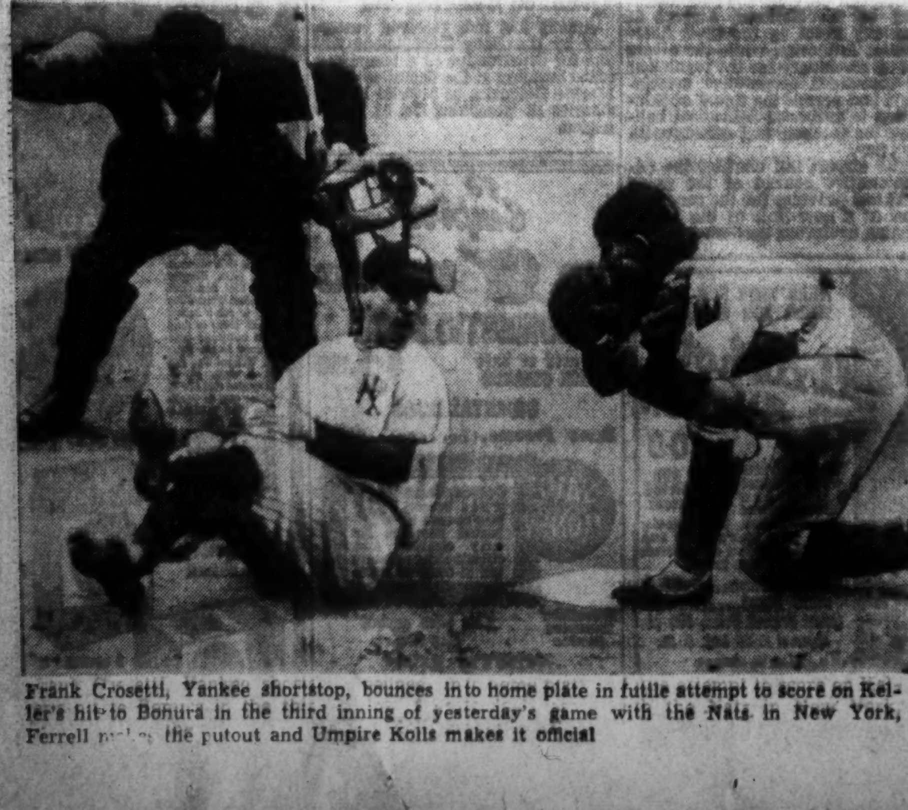

CONSIDINE

Yankee hitters, who are making a study of it, can see nothing different about Bill Dickey's stance or swing at the plate—and are as mystified as Bill over his .176 batting average . . . The reason there were so many veternairians around Kayak II's barn when the horse was sick was because Charley Howard has him insured for $150,000. . . . I was wrong about Johnny Vander Meer winning both his no-hitters at night. The first, of course, was a day game. . . . Bill Tilden is running a tennis club in Los Angeles and giving exhibitions every other week. . . . Valentin Campolo, who fights Buddy Baer June 6, is fully recovered from the auto accident he suffered before coming to the United States. He fractured a vertebra but didn't enter a hospital until after his second fight here.

Tomorrow is the day Indianapolis has been waiting for since dusk, last Memorial Day. That "500" is a great thing to see, if you could only see it. The press pagoda, as it is called, commands a view of the finish line, and perhaps 100 yards up and down the track. Even less can be seen from most of the stands and infield. But nobody seems to mind. It is the world's most gigantic picnic, usually hot and sunny, with the air heady from the castor oil fumes of the motors and the overpowering whiff of hundreds of hot dog and hamburger stands and the vast place blizzarded with shoe box lunches. Few see the real thrills of the race—the amazingly fast and sure work by the pit crews, changing four tires, gassing and oiling a car in a few racing seconds. There has been a line of cars waiting for more than a week, to get into the infield, their occupants sleeping in blear-eyed bundles of misery and eating at soda pop stands—waiting for the early morning bugle that will send them racing for advantage points like feverish land-claimers along the Cimarron.

Recently we asked our patient constituents to help us locate Jimmy Collins, the all-time third baseman. There were many replies, but here are two which were opened in succession. The first is from Washington. "James Collins, sometime third baseman of the Boston Americans, is understood to have taken his life some years ago in Buffalo, N. Y." Immediately after that one we opened a letter from Buffalo. "Regarding your column asking the whereabouts of Jimmy Collins. My address is 75 Wilbury avenue, Buffalo, N. Y. Am going strong and am feeling fine. Sincerely yours, Jimmy Collins.

Rene Lebegue May Be Forced Out of Classic; Prize Money Is $100,000

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, Ind., May 29.—A bomb will burst at 10 a. m. (C. S. T.) tomorrow—weather permitting—and 33, or perhaps only 32, stiff-helmeted race drivers will roar off, before some 125,000 spectators, in a grueling four-hour test of men and motors—the twenty-eighth annual 500-mile race.

The stake in the Memorial Day marathon over Indianapolis' 2½-mile brick-and-asphalt speedway will be $100,000 in prize money, to be divided among the contestants. The winner will draw down from $25,000 to $35,000, depending on the number of laps he leads.

Doubt over the number of starters grew out of the breakdown yesterday of an Italian-built Maserati to have been driven by Rene Lebegue, French soldier on leave.

If this can be repaired before the race starts, Lebegue will be in the field. Otherwise, American Automobile Association officials must rule whether a car driven by Tony Willman, of Milwaukee, qualified for the race, but crowded out by faster machines, may replace it.

Argentina Represented

Assuring an international flavor will be Raul Riganti, of Buenos Aires, Argentina, the South American champion, at the wheel of a new Maserati—rated by most trackside observers as one of the fastest speedsters in the event.

Two former winners will be in the race. They are Wilbur Shaw, of Indianapolis, seeking to tie Louis Meyer, of Huntington Park, Calif., as a three-time victor, and Kelly Petillo, of Los Angeles.

Shaw will drive another Maserati, the same car in which he won last year. He also was first in 1937. Petillo won in 1935.

On the basis of qualifying speeds the field is not as fast as that of a year ago, but only two starters qualified at an average of less than 120 miles an hour.

To qualify, a car had to make four laps of the two-and-a-half-mile track in at least 115 miles an hour, but only the swiftest 33 are eligible to start.

Rex Mays on Inside

On the inside in the front row will be Rex Mays, of Glendale, Calif., who qualified the first day at 127.850 miles an hour, best speed of all. Mays will drive the eight-cylinder American-built car Meyer had last year.

Shaw and Mauri Rose, of Columbus, Ohio, will be the other drivers in the first row.

After two weeks of rain and cold weather, the forecast for tomorrow was sunshine and cool. Bad weather handicapped drivers throughout the qualifying period. Until Monday only 19 cars had qualified.

With five exceptions the cars will be powered with four or eight-cylinder motors. Bob Swanson, of Los Angeles, will drive a 16-cylinder racer built from the car in which Frank Lockhart was killed in a speed run sevral years ago. Four speedsters will have six-cylinder motors.

Fight Highlights St. Louis Game

St. Louis, May 29 (AP).—Catcher Mike Tresh, of the Chicago White Sox, and Johnny Berardino, Browns' second baseman, were ejected for fighting in the fifth inning of the day's game.

Berardino, who had tripled, was cut at the plate trying to score on a tap to the pitcher. He scrambled to his feet and, swinging both fists, pummeled Tresh about the face before the surprised umpires and players from both teams could separate them.

Walters Wins Eighth, Pirates Blanked, 4-0

Bucky Hurls Four-Hit Ball; Collects Two Bingles for Reds; Bucs' Joe Bowman Touched for Eight Blows

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, May 29.—Bucky Walters, Cincinnati's converted third baseman, pitched, batted and fielded his way to his eighth straight victory today as the Reds trounced the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 0, to win three out of four games at Forbes Field.

The 30-year-old Red pitcher held the Pirates to four hits, all singles; smacked two of the Reds' eight hits off Joe Bowman, and started two double plays in a masterful fielding performance.

In his first trip to the plate in the third inning, Bucky rapped out a single which advanced Lee Gamble from first to third. Then Harry Craft's single scored Gamble. Bill Werber was passed and Frank McCormick knocked out another single, scoring Craft and Walters with the third Red run.

The fourth Red run was driven in by the Reds' ace hurler in the fourth frame. With two out, Billy Myers doubled and Walters hit Bowman's first pitch for a single.

It was Cincinnati's sixth win of seven games with the Bucs this year. Although the victory kept them ahead of the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers in games won, the Reds were still behind in percentage points. The win boosted the Reds to .697, while the Dodgers, who were idle today, have .724.

Butland Allows A's 12 Hits, But Tightens In Pinches for Victory

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, May 29.—Six-foot six-inch Wilburn Butland made his major league pitching debut with the first place Boston Red Sox today by whipping Philadelphia, 8-3.

The right-hander, who won 19 and lost 10 for Minneapolis in the American Association last year, put the Athletics down for their sixth straight time.

The A's banged out 12 hits off Butland, in addition to four bases on balls, but in the pinches the rookie from Terre Haute, Ind., was supreme. Thirteen A's were stranded on base.

Boston got off to a fast start against Nelson Potter scoring three runs in the first inning when Manager Joe Cronin walloped a 3 and 2 pitch to left field for a double with the bases full.

White Sox Rally, Defeat Browns, 4-3

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, May 29.—Faced with the loss of fifth place, the Chicago White Sox rallied with three runs in the eighth inning today and defeated the sixth-position Browns, 4 to 3.

Elden Auker, pitching for the Browns, was sailing along behind a 3-1 lead when the Sox found the range. Joe Kuhel's single, a walk to Mike Kreevich, Taft Wright's double and a single by Larry Rosenthal added up to the trio of runs and the game.

Indians Beat Tigers Behind Bob Feller, 7-4

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, May 29.—Bob Feller was below his best form today, but aided by his Cleveland mates' 14-hit attack, had enough to trim Detroit, 7 to 4, for his seventh triumph of the season.

The victory repelled the Tigers' challenge to the second-place Indians by dropping the invaders 2½ games behind Cleveland, and gave the home club one win in the three-game series.

Cleveland sewed up today's contest by blasting Southpaw Tom Seats for three runs in each of the first two innings. Seats' successors, Johnny Gorsica and Archie McKain, allowed nine blows for only one more tally. Doubles by Jeff Heath, Hal Trosky and Roy (Beau) Bell contributed the important punches, Bell's blow driving in three runs in the second.

The Tigers got eight hits off Feller, including Bruce Campbell's first circuit blow of the season and five two-baggers. The 21-year-old speedball king has lost only twice this year—both to the club he defeated today.

Capt. Hawk's Underhand Casting Is a Novelty

If you want the inside on how to cast without snatching your neighbor's Panama far out to sea, Capt. O. L. Hawk's your man.

The captain was in town yesterday demonstrating just that sort of thing under auspices of the National Capital Casting Club and unveiled his favorite rod and reel trick which makes it considerable safer to approach anglers from the rear.

Capt. Hawk's particular angle is the elimination of backlash and came about simply because California was tired of hearing complaints from boardwalk strollers that various parts of their anatomy had just been hooked by the backward arch of some angler standing at the water's edge.

"Most of the piers in California are crowded the greater part of the time, and under present laws you can't cast with an overhand stroke," Hawk explained. "I didn't particularly like the idea of swinging back under the pier, so I invented a stroke."

Capt. Hawk's stroke is a sort of underhand snap of the wrist he calls the "spring-flip." It's a stroke with which Hawk can do almost anything you care to think of in the way of casting.

One of the foremost artificial bait casters and all-around fishing tackle demonstrators in the Nation, Hawk is a former Florida boat captain and fishing guide.

Hawk admits he's strictly a salt-water man now. He went to Florida immediately after the World War, in which he saw active service, and since giving up his fishing career there two years ago to join a large manufacturer of fishing tackle, he has traveled into every part of the United States.

Gar Wood Unhurt As Landing Gear Collapses on Plane

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, May 29.—Gar Wood, veteran Detroit speedboat pilot, and three other persons escaped injury today as the landing gear of their airplane collapsed in a landing at the Municipal Airport.

Wood, his brother, Phillip; Mrs. Phillip Wood and Mrs. Wood's sister, Renee Raunaud, flew here for the 500-mile automobile race tomorrow.

The bottom of the two-motored plane was damaged. Mechanics said the plane could be repaired for the flight back to Detroit after the race.

Keller, Dickey Collect Blows Off Leonard

Atley Donald Allows 4 Hits in Year's Debut; Nats' Rally In Ninth Falls Short

By Shirley Povich.
Post Staff Writer

New York, May 29.—The Nats today produced a streamlined defeat. They were dispatched in one hour and 22 minutes in the fastest game of the year at Yankee Stadium. They were licked by the classic score of 2 to 1, and somewhere in New York two bleacher fans own home-run balls which won the game for the Yankees.

When the Yankees didn't make home runs against Dutch Leonard today, they didn't score. Before he could develop the niceties of his knuckle ball this chill afternoon, Leonard was licked in his bid for a fifth straight victory. He pitched a home run to Charley Keller in the first inning and another to Bill Dickey in the second and his shutout performance over the rest of the route was unavailing.

Leonard had the misfortune to be meeting up with Atley Donald, of the Yankees, on an afternoon when that young right-hander was pitching four-hit ball. Not until the fifth inning did the Nats produce a hit of any description, and going into the ninth Donald was fashioning a two-hit game for himself.

Nats Make Bid in Ninth

For eight innings the Nats were a helpless crew against Donald who was making his first start of the season after being troubled all spring with a muscle injury in his right leg. And then, all of a sudden in the ninth the Nats made a bold bid to tie the ball game. They merely averted the ignominy of a shutout.

Buddy Myer revived the waning hopes of the Nats when, pinch-hitting for Rick Ferrell at the start of the ninth, he drew a base on balls. Sammy West, pinch-hitting for Leonard could merely deliver a fly to Keller, but George Case put the tying run on base with a well-placed bunt down the third base line. In this emergency, Buddy Lewis flied out to Keller, but Johnny Welaj smashed a single to left that scored Myer and moved Case to second. That put the issue up to Gerry Walker who obliged the suddenly harrassed Donald with a deep fly to Keller.

It was a brutal sort of defeat for Leonard, who pitched a magnificent six-hit game. Keller's first-inning homer, with two out, was a lusty swat into the bleachers, but Dickey's clout that proved the margin of victory was a wind-blown fly that elicited cries of "Foul!" from the Nats.

Zeke Bonura Helps

Thereafter, Leonard pitched three-hit ball. He held the Yanks scoreless in the third despite Crosetti's double that opened the inning and he walked only one batter. In the fifth and eighth the first Yankee to face him reached base, but he averted further damage. He got potent support from Zeke Bonura, who grabbed Keller's smash in the third inning and threw Crosetti out at the plate, and from Johnny Welaj, who raced into deep center in the eighth for a diving catch of Gordon's long drive.

Donald owes a bow to his out-

Tide Beats Tech, 8-1, In Semifinal

1939 Foes to Clash Again Tuesday With Vikings Defending Public High Crown

By Bill Burnett

Using an 8-1 judgment over a helpless Tech nine as a mere stepping stone, Eastern High yesterday advanced to the finals of the interhigh round robin baseball tournament where it will get another crack at its perennial foe, Central.

The same two rivals which met in the 1939 finale will square away next Tuesday at Anacostia field with this year's crown at stake. Eastern will seek to regain the title it held for two peaceful years before the "Gas House Gang" of Central rudely lifted it last June by a 6-2 score. Central will attempt to repeat a 13-3 shellacking given the Tide earlier this season.

With yesterday's easy triumph as a gauge, Eastern appeared ready to make itself felt in the finale. Warren Earhardt served up a 6-hit mound effort that kept the Tide in the van throughout as it took its second decision of the year over Tech.

Tide Gets 16 Hits

Eastern sluggers, kicking in with 16 safeties off the slants of two Trainer hurlers, brought home a run in the second and five more in the fifth before the opposition got its soitary point.

Of the six safeties off Earhardt, no more than one was registered in any inning. Earhardt overcame his tendency toward wildness, gave up only two walks and fanned seven hopeful Techites.

Besides Buddy Keithley, who came home with Tech's only run in the fifth when he singled, reached third on two successive errors by Earhardt and scored on a long fly, only one Trainer was able to get to third. One of Second Baseman Hite's three errors and the only passed ball of the game shoved Ciomei to the hot corner in the third.

Fielding bunts proved to be Earhardt's only weak spot yesterday. He was the only player in the game with three hits to his credit, in each case the ball tearing between short and second for a clean single. He stole a base and romped in with one of the winning runs in the big fifth.

Green's Downfall

That fifth inning scoring spree, incidentally, was something to be proud of. It was also the downfall of Charley Green, Tech's starting pitcher.

The first four men to face Green, who had issued only five hits previously, slammed perfect base hits to left and center. Earhardt, Hite, Walsh and Coppage were the culprits. "Lefty" Gatton then sacrificed men to second and third, and Paul Cohill cleaned things up with a triple to deep center. At that point Green bowed out and Buddy Webb took over. Cohill scored on Hoffman's long fly, but Webb retired the side by fanning "Gabby" Hayes.

More 'Science' On Wrestling Card Tonight

Promoter Joe Turner's emphasis on "science" continues tonight at his W street arena when he presents Gino Martinelli versus the Irish Angel and Karol Krauser versus Pat Corrigan in cofeature groan exhibitions.

It is Turner's belief that this will pack more scientific bone bending into one card than he has had in several months.

To lend enchantment to the affair, Jack Pfeffer, the wrestling maestro from New York, will be on hand to direct the scenes in which the Angel will appear.

In the preliminary routines, Sailor Ed Franer meets Mickey James, Zim Zam Zum faces Luigi Bacigalupi and Benny Rosen faces Tony Siano.

On Fishing

Tyro and embryo anglers can always learn considerable of baitcasting from the tips of oldtimers. They caution endlessly, the fact that reels need regular oiling at the points of greatest friction, namely, the two bearings and the level-winding screw and sliding bar. These parts should be oiled every day—in heavy use, two or three times a day. Keep clear of sand and grit as much as possible.

ACKERMAN

In putting a line on a reel, if it has no cork arbor, use 10 or 15 yards of old line as a filler, attaching it of course to the new line. We prefer to get the few yards additional of new line to keep it in one piece. Spool the new line on. If you let the coils slide off the edge of the spool it will lay a heavy twist.

There is a balance between the rod, the lure and the line. It is difficult to cast a light lure with a line testing 20 to 25 pounds. Use light line with light lures, and with light, whippy rods, which casts a light lure far more easily than a stiff rod. The hollow steel rods afford greater strength than the same flexibility in bamboo, with less liability to take a set after heavy use.

Keep your lures in good condition; have a file to sharpen your hooks. Put feathered lures in moth-proof boxes. Clean and dry all lures before putting them away. Your line, too, should be dried after use, and rubbed down with a light oil. It is most important to have a floating line when using surface lures. Wire leaders are not needed for bass, but for pike, salt water trout and blues it is a necessity. Wire leaders affect the action of some lures, particularly of surface ones.

Learn bait manipulation and the use of various lures in the way for which they were intended. It will pay dividends in larger catches and increased fun. Use the overhand when fishing close to or with someone else in a boat.

String fish through both lips, and not through the gills; it will keep them alive longer, and facilitates the movement of the boat through weeds and lily pad with less chance of losing them. A real sportsman returns unwanted and undersized fish. Any fish small enough to be measured should be given the benefit of the doubt. Remember to wet the hands before handling any fish.

When walking through the woods, always carry the rod with the butt forward, not the tip. This is particularly true with flyrods, for many the tip that has been smashed from carrying the tip forward.

Test the line every time a new lure is put on. It is surprising how soon casting weakens the first foot or two. Most of the fish that break off are the direct result of carelessness in not removing this small portion of line. Watch out for cracked guides. They will ruin a line in no time. We prefer stainless steel, so that this precaution may be forgotten.

Losing pitcher Leonard was the stand-out performer for the Nats at Yankee Stadium yesterday despite his defeat, and merits the chief award of points in the Man of the Month contest.

To Leonard, 10 points, because he kept the Nats in the ball game by shutting out the Yanks after the second inning with a six-hit performance.

To Johnny Welaj, six points, because he contributed a remarkable catch of Gordon's long drive in the seventh, and because he drove in the Nats' only run with an important ninth inning single that put the tying run on second base.

To Zeke Bonura, three points, because he made one of the Nats' four hits and cut off a run at the plate with a clever play on Keller's smash in the third.

To Jimmy Bloodworth, three points, because he made the Nats first hit and hit the ball hard all afternoon.

To George Case, two points, because he beat out a bunt in the ninth to put the tying run on base.

Hurler Connects for Three-Run Homer Against Chicago Cubs

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 29.—With Pitcher Lon Warneke hitting a three-run homer and his battery mate, Mickey Owen, driving in four runs with a pair of doubles, the St. Louis Cardinals routed the Chicago Cubs, 8 to 2, today in the third and deciding game of their series.

Larry French, who shut out the Cardinals twice in succession last month, suffered his third straight knockout when Warneke lined the ball into the leftfield bleachers with two on in the sixth after Owen had doubled in a run. Owen also had doubled with the bases filled in the fourth inning.

Dizzy Dean, in his first relief role of the year and his first appearance since May 12, shut out the Cardinals on three singles the last 3 2-3 innings. The defeat was the fourth in five games for the Cubs.

Errickson Hurls Bees To Victory Over Phils

By the Associated Press

Boston, May 29.—The pitching gods smiled on Casey Stengel's Boston Bees for a second time this season, as Dick Errickson, with the help of a batting rally by his mates in the seventh, defeated the Philadelphia Nationals, 3 to 1, before a crowd of 1,143.

It was only the second time this season that Stengel has been able to sit through a game without being forced to signal the bullpen for a relief hurler. Errickson, in winning the Bees' second straight game, held the Phillies to five hits.

The Boston team collected four of its six hits and all of its three runs in the stretch seventh off the Phillies' starting pitcher, Walter Beck. Buddy Hassett opened the attack with a double, Max West singled, tand Chet Ross doubled to score Hassett. fielders for his four-hit triumph. Joe DiMaggio made a larcenous one-handed catch of Walker's long clout in the second, and George Selkirk deprived Walker and Bloodworth of hits later in the game.

There were faint visions of a no-hit performance for Donald until two were out in the fifth. The Nats were popping up his curve ball with great regularity. Bloodworth singled to left in the fifth for the Nats' first hit of the game.

The eighth inning was the heart-breaker for the Nats. Zeke Bonura led off with a single to right and Bloodworth followed with a well-tagged liner to left that was labeled for extra bases, but Selkirk galloped over the ground to spear the ball with an outstretched glove, and Bonura was doubled off first base by 40 yards.

Huge Pro-Amateur To Aid Red Cross

80 Teams Expected for July 4 Event; Officials Expect to Sell 5,000 Tickets For 18-Hole Event; National Stars to Play

The biggest pro-amateur golf tournament ever held in the city with the entire proceeds to be donated to the Red Cross will be held at Indian Spring on July 4 according to plans formulated in a meeting yesterday at the club.

What started out to be a meeting to lay plans for a $500 pro-amateur ended up with all the original plans discarded and now the set-up is an 18-hole pro-amateur, with gold medals to the winning amateur and professional, no cash prizes, and no entry fee.

Tickets for the charity affair will be priced at $1 each and every golf profession in the city will immediately get behind the sale. It is hoped to realize several thousand dollars for the European War Relief Fund of the Red Cross.

Every golf professional on the Atlantic seaboard will receive an invitation and, in addition, a half-dozen of the game's biggest name professionals are expected to compete, with an all-star lineup of simon-pures also promised.

Earl Clary, president of the board at Indian Spring, and Dr. Thomas Utz were in charge of the meeting yesterday, attended by Golf Professionals Wiffy Cox and Robert T. Barnett, who assisted in putting over the Red Cross idea, and Mel Shorey, Leo Walper, Lewis Worsham, jr., District of Columbia Golf Association Secretary; Dr. W. C. Barr and radio and newspapermen.

The District Red Cross chapter will assist in the ticket sale, and the tourney backers will be disappointed if a sum of $5,000 is not realized.

At least 80 teams, and probably more are expected and the principal difficulty will be in getting them off the tee between dawn and dark on the nine-hole course.

The tickets will serve as admission for the holiday affair. Barnett, vice president of the Middle Atlantic P. G. A., predicted the idea would spread to every active golf association in the country.

Middies Beat Colonials, 2-1; Fourth Straight

Four Navy Hurlers Work Against G. W. At Annapolis

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, May 29.—Four Navy pitchers saw action today as the Midshipmen crowded past the George Washington University nine, 2-1, for the Navy's fourth straight victory.

Coach Max Bishop gave all his first line hurlers a workout to keep them ready for Army on Saturday and the whole staff gave the Colonials only five scattered hits. Lefty Schoenbaum took the first three frames for the Middies and kept the visitors to two hits and no runs, while striking out four batters.

Norman Smith replaced Schoenbaum for the next three innings and struck out five batters, for no hits. When Smith left the mound in favor of Southpaw Tom Turner in the seventh, he had twirled his twenty-third strikeout in 18 consecutive scoreless innings.

Caidon Captures Charles Town Feature Race by Length

Swift Air, Second; Third To Trapshot

Winner Takes Lead In Backstretch; Pays $8.80 Mutuel; Ridden by Kelley

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., May 29.—Caidon, a 5-year-old son of Caid and as much at home on the Charles Town oval as the track superintendent, turned in his second handicap victory of the meeting when he won the Washington Times-Herald, a test of 7 furlongs. Urged by Jockey W. Kelley, Caidon took command on the backstretch and withstood all challenges to win by a length over D. T. Watt's Swift Air. Third in the field of eight was Mrs. W. C. Byron's Trapshot.

Caidon performed in the colors of Miss Jayne Waugh and was the favorite by a few cents over Schley Goree. He paid an $8.80 mutuel and was clocked in 1:29 3-5. The track, heavy this morning, was drying out rapidly and was in slow condition for the day's feature.

Swift Air, which ran away with her previous race, was first to show in front, but Kelley had Caidon close up. Along the backstretch, Caidon forged to the front. Trapshot came up on the rail to get to serious contention. But Caidon had his speed today and could not be caught. Swift Air and Trapshot continued to battle along behind him to the finish line.

Apprentice Jockey E. Churchill rode his first of two winners in the opening event when be brought Royal Dot home for the favorite players. The payoff was $5. Satin Royce was second and Osofree was third.

Jockey Tony Vesseli was tossed off Don Gomez, his mount in the second race, and escaped with some facial scratches. Ravenhurst, paying $20.20, won the race by a neck in a blanket finish with Way Out and Lead Please with Butterman, the favorite, shunted into fourth position.

There was a $50 payoff in the daily double when the Blue Grass Farm's Nob won the third event by three lengths. Under good handling by Jockey Douglas West, the son of Flag Pole finished ahead of Betwick and Reigh Tetrarch. He paid an individual mutuel of $5.80 in the favored role.

Apprentice Churchill added Tuleyries Lad, at $16.20 shot, to his list of winners in the fourth race. Justa Jimmie was second and Cautious Bo was third in a battle over the Charles Town course of 120 feet more than six furlongs. Tuleyries Lad came from behind and scored by a length margin.

NOB, allowed to settle into best stride, came around horses while moving up, responded gamely when placed to punishment and was coasting at end. BETWICK was in thick of contention from start and closed under pressure. REIGH TETRARCH got to front on backstretch, but could not resist others while closing gamely. ROUGH BUDDY was used up setting early pace. SAIL BY was held safe. NATIONAL was not serious factor.

TULEYRIES LAD, going in best form and rated while within striking distance, moved up sharply when shaken up and won going away. CAIDON, first away, saved ground while moving to front of SWIFT AIR, was hard handled thereafter and held clear lead at end. SWIFT AIR had good speed throughout, set early pace and held on gamely to end. TRAPSHOT came up along rail to better position and hung in final furlong. BULLET B. closed ground after being sluggish in early stages. SCHLEY GOREE showed early speed and tired.

TRIXIE LASS could not reach serious contention. STINGAREE went evenly. EARLY BROOM was through early.

WAR RUMOR went to front in early stages, set strong pace and was not seriously threatened, but was driving at close. HEART PLAY rallied mildly in closing test after being forward factor from start. At The Post

Selections at Charles Town.

Dear Al:

President Al Boyle and his associates hope to be hosts to one of the largest crowds in the history of the plant today. Racing Secretary Fred Burton has lined up eight limit fields and has a couple of substitute races ready in case they are needed. The $1,000 Decoration Day Handicap is the main event, listed as the fifth race. The test, over the mile and an eighth course, has drawn eleven good distance horses and the limit has been raised to allow ten to start. Royal Business, despite two failures here, probably will be the favorite at this long route. She must carry top weight of 118 pounds but is fit and ready. Dulie, Sandy Belle, Capstick, Schley Buck and Brush Hook, all winners at this meeting, will be in there knocking. Others to await starter John Morrissey's signal are Some Bull (named for Art Brown), two Aces, Giggle Lee, Charming Herod and West Sea. E. Y. Auld is the trainer of Randle's Queen, surprise winner here last Tuesday, and is to be congratulated on the splendid condition of the filly. It wasn't a little bird who told me that Jockey Wille Duford and Maxine Machado, she the widow of Jockey Lou Machado, will be married after Saturday's program. A pair of nice kids who should click. Jockey M. Bletzacker who won the second race of his career here last Tuesday, was injured when he was working a horse and a stirrup broke yesterday morinig. He was rushed to the Charles Town Hospital for repairs. Leave it to the jockeys to come up with good lines. "You saw me downtown with my new girl last night, what do you think of her?" one rider asked another. "She was all right," replied the other boy, "but she looks like she's got a lot of mileage on her." Eddie O'Hara, in charge of the money room in the mutuel department here, has entered the Charles Town Hospital for an operation. James Pal, popular hereabouts and on the Maryland milers, has been put back in training by C. P. Miles. Chief Evergreen made good for the stable and I picked him, so I hope the Benningites got well. BILL.

First Race—Miss Warning has shown enough speed to warrant top selection in this group. She seems capable of handling the 115-pound assignment and I see no reason for mistakes. Snobbish Lady can better that last considerably and is a threat. Deblin for the minor award.

Second Race—Amerlee has shown good general form this spring and finds company here that seems to suit. I'm going to string along. Lyde is dangeruos off recent good efforts. Chief Hollis should give a good account of himself.

Third Race—Vendor's Lien was all over the track in a recent event. With better handling this one could take it all. Happy Miracle gets the inside post and could make the most of the position. Margie Wrack belongs with these and will be close.

Fourth Race—Lacey Miss may have the track she likes in this affair. The distance is right and I look for her to take a set of brackets. Kissen Bug is good now. Walli is on the reserve list and will be dangerous if sent postward.

Fifth Race—Forced to go back to Royal Business in the handicap. She has disappointed so far and has 118 pounds but I believe she will get the track she likes today. Dulie, from the number 1 post position, probably will take the lead and will have to be caught. Brush Hook may be third.

Sixth Race—I'm going to dig deep in the pickle vat for this one. I mean Devil's Broth. Had plenty of poor racing luck last out. Grouchneuer is honest as they make them and will be a factor. Brainchild could improve with the change of track conditions.

Seventh Race—Sea Finn gets the rail position and the light weight of the party. Looks like the right spot Bellthorn is rounding into form and is a threat. Abbot's Lark and Last Scamp are much better than shown last out.

Eighth race—If properly handled, Counter Pass can win this as far as you can throw a stone. Sunny Rose is good now and will be close. Bright Light for the show end.

Substitute race—If number 1 is used, I'll take Quick Vine, Royal Veil and Alice Dodge. If number 2 goes, I prefer Bright Chance, Stray Chord and Blind Talk.

Best bet—Sea Finn.

Manor Hunt Card Stresses Races Today

Cummings Memorial Feature of Horse Show At Brooke Johns' Farm

Varying the customary procedure for horse shows, the Manor Club Hunt expects to draw thousands to Brooke John's farm, near Norbeck, Md., today for a card which particularly emphasizes races.

In addition to five flat, timber and brush affairs, the committee has planned a horse show program of three events for ladies hunters, pairs of hunters and knockdown-and-out, and a good-sized list of pony classes.

Heading the races is the Andrew J. (Cy) Cummings Memorial Race, named in honor of the late president of the Laurel track. Committee members announced yesterday that Lewis A. Randall's Monty R. is a probable starter, along with many other prominent timber horses from Maryland and Virginia.

The brush race will be over a 2-mile course, and the two flat races will be at 5½ furlongs and at 1 1-16 miles. The remaining event is for ponies at one-quarter of a mile.

Pony saddle and jumping classes commence at 10 a. m., and horse show and racing events will begin after the luncheon recess.

Officials are Louis C. Leith, William Osbourne, Mrs. N. H. McDowell, Vincent Lester, James Sullivan and James Pfefferkorn.

Reilly Defines Credit in Talk To Bankers

Constructive Policy Can Help Promote Democracy, He Says

"Credit is the instrumentality that makes the capitalistic system function to its maximum utility," said John A. Reilly, president of The Second National Bank, in an address to the convention of the National Industrial Bankers Association at the Wardman Park yesterday.

"Our life as a Nation has been short. In a little more than a century and a half we have made progress that has amazed the world. From a meager group of people on the edge of a vast and practically unknown continent we have grown into the most powerful of all nations.

"As Americans we believe in democracy. We are champions of the capitalistic system and should be proud of it. All things in America may not be as we would wish them to be. Some of us are by force of circumstances denied our share of the good things of life. Our humblest citizen knows, however, that come what may he and his loved ones will not be permitted to starve, and when the opportunity comes to him he may make the most of it—unvexed by decrees made over night and without fear that some agency is seeking to twist his every thought and every act into a crime against the State.

"A sound constructive credit policy can do much to promote and expand the capitalistic system. Fundamental principles of credit granting cannot be ignored if credit is to create wealth. It may be difficult to apply these principles to our constantly changing social order but we should approach the problems calmly and dispassionately and in harmony with fundamental principles if the use of credit is to be helpful."

Freudberg Speaks At D. C. Insurance Council Meeting

Leopold V. Freudberg, of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co., and Harold A. Kertz, assistant trust officer of the National Metropolitan Bank, spoke at the last meeting of the current year of the Washington Life Insurance Trust Council, held Tuesday night at the Cosmos Club.

Freudberg's talk outlined the developments and functions of the council and the particular advantages to be obtained by cooperation of the life underwriters and trust officers in trust involving the use of life insurance, particularly in business and estate insurance trusts.

Kertz spoke on the rights of creditors respecting the settlement provisions of life insurance and creditors claims against the insured and beneficiaries under life insurance policies. He explained the provisions in the code for the protection of beneficiaries and the efficacy of the spendthrift clause in the modern trust.

Officers elected for the coming year are: Joseph A. Marr, C. L. U. general agent, Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co., president; Leonard Marbury, assistant trust officer, Washington Loan & Trust Co., vice president; Raymond A. DuFour, Massachusetts Mutual underwriter, secretary; Earl G. Jonscher, assistant officer, American Security & Trust Co., treasurer.

Stocks Regain About Half of Tuesday's Losses But Close on a Weak Note After Light Trading in Final Hours of Session

New York, May 29.—Shares regained about half the losses sustained in Tuesday's crash of prices, but the close today was on a weak note. It was evident that traders were taking steps to protect themselves on possible developments which might disturb markets over the holiday.

The President's appointments of advisory members of the National Defense Council were met with approving comment, and surveys from various sections of industry indicated that certain large concerns can, with only a brief change-over period, manufacture large quantities of firearms and other munitions. Ford sources were the authority for an estimate that 1,000 airplanes daily of standardized design could be produced with six months preparation.

Italy a Disturbing Factor

Wall street remained fully conscious of the threat of further bad news, upsetting to sentiment, from the other side. Leading possiblities in this direction would be Italy's participation in the war, long-threatened, and failure of at least a part of the British Expeditionary Force in Flanders to extricate itself from the German trap.

With steels, heavy manufacturing and choice rails holding best to their early advances which had run to several points, the market closed barely steady with the 100 key stocks 0.42 point higher on sales of 657,082 shares, the smallest total for a five-hour session since the Nazi invasion of Holland, Belgium and France.

Virtually all bonds were steadier with certain issues, including belligerents, which have been under heaviest pressure, recovering a little. Sterling rallied after an early drop and closed with a net gain of 1⅛ cents. French and Swiss francs also were higher. The Argentina peso broke 20 points.

Morning Session Active

Most of the activity in shares occurred in the morning. Bethlehem Steel opened at 69¾, up 1¼. It closed at 69⅞ for a net rise of 1⅜. United States Steel common, after rising to 46⅞, reacted to 45⅞. Republic Steel, while active, retained only a small fraction of its advance.

In the motors section, General Motors went ahead a point and Chrysler added 2. New York Central was the most active issue in the rail section, while Baldwin led the equipment group. There was surprisingly little activity in equipments.

Aircraft as a group ended where they started. Curtiss-Wright, the most active, was down a small fraction, but Lockheed added ⅜ and North American Aviation ⅛. International Paper issues made progress on an unofficial estimate that directors, at their meeting next week, will pay something on account of dividend arrears on the 5 per cent preferred, as well as the $1.25 quarterly.

Several special issues made large gains, including American Chicle, 5¼, ex dividend, on a single sale; Ingersoll-Rand, 3, Johns-Manville, 3½, and duPont, 3⅛. Allied Chemical, Union Pacific and People's Gas added a point or more each.

Listed Bonds Rally

Listed bonds rallied somewhat today. Gains appeared even in some sections of the foreign list, on the assumption that anything and everything now has been discounted by the market. United States bonds were up to a greater degree. Trading totaled only $4,340,000, with a preholiday atmosphere contributing to the dullness.

German government loans were marked higher, owing to the military victories and the continued payments of interest on a modified basis. Belgian issues hovered around levels reached when the army capitulated, but Scandinavians reflected some inquiry. Australian and Canadian obligations were steady to firm. Italian and Japanese bonds moved up a little, and the long Latin-American list showed rallying power.

Speculative carrier bonds showed gains ranging from fractions to 3 points, on modest buying.

U. S. Building Awards Reach High for Year

By the Associated Press

New York, May 29.—Engineering construction awards for the short week due to the Memorial Day holiday totaled $78,575,000, the highest oft he year, Engineering News-Record reported today. The total was 79 per cent greater than the previous week and 97 per cent larger than a year ago.

Commencement of work on the $28,500,000 Fort Loudoun Dam in Tennessee by the TVA contributed to a sharp gain in public contracts, which were 109 per cent higher than the week before and 69 per cent greater than the corresponding week last year.

Private construction awards gained 21 per cent over the previous week and were more than four times as large as the relatively small volume in the same week a year ago. Continued activity in industrial and commercial building and large scale private housing were responsible for the rise.

Comparison of the week's awards follows:

	Latest Week.	Previous Week.
Private	$18,304,000	$15,091,000
State and municipal	17,906,000	23,587,000

Republic Aviation Drops de Seversky After Arguments

Wilmington, Del., May 29 (AP).—Maj. Alexander P. de Seversky, noted speed pilot and airplane designer, has been dropped from the board of the Republic Aviation Corporation after unsuccessful efforts to compose his "differences" with the management.

De Seversky, not reelected at the annual stockholders meeting here yesterday, said he had disagreed with experimental policies and choice of the firm's executives.

"I felt it my duty," he declared, "to advise the stockholders of these differences to the end that they be advised and form their own opinion as to the merits of the controversy and, if necessary, to resort to the courts."

Court Prohibits Note Extension

Portland, Oreg., May 29 (AP).—Federal Judge James A. Fee temporarily restrained the Portland General Electric Co. today from extending promissory notes held by two Eastern banking firms.

Independent trustees of the Portland Electric Power Co., holding company for the General Electric, said the order would prevent the Chase National Bank of New York and the Harris Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago from selling collateral held as security against the notes.

The trustees, who asked the injunction, alleged that not more than $750,000 of the $5,462,000 debt claimed against the General Electric by the two banks was valid obligation.

Cement Shipments Show 12.2 Increase

The Bureau of Mines yesterday reported that the Portland cement industry produced 10,043,000 barrels in April, shipped 10,829,000 from the mills and had 25,334,000 in stock at the end of the month. Production and shipments increased 3.8 and 12.2 per cent, respectively, compared with April, 1939. Mill stocks were 6.4 per cent higher than a year ago.

Steel Users Buying Heavily, Magazine Says

Business Advances In Past Week Noted In Iron Age Analysis

By the Associated Press

New York, May 29.—Iron and steel consumers "have launched another of those intensive buying movements which characterized periods of great stress," the magazine Iron Age said today in a weekly survey.

The sharp advance in business during the past week, the steel review said, will bring May volume for some companies near the high figures of last autumn.

"Air bombing of the Ruhr district of Germany by the Allies," said the survey, "has revived the danger that steel plants on both sides may be put out of commission, thereby increasing the dependency of the Allies on this continent for steel and pig iron."

Inventories are Accumulated

Consumers "have quickly sensed the possibility of shortages or delayed deliveries later on and are building up their inventories in anticipation of greatly expanded requirements of the Allies and our own Government for its national defense program.

"Allied purchases of steel here are now expected to become a routine procedure at a volume far in excess of previous requirements. Moreover, a greater volume is coming from Canada, while neutral countries are turning to this country to a larger extent.

Backlogs Being Built Up

"Despite higher steel production and larger shipments, mill backlogs are being built up at a surprisingly rapid rate. Ingot output this week, it is estimated, will average 78 per cent of the industry's capacity, with further rises probable.

"The advance of scrap prices has been more hesitant . . . the Iron Age steel scrap composition price moved up to a new 1940 high of $18.17, an advance of 25 cents over last week."

Wheat Steady To Up Despite Light Trading

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 29.—Although trading was slowed by the usual preholiday inertia, wheat prices today managed to advance slightly in partial response to sharp gains at Buenos Aires and Winnipeg, and strength in securities.

Although the unsettled world situation, sluggish foreign demand and diminishing domestic activity deepened, many dealers' reluctance to change trading positions particularly before the holiday, scattered purchasing kept prices higher most of the session.

Italy Orders 250,000 Tons Of U. S. Scrap

New York, May 29 (AP).—Italy has ordered 250,000 tons of steel scrap in the United States, trade sources reported today, but some dealers expressed doubt whether all of it would be shipped in view of a move in Congress to license war metal exports.

One scrap authority said he understood President Roosevelt, under new defense measures, would have broad powers to ban metal exports when deemed in the national interest.

Italy, a leading buyer of scrap in this country in recent years, was said to have bought much more heavily than usual in placing the latest orders for delivery over the next few months.

New York, May 29 (AP).—Production of electric energy increased to 2,448,865,000 kilowatthours during the week eneded May 25, highest since mid-March, the Edison Electric Institute said today.

Finance Firm Pays Dividend Of 75 Cents

Commercial Credit Increases Allotment To Surplus Fund

Baltimore, May 29.—Directors of Commercial Credit Co. today declared a dividend of 75 cents a share on the common stock compared with $1 a share paid in previous quarters.

Lower financing rates in recent months which kept net income from rising in proportion to increased gross business was the reason given by the directors for lowering the dividend. The board said, however, that the previous $1 quarterly dividend had been earned but it had been decided to add to surplus a larger portion of current net income. The latest dividend, together with a regular quarterly payment of $1.06¼ on the preferred, is payable June 29 to stock of record June 10.

U. S. Leather.

U. S. Leather Co. today reported net income for the six months ended April 30 of $260,807, compared with net loss of $33,659 in the comparable period a year earlier.

American Safety Razor

American Safety Razor Corporation earned consolidated net profit of $136,072 equal to 26 cents a share, in the March quarter, compared with $206,673, or 39 cents a share, in the March quarter last year.

Directors authorized a quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share, payable June 29 to holders of record June 11. The company has paid 30 cents in previous quarters.

Mission Oil

Mission Corporation reported March quarter profits of $290,849, equal to 21 cents a share on common stock, against profits of $247,717, or 18 cents, in the 1939 March quarter.

Foreign Markets

London, May 29 (AP).—Security prices held steady today but business dried to a trickle. A little buying was attracted to the gilt edged list late in the session and prices were marked up. Heavy industrial issues were trimmed a few pence. Kaffirs tended downward. Brazilian issues weakened in an otherwise listless foreign division.

Paris—The bourse came back vigorously from yesterday's severe setbacks. Even certain coal mining stocks posted small gains. With the exception of a drop in Egyptian bonds, Mediterranean issues held their ground. Rentes ended 55 centimes higher to 15 lower.

Exchange Markets

New York, May 29 (AP).—Sterling rose 2 cents in relation to the dollar today in the face of a stream of reports describing the seriousness of the Allied cause.

Foreign exchange dealers suggested the rise was due in part to covering by short holders who wished to avoid going through the Memorial Day holiday with any but necessary commitments on hand. The French franc advanced .01¼ of a cent.

The Canadian dollar failed to make the grade despite improvement in other Allied monies. At 78½ U. S. cents the Dominion money was down ⅛ cent. The Swiss franc moved up .01 of a cent.

Rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents):

Official Canadian Control Board rates for U. S. dollars—Buying 10 per cent premium, selling 11 per cent premium, equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying 9.91 per cent, selling 9.09 per cent. Canadian dollar in New York open market, 21½ per cent discount, or 78.50 U. S. cents.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER.

Listen!

with Slocum

Arch McDonald, WJSV's little bundle of perpetual broadcasting motion, now has a new show that is proving extremely popular with Washington's vast army of sports bugs. He calls it Dugout Chatter and it is heard every day except Sunday for ten minutes, immediately preceding the play-by-play account of the ball game.

In these dugout chatter shows the McDonald, in his own inimitable manner, will explore the current situation in the major leagues, discuss the doings of our Senators and generally conduct a ten-minute feature sports column. There is the very good possibility that my moronic tendencies are responsible, but I find sports pages and sports broadcasts, and even jitterbug music a great antidote to the countless columns and words of woe that fill our newspapers and airways these days. There is something about Clark Griffith getting $20,000 for a thing called Jimmy Wasdell that makes an otherwise frightful day worth the living.

Speaking of Massa McDonald brings to mind the trouble he's having these days with Godfrey. Godfrey is the McDonald monkey, an ugly little beast he picked up in a weak moment for a song and because the stupid simian had a touch of red hair Arch named him "Godfrey." It was indeed a touching tribute to another great artist.

At the moment Godfrey (the little monkey) is on his own. He is living in a tree outside the McDonald home, returning only for a bit of food when the wild life foraging isn't so good. Because he is very fond of the McDonald family Godfrey always perches on a window sill to watch it at breakfast. Several attempts have been made to snag the little beast but he always outwits his captors and returns to the comfort of a tree.

Orphans in Love

by Marion White

Ellen Carlan has loved Peter Storm since both were children. They take refuge from a storm in the deserted old Tucker mansion and note the resemblance of Peter to Jonathan Tucker. As the result of a fire, Peter is a public hero and the papers connect him with the Tucker house. John Abbott and his wife, who manage the Tucker estate, fear their deception 25 years ago when they abandoned the only heir at the orphanage, will be discovered. Abbott offers Peter a position in his law firm. Ellen is hurt when Peter says Millicent Abbott is beautiful, and Mother Rosa at the orphanage helps by sending Ellen to a famous designer, Rosalind, who hires her as a model. Peter takes Ellen dinner-dancing but her happiness is ended when Millicent and her friends monopolize Peter. The Abbotts decide Peter and Millicent would be a good match. Ellen models a bridal gown at Rosalind's fall show which Roger Maillard attends with his sister. The handsome millionaire sportsman falls in love with Ellen.

Chapter 24

ELLEN had a rather vague recollection of a tall, blond young man, with a smile that was genuinely wholesome and friendly, and a most engaging manner.

It was a surprise to her, later on, when Mae Brooks, who had modeled the maid-of-honor outfit, emphasized his social significance.

"What a sap you are, Ellen" she said in bitter chastisement. "You meet a man like Roger Maillard, with a town house and a country house and a castle in Europe, and you say 'How-do-you-do' and turn your back. Haven't you any sense at all? Don't you recognize an opportunity when it almost knocks you down?"

She didn't, and that was a fact. She never read the society pages nor noticed the names in the rotogravure sheet, and so an introduction to Mr. Maillard had meant nothing.

When he phoned, she was more embarrassed than pleased, and she took eager refuge in the excuse that she must work every evening.

The girls stormed and argued and scolded, but she didn't care. She wasn't interested in crashing society. One bitter evening had made her feel unequal to it.

After a week the phone calls stopped, but two days later there was a huge box of white roses, with his card inclosed. "Roses for remembrance," it said, "while I spend this long and lonely week in Canada."

That same day there was a brief note from Peter, on the impressive letterhead of Abbott & Carlton, explaining that he had tried all day Tuesday—which was election day and therefore a holiday—to reach her by phone, and what was she doing, trying to run out on him after all these years?

It was a silly, casual note, but she gathered to her heart what little warmth it offered, and promptly forgot Roger Maillard and his white roses.

On the very next day the accident occurred which opened the door of opportunity to her, and for 48 hours she forgot everything in the world but the wedding dress of Iris Van Dorne.

Miss Van Dorne was the first bride-to-be who had been induced to order her trousseau from Rosalind.

Important Order

The order was tremendously important, not because of Miss Van Dorne, who was pale and shy and uncertain about this wedding to Prof. Harper which the papers made so much fuss over, but because her mother, Mrs. Reginald Schuyler Van Dorne, was about the most substantial patron any shop could desire.

Her approval amounted to the same thing, in a democratic way, as an appointment to Her Royal Highness, the Queen.

The entire shop was in a nervous frenzy, from Rosalind right down to 14-year-old Mamie Doyle, who ran errands and picked up snips from the floor.

The wedding was to take place on Thursday at high noon. On Wednesday morning, Rosalind herself went to the Van Dorne mansion for a final fitting of the ivory velvet gown.

Gray Velvet

Every last frock had been completed and delivered—the bridesmaid's dresses, the gray velvet for the mother of the bride, the brown traveling suit with its sable trimming, the crimson hostess gown, the tweed ensemble for the country.

All had been closely examined and scrutinized by the exacting Mrs. Van Dorne; all had been approved. There remained only this final fitting.

It was 2 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon when Rosalind returned to the shop. Robert came in behind her, holding aloft the square white box which contained the wedding dress as carefully as if it held the bride herself.

"The buttons have to be moved once more," Rosalind announced, sinking into the first comfortable chair. Her carefully waved hair was a little tousled, her nose was red and obviously shining.

She kicked off her black suede slippers and wriggled her feet comfortably. "This will be the third time we've moved those buttons. I swear that girl's so upset over her own wedding that she loses ten pounds between each fitting."

Mrs. Bray, the head seamstress, nodded sympathetically. "Let's be thankful that she ordered only one close-fitting model." She was unwrapping the box, lifting out fold after fold of protective tissue paper. She held up the dress carefully, noting the readjustments. "It won't take me an hour to finish this," she promised calmly.

Need Rest

"Be careful of the pins," Rosalind cautioned. "And when you're finished, run along home, Mrs. Bray. Send all the girls home early. They need a rest after these past two weeks."

At 4:30, the last button was in place. The dress was completed, ready for the bride to be poured into it. Rosalind inspected it, satisfied herself that each exacting detail had been attended to.

"I'm going to hang it on this form," Mrs. Bray suggested. "If I put it back into the box, it will only crease."

Rosalind nodded in agreement. "Just throw some of that flimsy lining material over it, to keep off any dust. You've done a good job, Mrs. Bray."

She went home immediately. There was a tired droop to her shoulders as she walked through the salon. She wished that she might run away to some quiet farm and never see another dress.

The bridal show had been a success, a greater success than she had dreamed in her highest hopes but before the last trousseau was completed, she would be a nervous wreck.

Ellen and Mae Brooks were in the salon as she passed through.

"Poor thing," Mae remarked kindly. "She's worn out. One thing you've got to say for Rosalind. When we're busy she doesn't just sit around and give orders. She pitches in and works harder than anyone else."

Close Shop

At 5 o'clock the shop was closed. The girls in the workshop were all gone, all except little Mamie who always stayed to tidy up after the others left.

The models and saleswomen lost no time in getting away. Only Ellen lingered. This was her first free evening in weeks; she had hours and hours before her, with nothing at all to do. The thought did not disturb her.

It would be pleasant to do nothing after so many nights of work. She could have a good dinner over at Schrafft's; she would dawdle over each course and take half an hour to finish.

There was luxury in such leisure.

By 5:30, Rosalind, Limited, was practically deserted. Robert, the doorman, was making his last rounds, locking windows and turning off lights. Mamie, singing dolefully off key, was putting away the last pins and needles and buttons.

Robert peeked into the sewing room, saw the girl all alone. "Has Miss Carlan gone yet?" he asked.

"No. She's still here."

"Out here, in the first dressing room," Ellen called out. "Do you want me, Robert?"

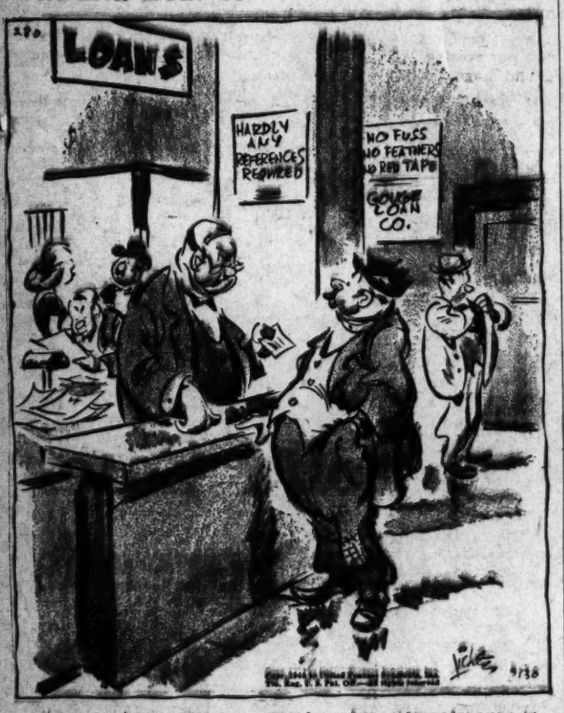

He walked down the hallway, following her voice. He found her putting on her hat and coat.

"There's a young man waiting for you," he announced quietly. "He's been waiting an hour or more."
